"deferred amount" at the end of a taxation year under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of a taxpayer means

(a) in the case of a trust governed by the arrangement, any amount that a person has a right under the arrangement at the end of the year to receive after the end of the year where the amount has been received, is receivable or may at any time become receivable by the trust as, on account or in lieu of salary or wages of the taxpayer for services rendered in the year or a preceding taxation year, and

(b) in any other case, any amount that a person has a right under the arrangement at the end of the year to receive after the end of the year, and, for the purposes of this definition, a right under the arrangement shall include a right that is subject to one or more conditions unless there is a substantial risk that any one of those conditions will not be satisfied;

"designated insurance property" has the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12);

"designated surplus" — [Repealed under former Act]

"disposition" of any property, except as expressly otherwise provided, includes

(a) any transaction or event entitling a taxpayer to proceeds of disposition of the property,

(b) any transaction or event by which,

(i) where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property is redeemed in whole or in part or is cancelled,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(b)(i)

(i) where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or a interest in it, the property is in whole or in part redeemed, acquired or cancelled;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(3), will amend subpara. (b)(i) of the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur after December 23, 1998 and, where a particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs before December 21, 2002, any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for a taxation year that includes the time at which the particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred shall, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), be made that is necessary to take into account the application of the amendment.

Technical Notes: The expression "disposition" is used throughout the Act, particularly in provisions relating to transactions involving property.

The definition "disposition" was added to subsection 248(1) by S.C. 2001, chapter 17, ss. 188(5) [formerly Bill C-22]. In general, that definition is applicable to transactions and events that occur after December 23, 1998. The former definition "disposition" was contained in section 54 of the Act, applicable to transactions and events that occurred before December 24, 1998.

Under the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), a "disposition" of any property includes a transaction or an event described in any of paragraphs (a) to (d) of that definition but does not include a transaction or an event described in any of paragraphs (e) to (m) of that definition.

Under subparagraph (b)(i) of that definition, a disposition of a property includes any transaction or event by which, where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property "is redeemed in whole or in part or is cancelled".

The definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) is amended in the following ways.

First, subparagraph (b)(i) of the definition now provides that a disposition of property includes any transaction or event by which, where the property is a share, bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar property, or an interest in it, the property "is in whole or in part redeemed, acquired or cancelled".

This amendment makes it clear that a disposition will also include a transaction or event by which the property is acquired.

[The] amendment appl[ies] to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur after December 23, 1998, and, where the redemption, acquisition or cancellation takes place before December 21, 2002, the Minister of National Revenue shall, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), make any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation years that include the time at which such a redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred that is necessary to take into account the application of the amendments.

In connection with redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur before December 24, 1998, see the commentary to new subsection 248(1.1).

(ii) where the property is a debt or any other right to receive an amount, the debt or other right is settled or cancelled,

(iii) where the property is a share, the share is converted because of an amalgamation or merger,

(iv) where the property is an option to acquire or dispose of property, the option expires, and

(v) a trust, that can reasonably be considered to act as agent for all the beneficiaries under the trust with respect to all dealings with all of the trust's property (unless the trust is described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e.1) of the definition "trust" in subsection 108(1)), ceases to act as agent for a beneficiary under the trust with respect to any dealing with any of the trust's property,

(c) any transfer of the property to a trust or, where the property is property of a trust, any transfer of the property to any beneficiary under the trust, except as provided by paragraph (f), (g) or (k), and

(d) where the property is, or is part of, a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, except as provided by paragraph (h) or (i), a payment made after 1999 to the taxpayer from the trust that can reasonably be considered to have been made because of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust,

but does not include

(e) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, except where the transfer is

(i) from a person or a partnership to a trust for the benefit of the person or the partnership,

(ii) from a trust to a beneficiary under the trust, or

(iii) from one trust maintained for the benefit of one or more beneficiaries under the trust to another trust maintained for the benefit of the same beneficiaries,

(f) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where

(i) the transferor and the transferee are trusts,

(ii) the transfer is not by a trust resident in Canada to a non-resident trust,

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(f)(i), (ii)

(i) the transferor and the transferee are trusts that are, at the time of the transfer, resident in Canada

(ii) [Repealed]

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(4), will replace subparas. (f)(i) and (ii) of the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1) with subpara. (f)(i), applicable to transfers that occur after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: Third, the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) is also amended by restricting the circumstances in which a transfer of property between trusts will not be treated as a disposition. In particular, paragraph (f) of the definition is amended so that a transfer of property from a trust to another trust will avoid, under that paragraph, characterization as a disposition only if both trusts are, at the time of the transfer, resident in Canada.

(iii) the transferee does not receive the property in satisfaction of the transferee's right as a beneficiary under the transferor trust,

(iv) the transferee held no property immediately before the transfer (other than property the cost of which is not included, for the purposes of this Act, in computing a balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts in respect of the transferee),

(v) the transferee does not file a written election with the Minister on or before the filing-due date for its taxation year in which the transfer is made (or on such later date as is acceptable to the Minister) that this paragraph not apply,

(vi) if the transferor is an amateur athlete trust, a cemetery care trust, an employee trust, an inter vivos trust deemed by subsection 143(1) to exist in respect of a congregation that is a constituent part of a religious organization, a related segregated fund trust (in this paragraph having the meaning assigned by section 138.1), a trust described in paragraph 149(1)(o.4) or a trust governed by an eligible funeral arrangement, an employees profit sharing plan, a registered education savings plan or a registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan, the transferee is the same type of trust, and

(vii) the transfer results, or is part of a series of transactions or events that results, in the transferor ceasing to exist and, immediately before the time of the transfer or the beginning of that series, as the case may be, the transferee never held any property or held only property having a nominal value,

(g) any transfer of the property where

(i) the transferor is a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund,

(ii) the transferee is a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund,

(iii) the annuitant under the plan or fund that governs the transferor is also the annuitant under the plan or fund that governs the transferee,

(iv) the transferee held no property immediately before the transfer (other than property the cost of which is not included, for the purposes of this Act, in computing a balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts in respect of the transferee),

(v) the transferee does not file a written election with the Minister on or before the filing-due date for its taxation year in which the transfer is made (or on such later day as is acceptable to the Minister) that this paragraph not apply, and

(vi) the transfer results, or is part of a series of transactions or events that results, in the transferor ceasing to exist and, immediately before the time of the transfer or the beginning of that series, as the case may be, the transferee never held any property or held only property having a nominal value,

(h) where the property is part of a capital interest of a taxpayer in a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2)) that is described by reference to units issued by the trust, a payment after 1999 from the trust in respect of the capital interest, where the number of units in the trust that are owned by the taxpayer is not reduced because of the payment,

(i) where the property is a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, a payment to the taxpayer after 1999 in respect of the capital interest to the extent that the payment

(i) is out of the income of the trust (determined without reference to subsection 104(6)) for a taxation year or out of the capital gains of the trust for the year, if the payment was made in the year or the right to the payment was acquired by the taxpayer in the year, or

(ii) is in respect of an amount designated in respect of the taxpayer by the trust under subsection 104(20),

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"disposition"(i)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 7, 2003: See under 132.11(4).

(j) any transfer of the property for the purpose only of securing a debt or a loan, or any transfer by a creditor for the purpose only of returning property that had been used as security for a debt or a loan,

(k) any transfer of the property to a trust as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where the main purpose of the transfer is

(i) to effect payment under a debt or loan,

(ii) to provide assurance that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor will be satisfied, or

(iii) to facilitate either the provision of compensation or the enforcement of a penalty, in the event that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor is not satisfied,

(l) any issue of a bond, debenture, note, certificate, mortgage or hypothecary claim, and

(m) any issue by a corporation of a share of its capital stock, or any other transaction that, but for this paragraph, would be a disposition by a corporation of a share of its capital stock;

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"disposition"(n)

(n) a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share, or of a right to acquire a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this paragraph as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this paragraph as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation

(referred to in this paragraph as the "disposing corporation") if

(i) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this paragraph as the "new corporation"),

(ii) the merger or combination is

(A) an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) does not apply,

(B) an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or

(C) a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)), and

(iii) either

(A) the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or

(B) in the case of a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)), the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, becomes property of the new corporation;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(5), will add para. (n) to the definition "disposition" in subsec. 248(1), applicable on the same basis as the amendment to subpara. (b)(i) above.

Technical Notes: Second, paragraph (n) is added to the definition. New paragraph (n) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation of a share, or of a right to be issued a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") is considered not to be a "disposition" in the case where

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the merger or combination is
  - an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act) to which subsection 87(11) of the Act does not apply,
  - an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1)) to which subsection 87(11) applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or
  - a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) of the Act), and
- either
  - the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case of a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1)), the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, becomes property of the new corporation.

[The] amendment appl[ies] to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur after December 23, 1998, and, where the redemption, acquisition or cancellation takes place before December 21, 2002, the Minister of National Revenue shall, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), make any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for any taxation years that include the time at which such a redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred that is necessary to take into account the application of the amendments.

In connection with redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occur before December 24, 1998, see the commentary to new subsection 248(1.1).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 12, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in reply to your faxed letter dated January 23, 2002 to Mr. Wally Conway in which you expressed concerns about the provisions in the Income Tax Act (the "Act") relating to the cancellation of shares of a predecessor corporation on an "amalgamation" (within the meaning of subsection 87(1) of the Act) or on a "foreign merger" (within the meaning of subsection 87(8.1)).

In your letter, you give the following example of a foreign merger:

1. A corporation ("Canco") resident in Canada owns all of the outstanding shares of a non-resident corporation ("Holdco").
2. Holdco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Parentco").
3. Parentco owns all of the outstanding shares of another non-resident corporation ("Subco").
4. Under the foreign corporate law, Subco is merged into Parentco.

In your letter, you note that you would expect that the relevant foreign law would generally deem the shares of Subco held by Parentco to be cancelled for no consideration on the merger. However, you speculate that it is possible that the law in some foreign jurisdictions may deem the consideration for such shares to be the property of Subco that would, on the merger, be transferred or otherwise become property of the corporate entity formed on the merger.

Subsection 87(4) of the Act deals with the tax consequences, to a shareholder of a corporation, upon an amalgamation involving the corporation where the consideration received by that shareholder for the disposition of the shares held by that shareholder in the capital stock of the corporation consists only of shares of the capital stock of another corporation resulting from the merger. Paragraph 95(2)(d) ensures that subsection 87(4), with necessary changes to reflect a foreign merger, applies in the case of a foreign merger. However, as you note in your letter, subsection 87(4) does not apply to a shareholder where that shareholder is itself a corporation that is part of the amalgamation or foreign merger. Thus, referring to your example, subsection 87(4) would not apply to Parentco in its capacity as a shareholder of Subco.

In the context of foreign mergers involving foreign affiliates of a taxpayer, if the shares are not excluded property (within the meaning of subsection 95(1)), it is possible that foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer could arise on the merger as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). Similarly, in the context of domestic amalgamations, capital gains or losses could arise on the amalgamation as a result of the non-applicability of subsection 87(4). In our view, these tax results are unintended.

We will, therefore, recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended so as to exclude from being a "disposition" for the purposes of the Act a cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation (the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (the "disposing corporation") where

- the cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations, that included the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation, to form one corporate entity (the "new corporation"),
- the merger or combination is an amalgamation to which subsection 87(11) did not apply, or is a foreign merger, and
- the disposing corporation received no consideration for the share or, in the case of a foreign merger, received no consideration for the share other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, became property of the new corporation.

It will be recommended that this amendment apply to both past and future cancellations of shares.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"dividend rental arrangement" of a person means any arrangement entered into by the person where it may reasonably be considered that

(a) the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection or an amount deemed to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation by reason of subsection 15(3), and

(b) under the arrangement someone other than that person bears the risk of loss or enjoys the opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the share in any material respect, and for greater certainty includes any arrangement under which

(c) a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, but for subsection 112(2.3), be deductible in computing its taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year that includes that time, and

(d) the corporation is obligated to pay to another person an amount as compensation for

(i) that dividend,

(ii) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(iii) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain as the particular share, that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5) to have been received by that other person as a taxable dividend;

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"

"dividend rental arrangement", of a person or a partnership (each of which is referred to in this definition as the "person"),

(a) means any arrangement entered into by the person where it can reasonably be considered that

(i) the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or on a share described in paragraph (e) of the definition "term preferred share" in this subsection or an amount deemed by subsection 15(3) to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and

(ii) under the arrangement someone other than that person bears the risk of loss or enjoys the opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the share in any material respect, and

(b) includes, for greater certainty, any arrangement under which

(i) a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection 112(2.3), be deductible in computing its taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada for the taxation year that includes that time, and

(ii) the corporation or a partnership of which the corporation is a member is obligated to pay to another person or partnership an amount

(A) that is compensation for

(I) the dividend described in subparagraph (i),

(II) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(III) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain as the particular share, and

(B) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person or partnership, as the case may be, as a taxable dividend;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(2), will amend the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsec. 248(1) to read as above, applicable

(a) to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; and

(b) to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement jointly so elect in writing and file the election with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the amending legislation is assented to, except that the reference to "subsection 260(5.1)" in cl. (b)(ii)(B) of the definition, as amended, is to be, in the application of that definition to any of those arrangements made before 2002, read as "subsection 260(5)".

For arrangements made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002 other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, the portion of para. (d) of the definition after subpara. (iii) is to be read as follows:

that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by that other person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes: A "dividend rental arrangement" is, in general terms, an arrangement under which one person receives a dividend on a share that has been borrowed from another person who retains the risk of loss or opportunity for gain from fluctuations in the share value. To clarify its application where a partnership is a party to the arrangement, the definition is restructured and amended; its language is also updated in certain respects.

Under the amended definition, the "person" who is the subject of the arrangement — that is, the person who enters into the arrangement in order to receive a dividend — may be a partnership or a person as otherwise defined.

Existing paragraph (c) of the definition ensures that the definition includes an arrangement under which a corporation receives a taxable dividend that would be deductible but for subsection 112(2.3) of the Act, and is obligated to make dividend compensation payments. This paragraph is replaced by new paragraph (b), which adds to the arrangements described one in which it is not the corporation receiving the dividend that is obligated to make the compensation payment, but rather a partnership of which the corporation is a member.

At first reading, new paragraph (b) may seem asymmetrical, in that it expressly covers the case where a partnership is obligated to make the compensation payment, but not the case where a partnership receives the taxable dividend. In fact, the paragraph covers both: since in the latter case the corporate partner is itself already considered to receive the dividend, it is not necessary to add a reference to the partnership in that regard.

The reference to "subsection 260(5)" in this definition is replaced with "subsection 260(5.1)" consequential to the amendments to section 260. This amendment applies to paragraph (d) of the former definition and clause (b)(ii)(B) of the amended definition.

Proposed Amendment — 248(1)"inventory"

"inventory" means a description of property (other than a property to which subsection 94.1(4) or subsection 94.2(3) applies for a taxation year of a taxpayer) the cost or value of which is relevant in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for the taxation year or would have been so relevant if the income from the business had not been computed in accordance with the cash method and, with respect to a farming business, includes all of the livestock held in the course of carrying on the business;

Technical Notes: A taxpayer's "inventory" is generally described in subsection 248(1) as a description of property the cost or value of which is relevant in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year. Rules for "inventory" in section 10 and elsewhere in the Act affect the calculation of a taxpayer's income from business.

The definition "inventory" is amended to exclude descriptions of property the disposition of which is subject to the application of subsection 94.2(3).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, August 11, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of May 1, 2003, concerning the application to property included in the inventory of a business of the provisions contained in the legislative proposals on foreign investment entities ("FIE proposals") that were tabled as a Notice of Ways and Means Motion on October 11, 2002 [since retabled October 30, 2003 — ed.]. I wish also to acknowledge your discussions on this subject with Grant Nash of this Division.

In your letter you request that the definition "exempt interest" in proposed subsection 94.1(1) of the Income Tax Act be expanded to include participating interests that are included in the inventory of a business and that are valued using the method prescribed under section 1801 of the Income Tax Regulations. These regulations permit the taxpayer to use the property's fair market value ("FMV"), but only if FMV valuations are used to value all properties of the taxpayer included in the inventories of the business. Under the FIE proposals, if the participating interests were not to have a readily obtainable fair market value ("ROFMV"), as defined in proposed subsection 94.2(1) of the Act, they would be subject to the imputed income regime under proposed section 94.1. You are concerned that there could be a risk of double taxation in the event that the application of section 94.1 did not operate to suspend the requirement that the taxpayer include the participating interests in the inventory of its business.

You also suggest, as an alternative to exempting the participating interests under the "exempt interest" definition, the possibility of a modification to the FIE proposals so that such participating interests would not be subject to the imputed income regime, but instead would be subject only to the to the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2 of the FIE proposals. However, you raise concerns about possible double taxation in the event that the participating interests were to be subject both to that proposed mark-to-market regime and subsection 10(1).

In this regard we note that, in the case of inventory, the proposed change, contained in the FIE proposals, to the definition "inventory" in subsection 248(1) of the Act would exclude from inventory under the Act any property that would be subject to the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2 of the Act. We are of the view that this proposed change to the definition "inventory" would prevent the double taxation that might otherwise arise, in respect of the application of the mark-to-market regime under proposed section 94.2, in the absence of relief under any other provisions of the Act.

We are prepared to recommend that the FIE proposals be modified to further amend the definition "inventory" in subsection 248(1) of the Act to exclude from inventory under the Act any property that would be subject to the imputed income regime under proposed section 94.1. This modification would prevent the double taxation that might otherwise arise, in respect of the application of proposed section 94.1 to a taxpayer's participating interest, by suspending the requirement that the taxpayer include the participating interest in the inventory of its business. We will recommend that these modifications be effective for the same period as the FIE proposals generally.

Of course, we cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for writing.

(a) is a share where, under the terms and conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of those terms and conditions or that agreement, the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation is or may, at any time within 5 years from the date of its issue, be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share (unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share) or to reduce the paid-up capital of the share, and for the purposes of this paragraph

(i) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in clause (i)(A) or the right or warrant described in clause (i)(B) or both, as the case may be, and for the purposes of this subparagraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled on the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration (other than consideration described in any of clauses (i)(A) to (C)) in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration shall be deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1, and, for the purposes of this definition, agreement in respect of the share was to avoid or limit the tax payable under subsection 191.1(1),

(B) that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where that determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, and

(ii) "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder,

(f) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation was issued after December 15, 1987 and at the time the share was issued the existence of the corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited to a period that was within 5 years from the date of its issue, the share shall be deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation unless the share is a grandfathered share and the arrangement is a written arrangement entered into before December 16, 1987,

(g) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is acquired at any time after December 15, 1987 by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation and the share is at any particular time after that time acquired by a person with whom the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation was dealing at arm's length if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 251(5)(b), from the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, the share shall be deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time,

(h) where at any particular time after December 15, 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement to do so entered into before December 16, 1987, as a result of the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation or any agreement entered into by the corporation or a specified person in relation to the corporation, any person (other than the corporation or an individual other than a trust) was obligated, either absolutely or contingently and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking within 5 years after the day on which the share was issued (in this paragraph referred to as a "guarantee agreement") including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder given

(i) to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain, by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited in any respect, and Related Provisions: 40(3.131), 127.52(2.1) — Anti-avoidance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-151R5: Scientific research and experimental development expenditures.

Proposed Addition — 248(1)"specified participating interest"

"specified participating interest", means a property of a taxpayer that is

(a) a participating interest of the taxpayer, other than an exempt interest (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer, in a foreign investment entity, or

(b) a participating interest of the taxpayer, other than an exempt interest (as would be defined in subsection 94.1(1) if the definition "exempt interest" in that subsection were read without reference to subparagraphs (a)(i) and (ii) of that definition) of the taxpayer, in a tracking entity (as defined in subsection 94.2(1));

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 41(5), will add the definition "specified participating interest" to subsec. 248(1), applicable to taxation years that begin after 2002.

Technical Notes: This definition is used throughout the Act, particularly in provisions relating to the transfer of properties to and from corporations, trusts, partnerships, spouses or common-law partners. In general, a transfer of property that is a specified participating interest will not qualify for special rules in the Act that would otherwise allow the transferor of the property to defer recognition, for income tax purposes, of any accrued gains or losses in respect of the property.

A specified participating interest at any time means a property of a taxpayer that at that time is a "participating interest" (e.g., a share of a non-resident corporation, or a beneficial interest in a non-resident trust) of the taxpayer in a "foreign investment entity" (as those expressions are defined in subsection 94.1(1)). However, if the interest is at that time an "exempt interest" (as defined in subsection 94.1(1)) of the taxpayer in the foreign investment entity, it will not be at that time a specified participating interest.

A specified participating interest at any time also means a property of a taxpayer that at that time is a participating interest of the taxpayer in a "tracking entity" (as defined in subsection 94.2(1)). However, if the interest is at that time an exempt interest of the taxpayer in the tracking entity, it will not be at that time a specified participating interest, unless the tracking entity is a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer or is a qualifying entity that is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer in respect of which the taxpayer has a qualifying interest (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 95(2)(m) of the Act).

For more detail on the definitions "participating interest", "tracking entity", "exempt interest", and "foreign investment entity", see the commentary on those definitions.

Related Provisions: 51(4)(b), 73(1), 85(1.1)(b), 85.1(4)(b), 85.1(6)(f), 88(3)(b), 97(2), 107(4.01) — Rollovers do not apply to SPI; 98(7) — Where partnership holding SPI ceases to exist.

Proposed Addition — 248(1) "specified proportion"

"specified proportion", of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, means the proportion that the member's share of the total income or loss of the partnership for the partnership's fiscal period is of the partnership's total income or loss for that period and, for the purpose of this definition, where that income or loss for a period is nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(12), will add the definition "specified proportion" to subsec. 248(1), applicable after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (December 20, 2002): The definition "specified proportion" of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership is currently found in subsection 206(1). The apportionment that results from the definition is, however, useful for many purposes of the Act, and a number of other provisions apply the same concept. For simplicity, the definition is moved to subsection 248(1). As a result, for all purposes of the Act a partner's specified proportion for the period is that proportion of the partnership's total income or loss for that period that is the member's share. If the partnership's income or loss for the period is nil, the proportion is computed as if the partnership had $1 million of income for the period.

"specified shareholder" of a corporation in a taxation year means a taxpayer who owns, directly or indirectly, at any time in the year, not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation and, for the purposes of this definition,

(a) a taxpayer shall be deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

(b) each beneficiary of a trust shall be deemed to own that proportion of all such shares owned by the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficial interest of the beneficiary in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust,

Proposed Addition — 248(1.1)

(1.1) Non-disposition before December 24, 1998 — A redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share, or of a right to acquire a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to in this subsection as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to in this subsection as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition (within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occurred at the particular time) of the security if

(a) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to in this subsection as the "new corporation");

(b) the merger or combination is

(i) an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,

(ii) an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or

(iii) a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read at the particular time); and

(c) either

(i) the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or

(ii) in the case of a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read at the particular time), the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, became property of the new corporation.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(13), will add subsec. 248(1.1), in force on Royal Assent. In applying subsec. 248(1.1) to a particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation, any assessment of a taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties payable under the Act for a taxation year that includes the time at which the particular redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred shall, notwithstanding subsecs. 152(4) to (5), be made that is necessary to take into account the application of the new subsection.

Technical Notes: The definition "disposition" was added to subsection 248(1) by S.C. 2001, chapter 17, subsection 188(5) [formerly Bill C-22]. In general, that definition applies to transactions and events that occur after December 23, 1998. The former definition "disposition" was contained in section 54 of the Act, applicable to transactions and events that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New paragraph (n) is added to the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1), applicable to redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations of certain securities that occur after December 23, 1998. For more detail, see the commentary to subsection 248(1).

New subsection 248(1.1) is added to deal, in a corresponding fashion, with such redemptions, acquisitions and cancellations that occurred before December 24, 1998.

New subsection 248(1.1) provides that a redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at any particular time after 1971 and before December 24, 1998, of a share, or of a right to acquire a share, (which share or which right, as the case may be, is referred to as the "security") of the capital stock of a corporation (referred to as the "issuing corporation") held by another corporation (referred to as the "disposing corporation") is not a disposition of the security within the meaning of the definition "disposition" in section 54 (as that section read in its application to transactions and events that occur at the particular time), if

- the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations (including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation) to form one corporate entity (referred to as the "new corporation"),
- the merger or combination is
  - an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) of the Act if in force, and as it read, at the particular time did not apply,
  - an amalgamation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) as it read at the particular time) to which subsection 87(11) if in force, and as it read, at the particular time applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described by subsection 87(11) (if in force, and as it read, at the particular time) as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively, or
  - a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) of the Act as it read at the particular time), and
- either
  - the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or
  - in the case of a foreign merger (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(8.1) as it read at the particular time), the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the foreign merger, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the foreign merger, became property of the new corporation.

Related Provisions: 248(1)"disposition"(n) — Same rule after December 23, 1998.

(2) Tax payable — In this Act, the tax payable by a taxpayer under any Part of this Act by or under which provision is made for the assessment of tax means the tax payable by the taxpayer as fixed by assessment or reassessment subject to variation on objection or on appeal, if any, in accordance with the provisions of that Part.

Related Provisions: 117(1) — Meaning of "tax payable" for purposes of sections 117–127.4.

(d) property subject to rights and obligations under an arrangement (other than a trust) that

(i) is established by or under a written contract that

(B) provides that, for the purposes of this Act, the arrangement shall be considered to be a trust, and

(ii) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this subsection), shall be deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, and such an arrangement shall be deemed to be a trust;

(e) a person who has a right (whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent) to receive all or any part of the income or capital in respect of property referred to in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) shall be deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust referred to in that paragraph; and

Application: The October 30, 2003 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (NRTs and FIEs), subsec. 41(6), will amend subsec. 248(3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after October 30, 2003.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(3) provides a number of rules that apply for the purposes of applying the Act in relation to the Province of Quebec.

Paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d) deem certain relationships or arrangements created under the laws of the Province of Quebec to be trusts for those purposes. Paragraph 248(3)(e) clarifies that a person is deemed to be beneficially interested in a trust if the person has any right to receive the income or the capital in respect of property that is deemed, under any of paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (d), to be held in trust. Paragraph 248(3)(f) provides that a person beneficially owns property, even if there is a servitude in respect in the property, in relation to which the person has the rights described in any of subparagraphs 238(3)(f)(i) to (iii).

Subsection 248(3) is amended so that it applies generally for the purposes of the Act.

The rules found in paragraphs 248(3)(a) to (c) are now found in new paragraph 248(3)(a), which sets out the treatment as a trust of certain relationships or arrangements under civil law.

New paragraph 248(3)(b) ensures that the rules in the Act that apply to trusts (including the rules in new sections 94 to 94.4) also apply to foundations. Where property is at any time property of a foundation (and the foundation is not otherwise treated as a trust or corporation for purposes of the Act), the foundation is deemed under paragraph 248(3)(b) to be at that time a trust, and where the foundation is created by will, to be a trust created by will. Such property is deemed to have been transferred (at the time it first became property of the foundation) to the trust by the person that transferred the property to the foundation, and the property is deemed to be, throughout the period in which it is property of the foundation, held by the trust, and not otherwise.

The provisions of paragraph 248(3)(d) are now found in paragraph 248(3)(c). However, note that new paragraph 248(3)(c) clarifies that it is intended to apply only in respect of arrangements that are neither partnerships nor trusts determined without reference to the paragraph 248(3)(c). In addition, new paragraph 248(3)(c) applies only to an arrangement established on or before October 30, 2003. This recognizes that amendments to the Quebec Civil Code have rendered the provision's original purpose — to allow for the characterization, in the Province of Quebec, of certain entities as trusts under the Act even though they may not technically constitute trusts under the civil law of Quebec — unnecessary.

The provisions of paragraphs 248(3)(e) and (f) are found in new paragraphs 248(3)(d) and (e), respectively.

Proposed Amendment — 248(16)

(16) Goods and services tax — input tax credit and rebate — For the purposes of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax credit in a return under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the goods and services tax in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act, is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act, is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax credit was claimed; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(15), will amend subsec. 248(16) to read as above, applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(16) provides rules under which amounts received by, or credited to, a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax (GST) are deemed to be assistance from a government received by a taxpayer. As a consequence, such amounts are either included in income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property, or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool, for tax purposes.

Subsection 248(16) also specifies the time at which the receipt (or credit) of an input tax credit or rebate is deemed to be received as assistance. With respect to input tax credits, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) provides that the assistance (i.e., the input tax credit) is considered to be received by a taxpayer at the time the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable by the taxpayer if the GST was paid or became payable in the same reporting period under the Excise Tax Act in which the input tax credit was claimed. If a taxpayer does not claim the input tax credit in the same reporting period in which the GST was paid or became payable, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) includes the amount of assistance in the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes the end of the reporting period in which the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit.

Subsection 248(16) is amended in three respects for input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

First, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) is amended to extend its application to cases where the input tax credit is claimed by a taxpayer in a reporting period that is subsequent to the period in which the related GST was paid or became payable if

- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (as defined by that Act) that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period (as determined under subsection 152(3.1) of the Income Tax Act) for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes that earlier time.

In general, the change to this subparagraph means that an input tax credit of a taxpayer (who is a GST filer with a threshold amount greater than $500,000 for GST purposes) is considered to have been received at the time the related GST was paid or became payable, even though the input tax credit is claimed in a later GST reporting period. However, this is the case only if the taxpayer claims the input tax credit at least 120 days before the taxation year in which the GST was paid or became payable becomes statute-barred for income tax purposes.

Second, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) is amended to provide that an input tax credit is considered to be received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if

- subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, and
- the taxpayer's threshold amount (as determined under subsection 249(1) of the Excise Tax Act) is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year of the taxpayer that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid or became payable.

Thus, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) does not apply if subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) applies. Where subparagraph 248(16)(a)(i) does not apply, subparagraph 248(16)(a)(ii) provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received at the end of the reporting period in which it is claimed only if the taxpayer's threshold amount for GST purposes was $500,000 or less at the time the GST was paid or became payable.

Third, new subparagraph 248(16)(a)(iii) is added to apply in any other case. If applicable, that subparagraph provides that the input tax credit is considered to have been received on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

- that begins after the taxation year that includes the earlier of the time that the GST in respect of the input tax credit was paid and the time that it became payable, and
- for which the normal reassessment period for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time at which the input tax credit was claimed.

Reference should also made to the commentary to new subsection 248(17.1) which provides a special rule in respect of the timing of a claim in respect of certain input tax credits assessed under the Excise Tax Act.

Proposed Addition — 248(16.1)

(16.1) Quebec input tax refund and rebate — For the purpose of this Act, other than this subsection and subsection 6(8), an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax refund or a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount was claimed by the taxpayer as an input tax refund in a return under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, for a reporting period under that Act,

(i) at the particular time that is the earlier of the time that the Quebec sales tax in respect of the input tax refund was paid and the time that it became payable,

(A) if the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(B) if,

(I) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) that includes the particular time, and

(II) the taxpayer claimed the input tax refund at least 120 days before the end of the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year that includes the particular time,

(ii) at the end of the reporting period, if

(A) subparagraph (i) does not apply, and

(B) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act is $500,000 or less for the fiscal year (within the meaning assigned by that Act) of the taxpayer that includes the particular time, and

(iii) in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's earliest taxation year

(A) that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time, and

(B) for which the normal reassessment period, as determined under subsection 152(3.1), for the taxpayer ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax refund was claimed; or

(b) where the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the Quebec sales tax, at the time the amount was received or credited.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(16), will add subsec. 248(16.1), applicable in respect of input tax input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(16.1) provides special rules for amounts received, or credited to, a taxpayer as an input tax refund or rebate in respect of Quebec sales tax. Such amounts are either included in a taxpayer's income or reduce the cost or capital cost of the related property, or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool, for tax purposes.

In general, an input tax refund in respect of Quebec sales tax may — depending on the circumstances — have to be included in a taxpayer's income in the taxation year in which the taxpayer may first claim the refund, rather than the year in which it is received. A rebate of Quebec sales tax is included in income at the time the rebate is received or credited. For a more detailed explanation of the application of subsection 248(16.1), reference should be made to the commentary accompanying amendments to subsection 248(16), which provides analogous special rules in respect of the timing of the inclusion in income of certain input tax credits and rebates assessed under the Excise Tax Act.

(17) Application of subsec. (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — Where the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of the Excise Tax Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) and (ii) shall, as they apply in respect of such property, be read as follows:

Proposed Amendment — 248(17) opening words

(17) Application of subsection (16) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 202(4) of that Act, subparagraphs (16)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(17), will amend the opening words of subsec. 248(17) to read as above, applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(17) applies in the case of an input tax credit in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determined by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (i.e., where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). Subsection 248(17) is amended to reflect the amendments made to subsection 248(16) as described in the commentary to that subsection.

"(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer commencing after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the goods and services tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax credit to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or"

Related Provisions: 248(17.1) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.1)

(17.1) Application of s. (16.1) to passenger vehicles and aircraft — If the input tax refund of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft is determined with reference to section 252 of that Act, subparagraphs (16.1)(a)(i) to (iii) are to be read as they apply in respect of the passenger vehicle or aircraft, as the case may be, as follows:

(i) at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer that begins after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the Quebec sales tax in respect of such property was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to be payable, if the tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, or

(ii) if no such tax was considered for the purposes of determining the input tax refund to have become payable in the reporting period, at the end of the reporting period; or

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(18), will add subsec. 248(17.1), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.1) applies in the case of an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, in respect of a passenger vehicle or aircraft, claimable by an individual or partnership where the credit is determinable by reference to capital cost allowance in respect of the vehicle or aircraft (that is, where there is less than exclusive use in commercial activity). In general, this subsection defers the time the input tax refund is considered to be received for income tax purposes to the taxation year or fiscal period following that in which Quebec sales tax in respect of the property is considered as payable for the purposes of determining the input tax refund. This avoids circularity with subsection 248(16.1). The provision preserves the proper timing between the input tax refund entitlement and the adjustment to the capital cost.

Related Provisions: 248(17) — Parallel rule for GST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.2)

(17.2) Input tax credit on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax credit that is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the Excise Tax Act to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under that Act that includes the time when the Minister makes the assessment referred to in that subsection.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(18), will add subsec. 248(17.2), applicable in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.2) determines, in respect of input tax credits that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after December 20, 2002, the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been claimed in respect of certain input tax credit assessments made under the Excise Tax Act (ETA).

This subsection provides that, if an amount in respect of an input tax credit is deemed by subsection 296(5) of the ETA to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act, the input tax credit is deemed to have been claimed for the GST reporting period that includes the time the Minister of National Revenue makes the GST assessment.

Accordingly, the rule in clause ITA 248(16)(a)(i)(A) relating to the time at which an input tax credit is considered to have been received cannot apply to an input tax credit to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies. However, the other rules in paragraph ITA 248(16)(a) that determine the time at which an input tax credit is received are to be applied on the basis that an input tax credit (to which subsection 296(5) of the ETA applies) is not claimed by the taxpayer until the reporting period that includes the time at which the input tax credit is actually assessed — i.e., not the reporting period to which the assessment relates but the reporting period in which the input tax credit is deemed to be claimed for GST purposes.

Related Provisions: 248(17.3) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(17.3)

(17.3) Quebec input tax refund on assessment — An amount in respect of an input tax refund that is deemed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Ministère du Revenu, R.S.Q., c. M-31, to have been claimed is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T- 0.1, that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated under that section 30.5.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(18), will add subsec. 248(17.3), applicable in respect of input tax refunds and rebates that become eligible to be claimed in taxation years that begin after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(17.3) provides that an input tax refund of Quebec sales tax, that is deemed to be claimed by section 30.5 of An Act respecting the Quebec Revenue Minister, is deemed to be claimed for the reporting period under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax that includes the day on which an assessment is issued to the taxpayer indicating that the refund has been allocated to the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 248(17.2) — Parallel rule for GST.

(18) Goods and services tax — repayment of input tax credit — For the purposes of this Act, where an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act in respect of an input tax credit relating to property or a service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount shall be deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18.1) — Parallel rule for QST.

Proposed Addition — 248(18.1)

(18.1) Repayment of Quebec input tax refund — For the purposes of this Act, if an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting the Québec sales tax, R.S.Q., c. T-0.1, in respect of an input tax refund relating to property or service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount is deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service under a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(19), will add subsec. 248(18.1), applicable after February 27, 2004.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(18.1) provides that an amount added in determining net tax of a taxpayer under An Act respecting Quebec Sales Tax in respect of an input tax refund relating to a property or service that had previously been deducted in computing such net tax is treated as assistance repaid under a legal obligation to repay that assistance. Such an amount could be so added under Quebec law pursuant to an assessment of Quebec sales tax. As a consequence, such an amount will either be deducted in computing income under paragraph 20(1)(hh) or will increase the cost or capital cost of the related property or the amount of the related expenditure or expenditure pool for tax purposes (as provided under subsection 13(7.1), paragraphs 37(1)(c) and 53(2)(k) and under the definitions "cumulative Canadian exploration expense" in subsection 66.1(6), "cumulative Canadian development expense" in subsection 66.2(5) and "cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense" in subsection 66.4(5)).

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Deduction for repayment of assistance; 39(13) — Capital loss on repayment of assistance; 53(1)(e)(ix)(B) — Adjusted cost base of partnership interest; 127(10.7) — Investment tax credit — repayment of assistance; 248(18) — Parallel rule for GST.

(19) When property available for use — Except as otherwise provided, property shall be considered to have become available for use for the purposes of this Act at the time at which it has, or would have if it were depreciable property, become available for use for the purpose of subsection 13(26).

Related Provisions: 13(27)–(31) — Meaning of "available for use"; 37(1.2) — R&D capital expenditures; 127(11.2) — Investment tax credit.

(20) Partition of property — Subject to subsections (21) to (23), for the purposes of this Act, where at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of the partition:

(a) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 100%, of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time,

(b) each such person who has an interest in the property immediately after that time shall be deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the interest that the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's interest in the property immediately after that time,

(c) each such person who had an interest in the property immediately before that time shall be deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's interest to which paragraph (a) does not apply, and, for the purposes of this subsection, where an interest in the property is an undivided interest, the fair market value of the interest at any time shall be deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the interest is of all the undivided interests in the property.

(a) subsection (20) does not apply to the property, and

(b) the new interest of each such person shall be deemed to be a continuation of that person's undivided interest in the property immediately before the partition, and, for the purposes of this subsection,

(c) subdivisions of a building or of a parcel of land that are established in the course of, or in contemplation of, a partition and that are co-owned by the same persons who co-owned the building or the parcel of land, or by their assignee, shall be regarded as one property, and

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

(25.1) Trust-to-trust transfers — Where at any time a particular trust transfers property to another trust (other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, without affecting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of either trust or the application of subsection 104(5.8) and paragraph 122(2)(f), the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust, and for greater certainty, if the property was deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust by paragraph 51(1)(f), 85(1)(i) or 85.1(1)(a), subsection 85.1(5) or 87(4) or (5) or paragraph 97(2)(c) or 107(2)(d.1), the property is deemed to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(20), will amend subsec. 248(25.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of transfers that occur after December 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 248(25.1) applies where there is a transfer of a property from a particular trust to another trust (other than a RRSP trust or RRIF trust) in circumstances to which paragraph (f) of the definition "disposition" in subsection 248(1) (see the commentary above) applies. The result of the application of paragraph (f) is that the transfer does not constitute a disposition. Where this is the case, subsection 248(25.1) deems the other trust after the particular time to be the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

Subsection 248(25.1) is amended, for greater certainty, to ensure that where the transferred property is deemed under a number of specified provisions to be taxable Canadian property of the particular trust, the property continues to be taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

Related Provisions: 104(1.1) — Restricted meaning of "beneficiary" despite 248(25.1); 104(5.8) — Transfers between trusts; 108(1) — Definition of "capital interest"; 233.2(4) — Disclosure of transfer to CCRA; 248(1)"disposition"(c) — Disposition incudes transfer to a trust.

(25.2) Trusts to ensure obligations fulfilled — Except for the purpose of this subsection, where at any time property is transferred to a trust in circumstances to which paragraph (k) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1) applies, the trust is deemed to deal with the property as agent for the transferor throughout the period that begins at the time of the transfer and ends at the time of the first change after that time in the beneficial ownership of the property.

(25.3) Cost of trust interest — The cost to a taxpayer of a particular unit of a trust is deemed to be equal to the amount described in paragraph (a) where

(a) the trust issues the particular unit to the taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust;

(b) at the time that the particular unit is issued, the trust is neither a personal trust nor a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2); and

(c) either

(i) the particular unit is capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) applies in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a), or would apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B), or

Proposed Amendment — 248(25.3)(c)(i)

(i) the particular unit is capital property and the amount is not proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust, or

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(21), will amend subpara. 248(25.3)(c)(i) to read as above, applicable to units issued after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (December 20, 2002): Subsection 248(25.3) applies where a trust (other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purpose of subsection 107(2)) issues particular units of the trust to a taxpayer directly in satisfaction of a right to a qualifying amount payable from the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust. In such a case, the cost to the taxpayer of the particular units is deemed to equal the amount so payable. Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) provides that in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is one that causes, or but for clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B) would cause, a reduction under subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) to the adjusted cost base of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust.

Subparagraph 248(25.3)(c)(i) is amended to provide that, in the case of particular units of a trust that are capital property, a qualifying amount payable is an amount payable that does not represent proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust.

(ii) the particular unit is not capital property and subparagraph 53(2)(h)(i.1) does not apply in respect of the amount described in paragraph (a) but would so apply if that subparagraph were read without reference to clauses 53(2)(h)(i.1)(A) and (B).

(25.4) Where acquisition by another of right to enforce — If at a particular time a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust includes a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust, the amount shall be added at the particular time to the cost otherwise determined to the taxpayer of the capital interest where

(a) immediately after the particular time there is a disposition by the taxpayer of the capital interest;

(b) as a consequence of the disposition, the right to enforce payment of the amount is acquired by another person or partnership; and

(c) if the right to enforce payment of the amount had been satisfied by a payment to the taxpayer by the trust, there would have been no disposition of that right for the purposes of this Act because of the application of paragraph (i) of the definition "disposition" in subsection (1).

(26) Debt obligations — For greater certainty, where at any time a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "debtor") becomes liable to repay money borrowed by the debtor or becomes liable to pay an amount (other than interest)

(a) as consideration for any property acquired by the debtor or services rendered to the debtor, or

(b) that is deductible in computing the debtor's income, for the purposes of applying the provisions of this Act relating to the treatment of the debtor in respect of the liability, the liability shall be considered to be an obligation, issued at that time by the debtor, that has a principal amount at that time equal to the amount of the liability at that time.

(27) Parts of debt obligations — For greater certainty,

(a) unless the context requires otherwise, an obligation issued by a debtor includes any part of a larger obligation that was issued by the debtor;

(b) the principal amount of that part shall be considered to be the portion of the principal amount of that larger obligation that relates to that part; and

(c) the amount for which that part was issued shall be considered to be the portion of the amount for which that larger obligation was issued that relates to that part.

(28) Limitation respecting inclusions, deductions and tax credits — Unless a contrary intention is evident, no provision of this Act shall be read or construed

(a) to require the inclusion or permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, for a taxation year or in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for a taxation year from a particular source or from sources in a particular place, of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing such income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or loss, for the year or any preceding taxation year;

(b) to permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly deducted in computing such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year; or

(c) to consider an amount to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's tax payable under any Part of this Act for a taxation year to the extent that the amount has already been considered to have been paid on account of such tax payable for the year or any preceding taxation year.

Proposed Addition — 248(30)–(33)

Technical Notes: At common law, it is generally the view that a gift includes only a property transferred voluntarily, without any contractual obligation and with no advantage of a material character returned to the transferor.

In contrast, under section 1806 of the Civil Code of Quebec ("CCQ"), a gift in Quebec is a contract by which ownership of property is transferred by gratuitous title. However, the rights of ownership may be separated, such that it may be possible for a transferor to transfer part of the rights of ownership without any material advantage returned (i.e., by way of gift) and to transfer the other part separately for consideration. It is therefore possible, in Quebec, to sell a property to a charity at a price below fair market value, resulting in a gift of the difference.

Under both the common law and the CCQ, it is generally accepted that a transfer of property is not a gift unless the donor is impoverished by the transfer to the benefit of the donee and it is the donor's intention to enrich the donee without consideration.

At common law there is generally no ability to separate the rights of ownership of a single property in the course of making a gift. As such, at common law a contract to dispose of a property to a charity at a price below fair market value would not generally be considered to include a gift.

Nevertheless, there have been certain decisions made under the common law where it has been found that a transfer of property to a charity was made partly in consideration for services and partly as a gift.

Subsections 248(30), (31) and (32) are added to the Act to clarify the circumstances under which taxpayers and donees may be eligible for tax benefits available under the Act in respect of the impoverishment of a taxpayer in favour of a donee. In addition to the clarification provided by these new rules, on December 24, 2002, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency released guidelines (Income Tax Technical News No. 26) that describe how it will apply the new rules to various situations and fundraising methods commonly used in the charitable sector. Subsections 248(34), (35), (36), (37) and (38) are added to the Act to provide technical rules, regarding the values of property transferred and benefits receivable, that apply in calculating the eligible amount of a gift or political contribution.

In general, these provisions are intended to reflect the policy that the amount eligible for an income tax benefit to a donor, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit or a political contributions tax credit, should reflect the economic impact on the donor (before considering the income tax benefit) of the gift or contribution.

(30) Eligible amount of gift or monetary contribution [split receipting] — The eligible amount of a gift or monetary contribution is the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(30), which applies in respect of gifts and political contributions made after December 20, 2002, defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution as the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or contribution exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or contribution. Subsection 248(30) is added concurrently with amendments to subsections 110.1(1) and 118.1(1), which describe the types of gifts in respect of which an eligible amount will qualify for a deduction (for corporations) or a tax credit (for individuals). The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or contribution is described in new subsection 248(31).

It is proposed that subsections 3501(1), (1.1) and (6) of the Regulations be amended to provide that official receipts issued by a registered organization in respect of a gift made after December 20, 2002 contain, in addition to the information already prescribed, the eligible amount of the gift.

Department of Finance news release, December 5, 2003: The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See 143.2(6.1) and 248(34) — ed.] The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation. (31) Amount of advantage — The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution by a taxpayer is the total of

(a) the total of all amounts, other than an amount referred to in paragarph (b), each of which is the value, at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made, of any property, service, compensation or other benefit that the taxpayer, a person or person who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, or another person or partnership who does not deal at arm's length with and holds, directly or indirectly, an interest in the taxpayer, has received, obtained or enjoyed, or is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive, obtain, or enjoy

(i) that is consideration for the gift or monetary contribution,

(ii) that is in gratitude for the gift or monetary contribution, or

(iii) that is in any other way related to the gift or monetary contribution; and

(b) the limited-recourse debt, determined under subsection 143.2(6.1), in respect of the gift or monetary contribution at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(31), which generally applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, describes the amount of an advantage in respect of a gift or contribution as, in general, the total value of all property, services, compensation or other benefits to which the donor of a property is entitled.

Subsection 248(31) is added concurrently with the addition of subsection 248(30) of the Act, which defines the eligible amount of a gift or contribution, and with the amendment of subsection 127(3) of the Act in respect of contributions to a political party. The amount of an advantage reduces the eligible amount of a gift or contribution.

In general, new subsection 248(31) is intended to apply in respect of any transaction or series of transactions having either the purpose or the effect of reducing the economic impact to a donor of a gift or contribution. This includes, for instance, situations where a charity invests funds or acquires property in a manner that benefits the donor. The reduction to an eligible amount also includes an advantage that is partial consideration for, or in gratitude for, the gift or contribution, or is in any way related to the gift or contribution. An example would include the option of a donor to satisfy or pay a loan by assigning or transferring to another person a property (including the rights under an insurance policy) that has less economic value than the amount of loan outstanding. Another example would include an assumption of a donor's risk by a charity, where the acquisition, directly or indirectly, of an interest in a property of the donor by the charity may have the effect of reducing the potential loss of the donor from that investment. (However, a tax credit or deduction resulting from a charitable donation is not considered a benefit.)

An advantage may exist even though it is not received at the time of the gift or contribution. For example, it may have been received prior to the time of the gift or may be contingent or receivable in the future. The advantage may accrue either to the donor or to a person not dealing at arm's length with the donor. It is not necessary that the advantage be receivable from the donee.

Paragraph 248(31)(b) includes as an advantage any limited-recourse debt in respect of the gift or contribution. For additional details regarding limited-recourse debt, see the commentary to new subsection 143.2(6.1) of the Act.

It is proposed that subsections2000(1) and (6) and 3501(1), (1.1) and (6) of the Regulations be amended to provide that official receipts issued by a registered organization or political party in respect of a gift or contribution contain, in addition to the information already prescribed, the eligible amount and the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift or contribution.

(32) Intention to give — The existence of an amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property does not in and by itself disqualify the transfer from being a gift to a qualified donee if

(a) the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property; or

(b) the transferor of the property establishes to the satisfaction of the Minister that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

Technical Notes: For the transfer of property to qualify as a gift, it is necessary that the transfer be voluntary and with the intention to make a gift. At common law, where the transferor of the property has received any form of consideration or benefit, it is generally presumed that such an intention is not present. New subsection 248(32), which applies in respect of transfers of property after December 20, 2002 to qualified donees (such as registered charities), allows the opportunity to rebut this presumption. New paragraph 248(32)(a) provides that the existence of an amount of an advantage to the transferor will not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift if the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property.

Example

Mr. Short transfers land and a building with a fair market value of $300,000 to a registered charity. The charity assumes liability for an outstanding $100,000 mortgage on the property. The assumption of the mortgage by the charity does not necessarily disqualify the transfer from being a gift for the purposes of the Act.

If the value of the mortgage is equal to the outstanding amount (e.g., the interest rate and terms and conditions are representative of current market conditions), the eligible amount of the gift, in respect of which Mr. Short may be entitled to a tax credit under subsection 118.1(3), is $200,000.

If the amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property exceeds 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property, new paragraph 248(32)(b) provides that the transfer will not necessarily be disqualified from being a gift if the transferor can establish to the satisfaction of the Minister of National Revenue that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

In the above example, if the amount of the mortgage outstanding had been greater than $240,000, Mr. Short (or the charity on Mr. Short's behalf) could apply to the Minister of National Revenue for a determination as to whether the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

It is generally accepted that the tax benefit available to a taxpayer, by way of a charitable donation deduction or credit, is not considered an advantage or benefit that would reflect a lack of donative intent on the part of a taxpayer. However, there may be circumstances where the intention of a taxpayer to make a gift is in doubt because of the combination of tax and other benefits to the taxpayer. If the primary motivation of a taxpayer for entering into a transaction or series of transactions is to return a profit to the taxpayer by way of a combination of tax and other benefits, the taxpayer may not be impoverished by the transfer of a property to a charity. Subsection 248(32) is not intended to allow a taxpayer to profit by the making of a gift.

(33) Cost of property acquired by donor — The cost to a taxpayer of a property, acquired by the taxpayer in circumstances where subsection (31) applies to include the value of the property in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of a gift or monetary contribution, is equal to the fair market value of the property at the time the gift or monetary contribution is made.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(33), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after December 20, 2002, provides that the cost to a taxpayer of property acquired by the taxpayer in the course of the making of a gift or contribution by the taxpayer is the fair market value of the property at the time of the making of the gift or contribution. The fair market value of such a property is relevant in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of the gift or contribution under subsection 248(31).

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(22), will add subsecs. 248(30)–(33), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002, except that subsec. 248(31) is to be read without reference to

(i) its para. (b) in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before February 19, 2003, and

(ii) its subpara. (a)(iii) in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made before 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003.

Proposed Addition — 248(34)

(34) Repayment of limited-recourse debt — If at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer has paid an amount (in this subsection referred to as the "repaid amount") on account of the principal amount of an indebtedness which was, before that time, an unpaid principal amount that was a limited-recourse debt referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) (in this subsection referred to as the "former limited-recourse debt") in respect of a gift or monetary contribution (in this subsection referred to as the "original gift" or "original monetary contribution", respectively, as the case may be) of the taxpayer (otherwise than by way of assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant, or by way of a payment in respect of which any taxpayer referred to in subsection 143.2(6.1) has incurred an indebtedness that would be a limited-recourse debt referred to in that subsection if that indebtedness were in respect of a gift or monetary contribution made at the time that that indebtedness was incurred), the following rules apply:

(a) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original gift, for the purposes of sections 110.1 and 118.1, the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a gift to a qualified donee, the eligible amount of which deemed gift is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original gift, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original gift was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original gift, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other gifts deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original gift; and

(b) if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original monetary contribution, for the purposes of subsection 127(3), the taxpayer is deemed to have made in the taxation year a monetary contribution referred to in that subsection, the eligible amount of which is the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, if the total of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original monetary contribution was made,

exceeds

(ii) the total of

(A) the eligible amount of the original monetary contribution, and

(B) the eligible amount of all other monetary contributions deemed by this paragraph to have been made before that time in respect of the original monetary contribution.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(22), will add subsec. 248(34), applicable in respect of gifts and monetary contributions made after February 18, 2003.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(34), which applies in respect of gifts or political contributions made after February 18, 2003, generally provides that a repayment of the principal amount of a limited-recourse debt in respect of a gift or political contribution is deemed to be a gift in the year it is paid. However, in some circumstances the total amount of limited-recourse debt and other advantages to the donor may exceed the fair market value of the property transferred to a charity, resulting in no eligible amount to the donor under subsection 248(30) of the Act. In this case, the donor must pay off the excess amount before any amount will be allowed as a gift. Also, a payment financed by other limited-recourse debt or made by way of assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar indemnity or covenant is not recognized for these purposes. For example, the assumption of a taxpayer's limited-recourse debt by another person, in exchange for an insurance policy in favour of the taxpayer that guarantees a particular rate of return on an investment held by any person, would not qualify as a deemed gift under subsection 248(34).

Department of Finance news release, December 5, 2003: The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt. [See under 248(35)-(38) for full text of news release — ed.]

Proposed Addition — 248(35)–(38) — Fair market value of donated property

(35) Deemed fair market value — For the purposes of subsection (30), paragraph 69(1)(b) and subsections 110.1(2.1) and (3) and 118.1(5.4) and (6), the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift made by a taxpayer to a qualified donee is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property otherwise determined and the cost, or in the case of capital property, the adjusted cost base, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made if

(a) the taxpayer acquired the property under a gifting arrangement within the meaning assigned by section 237.1; or

(b) except where the gift is made as a consequence of the taxpayer's death,

(i) the taxpayer acquired the property less than three years before the day that the gift is made, or

(ii) it is reasonable to conclude that, at the time the taxpayer acquired the property, the taxpayer expected to make a gift of the property.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(35), which applies in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, provides that the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift is, for the purposes of determining the eligible amount of a gift under subsection 248(30), deemed to be the lesser of the actual fair market value of the property and its cost to the donor. This rule applies if the property was acquired in contemplation of its donation or less than three years before the time of donation, unless the donation is made as a consequence of the donor's death. This rule also applies if the property was acquired by the donor as part of a gifting arrangement. For more information on gifting arrangements, refer to the commentary for subsection 237.1(1).

(36) Non-application of subsection (35) — Subsection (35) does not apply to a gift

(a) of inventory;

(b) of real property situated in Canada;

(c) of an object referred to in subparagraph 39(1)(a)(i.1); or

(d) to which paragraph 38(a.1) or (a.2) applies.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(36) provides exceptions to the application of subsection 248(35) of the Act where the property that is the subject of a gift is an ecological gift, inventory, real property situated in Canada, publicly-traded securities or cultural property, the value of which is certified by the Cultural Property Export Review Board.

(37) Artificial transactions — If it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for a series of transactions, that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property of a taxpayer that is the subject of a gift by the taxpayer, is to increase the amount that would be deemed by subsection (35) to be the fair market value of the property, the cost of the property for the purpose of that subsection is deemed to be the lowest cost to the taxpayer to acquire that property or an identical property at any time.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(37), which applies in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. (EST), December 5, 2003, prevents a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing and reacquiring a property before donating it to a qualified donee. If this is the purpose of any transaction or series of transactions that includes a disposition or acquisition of a property, the cost of the property to the donor for the purpose of subsection 248(35) is deemed to be the lowest cost incurred by the taxpayer at any time to acquire that property or an identical property.

(38) Substantive gift [selling property and donating proceeds] — If a taxpayer disposes of a property (in this subsection referred to as the "substantive gift") that is a capital property or an eligible capital property of the taxpayer, to a recipient that is a registered party, a provincial division of a registered party, a registered association or a candidate, as those terms are defined in the Canada Elections Act, or that is a qualified donee, subsection (35) would have applied in respect of the substantive gift if it had been the subject of a gift by the taxpayer, and the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift are (or are substituted, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, for) property that is the subject of a gift or monetary contribution by the taxpayer to the recipient or any person dealing not at arm's length with the recipient, the following rules apply

(a) for the purpose of subsection (30), the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift or monetary contribution made by the taxpayer is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the substantive gift and the cost, or if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base, of the substantive gift to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition to the recipient;

(b) if the substantive gift is capital property of the taxpayer, for the purpose of the definitions "proceeds of disposition" of property in subsection 13(21) and section 54, the sale price of the substantive gift is deemed to be the lesser of its fair market value and its adjusted cost base immediately before the disposition to the recipient; and

(c) if the substantive gift is eligible capital property of the taxpayer, the amount determined under paragraph (a) for Variable E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) in respect of the substantive gift is deemed to be the lesser of its fair market value and its cost immediately before the disposition to the recipient.

Technical Notes: New subsection 248(38), which applies in respect of gifts made after February 26, 2004, prevents a donor from avoiding the application of subsection 248(35) by disposing a property (the "substantive gift") to a qualified donee and donating the proceeds, rather than donating the property itself. The provision applies similarly in respect of political contributions. The fair market value of the gift or contribution of the proceeds, for the purpose of determining its eligible amount under subsection 248(30), is deemed to be the lesser of the fair market value of the property sold and its cost. Subsection 248(38) does not apply if subsection 248(35) would not have applied to a gift by the taxpayer of that property.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 118(22), will add subsecs. 248(35)–(38), subsecs 248(35) to (37) applicable in respect of gifts made after 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003, monetary contributions made after December 20, 2002; and subsec. 248(38) applicable in respect of gifts or monetary contributions made after February 26, 2004.

Department of Finance news release, December 5, 2003: Government Announces Restrictions on Charitable Donation Tax Shelter Arrangements

John Manley, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, today released draft amendments to the Income Tax Act limiting the tax benefits of charitable donations made under tax shelter and other arrangements.

The amendments proposed today respond to concerns that various promoters are marketing charitable gifting schemes to the public in which property acquired by a taxpayer is donated to a charity at a value represented to be in excess of the taxpayer's acquisition cost. These "buy-low, donate-high" arrangements provide taxpayers with a tax benefit greater than their actual cost of the donated property. These proposed amendments will not apply to gifts of publicly traded securities, certified cultural property, ecological gifts, or real property situated in Canada.

As of 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003, the value of a gift of property for charitable donation purposes will be limited to a donor's cost of the property, where it is donated within three years of acquisition by the donor or is otherwise acquired through a gifting arrangement or in contemplation of donation.

The Minister also released draft amendments relating to limited-recourse debt and "split-receipting." These measures implement proposals introduced in Budget 2003 that address charitable donation arrangements that were promoted in recent years involving the use of limited-recourse debt [see 143.2(6.1), 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement"(b) and 248(34) — ed.]. The draft amendments also incorporate changes put forward in December 2002 relating to the right to receive a benefit in respect of the donation [see 248(30)–(33) — ed.].

References in the draft legislation to "Announcement Time" should be read as referring to 6:00 p.m. EST on December 5, 2003.

(i) is a majority interest beneficiary of the trust, or

(ii) would, if this paragraph were read without reference to this subparagraph, be affiliated with a majority interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(20) That, after March 22, 2004, for the purposes of subsection 251.1(1) of the Act,

(a) a "contributor" to a trust include a person who has at any time made a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of the trust other than, where the person deals at arm's length with the trust at that time, and is not, immediately after that time, a majority interest beneficiary of the trust,

(ii) a transfer made for fair market value consideration;

(b) a "majority interest beneficiary" of a trust at any time mean a person,

(ii) the fair market value of whose beneficial interest, if any, in the capital of the trust at that time, together with the capital interests in the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the capital interests in the trust at that time;

(c) a "majority-interest group of beneficiaries" of a trust at any time mean a group of persons each of whom is beneficially interested in the trust at that time such that

(ii) the beneficial interest of a person in a trust be disregarded in determining whether the person deals at arm's length with the trust if the person would, in the absence of the beneficial interest, be considered to deal at arm's length with the trust.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, March 23, 2004: Affiliated Persons Rules and Trusts

For many purposes under the Income Tax Act, it is necessary to identify persons who have economic interests in common. For example, a person is not permitted to realize a tax loss upon transferring a property to a corporation the person controls: since the person indirectly retains an economic interest in the property, any tax recognition for such losses would be premature.

The Act includes several sets of rules that establish the circumstances in which persons are considered to share economic interests. These include rules on related persons, associated corporations, connected corporations and affiliated persons — the last of which is the standard that applies in respect of losses.

The existing affiliated persons rules do not deal comprehensively with trusts, and this can produce results at odds with the underlying intent of the rules that affect loss realizations. On the one hand, losses on true economic dispositions of property involving trusts are in some cases denied. For example, a trust having as its trustee a commercial trust company, and a brokerage firm controlled by the same financial institution that controls the commercial trust company, might be affiliated under the existing rules, even if the trust has no other connection to the group. As a result, tax recognition of losses arising from a sale of shares by the trust to the brokerage would be deferred.

On the other hand, losses may be claimed on dispositions where use of a trust allows a taxpayer to retain an economic interest in the transferred property. For example, a taxpayer might be able to claim a loss under the present regime on a transfer of property to a trust of which he or she is the sole beneficiary (but not the trustee).

These results are inappropriate and inconsistent with how the rules apply to dispositions involving corporations and, particularly, partnerships.

The budget proposes to expand, for the purposes of the Act, the scope of the affiliated persons rules to deal more fully with trusts. This will be done in a manner that is generally consistent with how the rules apply to partnerships. Not only will this ensure that the loss deferral rules apply as intended to property dispositions involving trusts, but it will also improve the application of other rules that use the affiliation standard, such as those concerning non-resident persons who receive investment advice from Canadian service providers.

Budget 2004 proposes that, after March 22, 2004, a trust will be affiliated with any of its beneficiaries who is entitled to a majority of the trust income or capital, and generally also with any person affiliated with such a beneficiary. After March 22, 2004, two trusts will be affiliated if two conditions are met:

- A person who has contributed property to one of the trusts on a non-arm's length basis or for inadequate consideration is affiliated with any such person in respect of the other trust.
- Beneficiaries that enjoy a majority of the income or capital of the trusts are affiliated.

In the case of a discretionary trust, these new rules will apply as if any discretion of any person in respect of the trust had been fully exercised (or not exercised, as the case may be) in respect of each person who is a potential beneficiary of the discretion.

253.1 Investments in limited partnerships — For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), 146.1(2.1)(c) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, s. 120, will amend s. 253.1 to read as above, applicable after 1997 except that, for taxation years that end after December 16, 1999 and before 2003, s. 253.1 is to be read as follows:

253.1 For the purposes of subparagraph 108(2)(b)(ii), paragraphs 130.1(6)(b), 131(8)(b), 132(6)(b), 146.1(2.1)(c) and 149(1)(o.2), the definition "private holding corporation" in subsection 191(1) and regulations made for the purposes of paragraphs 149(1)(o.3) and (o.4), if a trust or corporation is a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member is deemed

(a) to undertake an investing of its funds because of its acquisition and holding of its interest as a member of the partnership; and

(b) not to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Technical Notes (December 20, 2002): Section 253.1 applies for specified provisions of the Act and Regulations where a trust or corporation holds an interest as a limited partner in a limited partnership. It provides that the trust or corporation will not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of the limited partnership interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

Section 253.1 is amended so that it also applies for the purpose of paragraph 146.1(2.1)(c), which provides that the registration of a registered education savings plan (RESP) is revocable if a trust governed by the plan carries on a business. The amendment to section 253.1 ensures that the acquisition and holding of a limited partnership interest by an RESP trust does not jeopardize the registered status of the plan, provided the interest is a qualified investment for the trust.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, January 31, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your fax of August 3, 2001 regarding an anomaly that arises in connection with limited partnership investments by registered education savings plans (RESPs). I regret the delay in reply.

Paragraph 146.1(2.1)(c) of the Income Tax Act provides that the registration of an RESP is revocable if a trust governed by the plan begins carrying on a business. You are concerned that this rule effectively prevents RESP trusts from acquiring and holding units of publicly listed limited partnerships. If an RESP trust were to acquire such a unit, the registration of the plan would be revocable because the trust would be considered to be carrying on a business.

We agree that this result is unintended. We will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure the acquisition and holding of a limited partnership unit by an RESP trust does not jeopardize the registered status of the plan, provided the unit is a qualified investment for the trust. We will recommend that the amendment apply as of the introduction of subsection 146.1(2.1).

I trust this addresses your concerns and thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(1.1) Definition of "specified class" — For the purposes of subsection (1), "specified class" means a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation where, under the terms or conditions of the shares or any agreement in respect thereof,

(a) the shares are not convertible or exchangeable;

(b) the shares are non-voting;

(c) the amount of each dividend payable on the shares is calculated as a fixed amount or by reference to a fixed percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued;

(d) the annual rate of the dividend on the shares, expressed as a percentage of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued, cannot in any event exceed,

(i) where the shares were issued before 1984, the rate of interest prescribed for the purposes of subsection 161(1) at the time the shares were issued, and

(ii) where the shares were issued after 1983, the prescribed rate of interest at the time the shares were issued; and

(e) the amount that any holder of the shares is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the shares by the corporation or by any person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length cannot exceed the total of an amount equal to the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends thereon.

(b) for greater certainty,

(i) a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation shall be considered to be controlled by that group of persons, and

(ii) a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons notwithstanding that the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons;

(c) a corporation shall be deemed to be controlled by another corporation, a person or a group of persons at any time where

(i) shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

(ii) common shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding common shares of the capital stock of the corporation are owned at that time by the other corporation, the person or the group of persons, as the case may be;

(d) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "holding corporation"), those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by any shareholder of the holding corporation in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation owned at that time by the shareholder

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the holding corporation outstanding at that time;

(e) where, at any time, shares of the capital stock of a corporation are property of a partnership, or are deemed by this subsection to be owned by the partnership, those shares shall be deemed to be owned at that time by each member of the partnership in a proportion equal to the proportion of all those shares that

(i) the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time and for this purpose, where the income and loss of the partnership for its fiscal period that includes that time are nil, that proportion shall be computed as if the partnership had had income for that period in the amount of $1,000,000;

is of

(f) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed by this subsection to be owned, at any time by a trust,

(i) in the case of a testamentary trust under which one or more beneficiaries were entitled to receive all of the income of the trust that arose before the date of death of one or the last surviving of those beneficiaries (in this paragraph referred to as the "distribution date") and no other person could, before the distribution date, receive or otherwise obtain the use of any of the income or capital of the trust,

(1.4) Options and rights — For the purpose of determining whether a corporation is associated with another corporation with which it is not otherwise associated, where a person or any partnership in which the person has an interest has a right at any time under a contract, in equity or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

> (b) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of a corporation, the person or partnership shall, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, be deemed at that time to have the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of its capital stock as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(a)(i)(E)

(E) a corporation on a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend, to which subsection 55(2) does not apply because of paragraph 55(3)(b), is received in the course of the reorganization in which the distribution occurs,

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 121(2), will add cl. 256(7)(a)(i)(E), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2000.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 256(7)(a) describes the circumstances where control of a corporation (or a corporation controlled by the corporation) is considered not to have been acquired for the purposes of certain provisions of the Act. That paragraph is amended in two ways.

First, subparagraph 256(7)(a)(i) is amended effective with respect to the acquisition of shares after 2000 to add clause (E) which precludes an acquisition of control of a corporation on a distribution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 55(1)) by a specified corporation (within the meaning assigned by that subsection) if a dividend is received in the course of a spin-off distribution in which no portion of the dividend is treated as a capital gain by the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) because of the application of the exception for certain reorganizations under paragraph 55(3)(b).

Example:

Facts:

Pubco is a specified corporation under the butterfly rules in section 55 and a person or group of persons does not control it. Pubco owns all of the shares of Subco. In the course of a distribution (as defined by subsection 55(1)), Pubco distributes the Subco shares to Newco, which is established in the course of the reorganization for the purposes of the distribution. The same shareholders that own all of the shares of Pubco own all of the shares of Newco. Because there is no person or group of persons that control Pubco and Newco, an acquisition of control of Subco would occur upon Newco's acquisition of the Subco shares on the distribution despite the fact the same shareholders own Pubco and Newco.

Application:

In this example, new clause 256(7)(a)(i)(E) provides that there is no acquisition of control of Subco by Newco if Pubco's distribution of its Subco shares to Newco is a distribution to which the anti-avoidance rule in subsection 55(2) does not apply because the distribution complies with the exception in paragraph 55(3)(b).

Second, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii), which applies to the acquisition of shares after 2000, provides that, where there is an acquisition of any shares of a corporation, there is no acquisition of control of the corporation by a related group of persons if each member of each group of persons that controls the corporation was related to the corporation immediately before the change of control.

Example:

Facts:

Corporation X has issued 100 common shares with 1 vote per share. There are no other issued shares. Mr. X owns 51% of Corporation X's issued shares. Ms. D who is the daughter of Mr. X owns 49% of the common shares issued by Corporation X. Mr. X has de jure control of Corporation X.

Mr. X disposes of 10 shares of Corporation X to Mr. Z, an arm's length person. Consequently, Mr. X no longer has de jure control, and a group of persons acquires de jure control of Corporation X.

Application:

If Mr. X and Ms. D form a related group of persons that otherwise acquires control of Corporation X upon the disposition of shares by Mr. X, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) deems no acquisition of control if no other group of persons that includes Mr. Z acquires control of Corporation X. It is a question of fact whether Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that would otherwise acquire control of Corporation X and, if so, whether there exists another group of persons that also acquires control. Depending on the circumstances, Mr. X and Ms. D; Mr. X and Mr. Z; Ms. D and Mr. Z; or Mr. X, Ms. D and Mr. Z could form a group of persons that acquires control of Corporation X. Consequently, new subparagraph 256(7)(a)(iii) applies only if, in this example, Mr. X and Ms. D form a group of persons that control Corporation X and there exists no other group of persons (which includes Mr. Z) that acquires control of Corporation X.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 3, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your firm's letters of December 22, 2000, January 24 and 31, February 5, 9 and 23, 2001, and telephone conversations with members of this Division regarding the application of section 55 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") to a proposed Canadian public corporation spin-off.

You have expressed the concern that the mechanics of a public spin-off butterfly under paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act should not, by and of themselves, result in any acquisition of control on a "no types of property" Canadian public corporation spin-off. As well, you are concerned that certain shares referred to below should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. I propose to address each matter separately.

Acquisition of Control

Under paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act, a Canadian public corporation ("Pubco") will spin-off the shares of its subsidiary corporation ("Subco") to a newly created public corporation ("Newco"). We understand that, pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement, the shareholders of Pubco will exchange their common shares for common shares and "special" shares of Pubco. Pubco shareholders will transfer to Newco, in exchange for common shares of Newco, their special Pubco shares, which have a total value equal to the value of the Subco shares owned by Pubco. Pubco will transfer all of its Subco shares to Newco in consideration for preferred shares of Newco. There will be a cross repurchase of the special Pubco shares held by Newco and the Newco preferred shares held by Pubco. Pubco will be a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act in relation to the distribution of the shares of Subco.

Your concern is that Newco will acquire control of Subco on the acquisition of the Subco shares from Pubco, with the result that the acquisition of control and successor rules under the Act will apply to Subco after its acquisition by Newco.

We agree there should not be an acquisition of control and the successor rules of the Act should not apply to the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco in the circumstances you describe provided the spin-off of Subco is not subsequently tainted. In this regard therefore we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to ensure there is no acquisition of control in these circumstances.

In particular, we will recommend an amendment [now 256(7)(a)(i)(E) — ed.] which will provide that where Pubco, a "specified corporation" within the meaning of subsection 55(1) of the Act, spins off its shares of Subco to Newco in the course of a reorganization in which all the dividends that are received are ones to which paragraph 55(3)(b) of the Act applies, control of Subco will be considered not to have been acquired solely as a result of the acquisition of the Subco shares by Newco. We will also recommend that such an amendment be effective for acquisitions made after 2000. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Taxable Canadian Property

As well, because of subparagraph 115(1)(b)(iv) of the Act, the special shares of Pubco that will be acquired by a non-resident shareholder of Pubco pursuant to a Plan of Arrangement will be considered to be taxable Canadian property for the purposes of the Act. Under the provisions of sections 85 and 85.1 of the Act, the taxable Canadian property status of the special shares issued by Pubco will cause the Newco shares acquired by the non-resident in exchange for the non-resident's special shares of Pubco to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident even though the Newco shares will be listed on a prescribed stock exchange. As well, the special shares of Pubco will not be excluded property for the purpose of subsection 116(3) of the Act because the definition "excluded property" in subsection 116(6) applies in the case of shares of the capital stock of a corporation only if the shares are listed on a prescribed stock exchange.

In these circumstances, we agree that the Newco shares should not be considered to be taxable Canadian property by reason only of a deeming rule that applies on the exchange of the special shares for the Newco shares (i.e., because subparagraph 115(1)(b)(iv) applied before the exchange to the special shares of Newco). Consequently, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended [now 55(6) — ed.] to ensure that the above-mentioned special shares of Pubco held by a non-resident shareholder will not be considered to be taxable Canadian property of the non-resident in these circumstances for the purposes of the Act. We will recommend that such an amendment be effective for such special shares issued by a public corporation after April 26, 1995 where the shares are issued by the corporation as part of the series of transactions or events that includes a distribution of property by the corporation in the course of a butterfly reorganization. The date of April 26, 1995 is the date upon which the related amendments to paragraph 115(1)(b) took effect. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that such an amendment would be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

(ii) the redemption or cancellation at any particular time of, or a change at any particular time in the rights, privileges, restrictions or conditions attaching to, shares of the particular corporation or of a corporation controlling the particular corporation, where each person and each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation immediately after the particular time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the corporation

(A) immediately before the particular time, or

(B) immediately before the death of a person, where the shares were held immediately before the particular time by an estate that acquired the shares because of the person's death;

Proposed Addition — 256(7)(a)(iii)

(iii) the acquisition at any time of shares of the particular corporation if

(A) the acquisition of those shares would otherwise result in the acquisition of control of the particular corporation at that time by a related group of persons, and

(B) each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation at that time was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to the particular corporation immediately before that time;

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 121(3), will add subpara. 256(7)(a)(iii), applicable to acquisitions of shares that occur after 2000.

Technical Notes: See under 256(7)(a)(i)(E) above.

(b) where at any time 2 or more corporations (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as a "predecessor corporation") have amalgamated to form one corporate entity (in this paragraph referred to as the "new corporation"),

(i) control of a corporation is deemed not to have been acquired by any person or group of persons solely because of the amalgamation unless it is deemed by subparagraph (ii) or (iii) to have been so acquired,

(ii) a person or group of persons that controls the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation and did not control a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have acquired immediately before the amalgamation control of the predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation (unless the person or group of persons would not have acquired control of the predecessor corporation if the person or group of persons had acquired all the shares of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation), and

(iii) control of a predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have been acquired immediately before the amalgamation by a person or group of persons

(A) unless the predecessor corporation was related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) immediately before the amalgamation to each other predecessor corporation,

(B) unless, if one person had immediately after the amalgamation acquired all the shares of the new corporation's capital stock that the shareholders of the predecessor corporation, or of another predecessor corporation that controlled the predecessor corporation, acquired on the amalgamation in consideration for their shares of the predecessor corporation or of the other predecessor corporation, as the case may be, the person would have acquired control of the new corporation as a result of the acquisition of those shares, or

(C) unless this subparagraph would, but for this clause, deem control of each predecessor corporation to have been acquired on the amalgamation where the amalgamation is an amalgamation of

(I) two corporations, or

(II) two corporations (in this subclause referred to as the "parents") and one or more other corporations (each of which is in this subclause referred to as a "subsidiary") that would, if all the shares of each subsidiary's capital stock that were held immediately before the amalgamation by the parents had been held by one person, have been controlled by that person;

(c) subject to paragraph (a), where 2 or more persons (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferors") dispose of shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation"), control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the exchange is deemed to have been acquired at the time of the exchange by a person or group of persons unless

(i) the particular corporation and the acquiring corporation were related (otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph 251(5)(b)) to each other immediately before the exchange, or

(ii) if all the shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock that were acquired by the transferors on the exchange were acquired at the time of the exchange by one person, the person would not control the acquiring corporation;

(d) where at any time shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that includes shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time, the acquiring corporation and the particular corporation are controlled by a person or group of persons who

(i) controlled the particular corporation immediately before that time, and

(ii) did not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the disposition, cease to control the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition; and

(e) where at any time all the shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock and, immediately after that time,

(i) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(ii) the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all the assets of the acquiring corporation, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition.

Proposed Amendment — 256(7)(e)

(e) control of a particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before a particular time is deemed not to have been acquired at the particular time by a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") if at the particular time, the acquiring corporation acquires shares of the particular corporation's capital stock for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock, and if

(i) immediately after the particular time

(A) the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation is not controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation, or

(ii) any of clauses (i)(A) to (C) do not apply and the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement that, upon completion, results in

(A) the acquiring corporation (or a new corporation that is formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the acquiring corporation) owning all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock (determined without reference to shares of a specified class, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 88(1)(c.8)),

(B) the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) not being controlled by any person or group of persons, and

(C) the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation) being not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation (or the new corporation).

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 121(4), will amend para. 256(7)(e) to read as above, applicable in respect of shares acquired after 1999.

Technical Notes (December 20, 2002): Paragraph 256(7)(e) provides that, where certain conditions are satisfied, control of a particular corporation will be considered not to have been acquired solely because of a disposition of all of the shares of the particular corporation for consideration consisting solely of shares of the acquiring corporation. These conditions include a requirement that, immediately after the disposition, the acquiring corporation is not controlled by a person or group of persons and that the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all of the assets of the acquiring corporation.

Paragraph 256(7)(e) is amended, for shares acquired after 1999, to ensure that it applies on the acquisition of any shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation by the acquiring corporation if, immediately after the acquisition, the acquiring corporation owns all of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. This provision is also amended to deem control not to be acquired if shares of the particular corporation are acquired as part of a plan of arrangement and, upon completion of the arrangement, the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation (other than shares of a specified class) and the 95% test is met. Thus, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply in circumstances where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation before the acquisition being examined. In addition, amended paragraph 256(7)(e) excludes shares of a specified class, as defined in paragraph 88(1)(c.8), from the determination of whether the acquiring corporation has acquired all of the shares of the particular corporation. Shares of a specified class are excluded on the basis that they are non-voting securities similar to debt and should not be considered in determining whether control has been acquired for the purpose of paragraph 256(7)(e).

This amendment also ensures that, in circumstances where the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement, the acquiring corporation includes a new corporation formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a subsidiary controlled corporation of the acquiring corporation. As a result, paragraph 256(7)(e) may apply to a situation where the acquiring corporation owns shares of the particular corporation indirectly through a subsidiary controlled corporation if the acquiring corporation and the subsidiary controlled corporation are amalgamated as part of a plan of arrangement that includes the acquisition.

(1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1, where at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have the provisions of this subsection apply,

Proposed Amendment — 259(1) opening words

(1) Proportional holdings in trust property — For the purposes of subsections 146(6), (10) and (10.1), 146.1(2.1) and 146.3(7), (8) and (9) and Parts X, X.2, XI and XI.1, if at any time a taxpayer described in section 205 acquires, holds or disposes of a particular unit in a qualified trust and the trust elects for any period that includes that time to have this subsection apply, Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, s. 122, will amend the opening words of subsec. 259(1) to read as above, applicable to 2000 et seq.

Technical Notes (December 20, 2002): Subsection 259(1) provides a "look-through" rule that applies to trusts governed by registered pension plans, registered retirement savings plans and certain other tax-exempt registered plans that acquire units of a "qualified trust". If the qualified trust so elects, each registered plan trust is deemed to acquire, hold and dispose of its proportionate interest in the underlying assets of the qualified trust. This rule can benefit a registered plan trust where the direct investment in the units of the qualified trust would constitute a non-qualified investment or foreign property. By "looking through" to the underlying assets of the qualified trust, a registered plan trust may be able to reduce or eliminate the tax penalties that result from holding non-qualified investments or excessive foreign property.

Subsection 259(1) is amended so that it applies for the purpose of the registration rules for registered education savings plans (RESPs). Under subsection 146.1(2.1), the registration of an RESP is revocable if a trust governed by the plan holds a non-qualified investment. This amendment will permit an RESP trust to make a direct investment in a qualified trust that is itself a non-qualified investment, without jeopardizing the registered status of the RESP, provided the qualified trust restricts its holdings to qualified investments.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 11, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letters concerning the application of the Income Tax Act's securities lending rules to listed units of mutual fund trusts.

In your letters and our subsequent discussions, you represent that listed mutual fund trust units ought to be included as "qualified securities" for purposes of the securities lending arrangements ("SLA") rules in section 260 of the Income Tax Act. You explain that some taxpayers have already made loans of listed mutual fund trust units. You further state that most of the lenders are mutual funds, and suggest that such lenders need to clarify as much as possible their tax position on the lent trust units before their current taxation year ends.

We agree that the attributes of listed mutual fund trust units, in the context of the SLA rules, are very similar to those of listed stocks and bonds. Therefore, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the SLA rules to treat listed mutual fund trust units as "qualified securities" for the purposes of ensuring that there would be no disposition by lenders as a result of the loan of such securities. Subject to further submissions, we would propose that this change apply to loans of listed mutual fund units after 2001.

As you know, we have not been able — based on the material provided to us [xxx] — to reach a decision to recommend changes relating to the income tax treatment of compensation payments received by lenders or of compensation payments made by borrowers. However, we remain open to consider further representations on these issues.

Should this recommendation be acted upon it will be presented in a Technical Bill to be tabled at the first opportunity for consideration by Parliament.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower") with whom the lender deals at arm's length,

Proposed Amendment — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a)

(a) a person (in this section referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this section referred to as the "borrower"),

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(2), will amend para. (a) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes: There are three amendments to the definition "securities lending arrangement".

Paragraph (a) of the existing definition provides that in order for there to be a securities lending arrangement, the lender and the borrower of a security must be dealing at arm's length. The amendment to paragraph (a) extends the definition to include an arrangement entered into by non-arm's length parties. New paragraph (e) provides that where the lender and borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, the arrangement must be of a term not exceeding 270 days and must not be part of a series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions intended to be in effect for more than 270 days.

(b) it may reasonably be expected, at the particular time, that the borrower will transfer or return after the particular time to the lender a security (in this section referred to as an "identical security") that is identical to the security so transferred or lent,

(c) where the qualified security is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period beginning after the particular time and ending at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all amounts, if any, paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period that begins after the particular time and that ends at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender,

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(3), will amend para. (c) of the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Paragraph (c) of the existing definition provides that where a borrowed security is a share, the borrower must be obligated to pay to the lender a dividend compensation payment in order for the transaction to be a securities lending arrangement. This paragraph is amended to apply a comparable requirement in respect of all arrangements. This recognizes and codifies the commercial reality that compensation payments are required to be made by the borrower to the lender in all securities lending arrangements, and not just those arrangements involving shares.

(d) the lender's risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the security is not changed in any material respect,

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(e)

(e) if the lender and the borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, it is not intended that the arrangement, nor any series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions of which the arrangement is a part, be in effect for more than 270 days,

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(4), will add para. (e) to the definition "securities lending arrangement" in subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2002.

Technical Notes: See under 260(1)"securities lending arrangement"(a).

but does not include an arrangement one of the main purposes of which may reasonably be considered to be to avoid or defer the inclusion in income of any gain or profit with respect to the security.

Related Provisions: 112(2.3) — Dividend rental arrangements; 248(1)"securities lending arrangement" — Definition applies to entire Act; 248(12) — Identical properties; 256(6), (6.1) — Meaning of "controlled".

History: Para. (c) of "securities lending arrangement" substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(1), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989. Para. (c) formerly read:

> (c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender amounts equal to and as compensation for all dividends, if any, paid on the security after the particular time and before an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, and

Proposed Addition — 260(1)"security distribution"

"security distribution" means an amount, in respect of a security that is at the time of payment a security borrowed pursuant to a securities lending arrangement, that is paid by the issuer of the security or that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to be an amount received as an amount described in any of paragraphs (5.1)(a) to (c);

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(5), will add the definition "security distribution" to subsec. 260(1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: "Security distribution" is a newly-defined term, introduced not to effect any substantive change to the relevant rules but only for simplicity and clarity. A security distribution is an amount, in respect of a borrowed security, that is either paid by the issuer of the security (for example as a dividend or a trust distribution) or received as a compensation payment.

(2) Non-disposition — Subject to subsections (3) and (4), for the purposes of this Act, any transfer or loan by a lender of a security under a securities lending arrangement shall be deemed not to be a disposition of the security and the security shall be deemed to continue to be property of the lender and, for the purposes of this subsection, a security shall be deemed to include an identical security that has been transferred or returned to the lender under the arrangement.

Related Provisions: 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

(3) Disposition of right — Where, at any time, a lender receives property (other than an identical security or an amount deemed by subsection (4) to have been received as proceeds of disposition) in satisfaction of or in exchange for the lender's right under a securities lending arrangement to receive the transfer or return of an identical security, for the purposes of this Act the lender shall be deemed to have disposed at that time of the security that was transferred or lent for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the property received for the disposition of the right (other than any portion thereof that is deemed to have been received by the lender as a taxable dividend), except that section 51, 85.1, 86 or 87, as the case may be, shall apply in computing the income of the lender with respect to any such disposition as if the security transferred or lent had continued to be the lender's property and the lender had received the property directly.

(4) Idem — Where, at any time, it may reasonably be considered that a lender would have received proceeds of disposition for a security that was transferred or lent under a securities lending arrangement, if the security had not been transferred or lent, the lender shall be deemed to have disposed of the security at that time for those proceeds of disposition.

(5) Deemed dividend — For the purposes of this Act, any amount received (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a corporation under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would otherwise have been deemed by this subsection to be a dividend)

(a) under a securities lending arrangement from a person resident in Canada, or a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation, or

(b) by or from a person who is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada, where the amount is received or paid, as the case may be, in the ordinary course of the business of trading in securities carried on by the dealer, as compensation for a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that is a qualified security shall, to the extent of the amount of that dividend, be deemed to have been received as a taxable dividend on the share from the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 260(5), (5.1)

(5) Where (5.1) applies — Subsection (5.1) applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a particular amount (other than an amount received as proceeds of disposition or an amount received by a person under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive a security distribution that would be deductible in computing the taxable income, or not included in computing the income, for any taxation year of the person) received by the taxpayer in the taxation year, as compensation for a payment (referred to in subsection (5.1) as the "underlying payment") paid on a qualified security, if the particular amount is received

(a) under a securities lending arrangement,

(i) from a person resident in Canada, or

(ii) from a non-resident person who paid the particular amount in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment as defined by regulation;

(b) from a registered securities dealer resident in Canada who paid the particular amount in the ordinary course of a business of trading in securities; or

(c) in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of trading in securities, where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer resident in Canada.

(5.1) Deemed compensation payments — If this subsection applies in respect of a particular amount received by a taxpayer in a taxation year as compensation for an underlying payment, the particular amount is deemed, to the extent of the underlying payment, to have been received by the taxpayer in the taxation year as,

(a) where the underlying payment is a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation (other than an underlying payment to which paragraph (b) applies), a taxable dividend on the share;

(b) where the underlying payment is paid by a trust on a qualified trust unit issued by the trust,

(i) an amount of the trust's income that was, to the extent that subsection 104(13) applied to the underlying payment,

(A) paid by the trust to the taxpayer as a beneficiary under the trust, and

(B) designated by the trust in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of a valid designation, if any, by the trust under this Act in respect of the recipient of the underlying payment, and

(ii) to the extent that the underlying payment is a distribution of a property from the trust, a distribution of that property from the trust; or

(c) in any other case, interest.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(5), in its current form, treats dividend compensation payments that are received under specified circumstances as dividends. The subsection also, however, denies this dividend treatment where the amount is received by a corporation and one of the main reasons for the corporation entering into the arrangement was to enable it to receive an amount that would be treated as a dividend by the subsection.

Subsection 260(5) is reorganized into two subsections. New subsection 260(5) describes the circumstances under which the compensation payment deeming rule, now found in new subsection 260(5.1), applies. The deeming rule applies where an amount is received under a securities lending arrangement under one of these circumstances: from a person resident in Canada, from a person not resident in Canada where the amount was paid in the course of carrying on business in Canada through a permanent establishment, or from or by a registered securities dealer. These are essentially the same as the circumstances specified prior to the amendment.

Also, the anti-avoidance rule in this subsection — which currently addresses only the case of an amount that would otherwise be received by a corporation as a dividend — is amended to include all otherwise non-taxable amounts that may be received under a securities lending arrangement, by any person. This amendment recognizes that with the introduction of qualified trust units as "qualified securities," a person may be treated as having received any of several kinds of non-taxable amounts.

New subsection 260(5.1) treats a given compensation payment as one of three things: a dividend, an amount paid by a trust and having the same characteristics, source and purpose as the "underlying payment" amount paid by the trust directly, or interest. The overall effect of the provision is, in addition to replicating the former dividend deeming rule, to deem compensation payments in respect of payments from a trust to have the same characteristics, source and purpose as if the amounts were paid by the trust.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(6), will amend subsec. 260(5) to read as above, and add subsec. (5.1), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(w) — No deduction for underlying payment deemed received by another person; 260(5) — Conditions for 260(5.1) to apply; 260(6) — Deductibility of compensation for security distribution; 260(7) — Dividend refund.

Proposed Amendment — 260(6)

(6) Deductibility — In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year, there may be deducted, in respect of an amount (referred to in this subsection as a "compensation amount") paid by the taxpayer in the year as compensation for a security distribution, an amount equal to

(a) if the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer and the security distribution is, or is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been, received as a taxable dividend, no more than 2/3 of the compensation amount; or

(b) if the security distribution is in respect of an amount other than an amount that is, or is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been, received as a taxable dividend,

(i) where the taxpayer disposes of the borrowed security and includes the gain or loss, if any, from the disposition in the computing its income from a business, the compensation amount, or

(ii) in any other case, the lesser of

(A) the compensation amount, and

(B) the amount, if any, in respect of the security distribution that is included in computing the income, and not deducted in computing the taxable income, for any taxation year of the taxpayer or of any person to whom the taxpayer is related.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(6), will amend subsec. 260(6) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(6) limits the extent to which a person who makes a dividend compensation payment under a securities lending arrangement may deduct the payment in computing income from a business or property. In brief, the subsection denies a deduction for any dividend compensation payment made by persons other than registered securities dealers, and provides that registered securities dealers may deduct up to 2/3 of the dividend compensation payments they make.

Amended subsection 260(6) retains this 2/3 dividend compensation payment deduction for registered securities dealers. It also allows any taxpayer — including but not limited to registered securities dealers — a deduction in respect of compensation amounts that are not dividend compensation payments. The amount of this new deduction is computed differently depending on the actions of the taxpayer in question (the one who made the payment and seeks to deduct it). If the taxpayer has disposed of the borrowed security and has included any resulting gain or loss in computing business income, the compensation amount is fully deductible. In any other case, new subsection 260(6) allows a deduction to the extent of the lesser of (i) the compensation amount and (ii) the amount included in the taxable income of the taxpayer or persons related to it.

Related Provisions: 82(1)(a)(ii)(B) — Amount deemed received by another person excluded from taxable dividends of individual; 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"(d)) [to be repealed], (b)(ii)(B) [draft] — Dividend rental arrangement where 260(5) applies; 260(10)–(12) — Application to partnerships.

History: Para. 260(5)(b) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(1), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989. Para. (b) formerly read:

(b) by or from a person resident in Canada who is registered or licensed under the laws of a province to trade in securities where the amount is received or paid, as the case may be, in the ordinary course of the business of trading or dealing in securities carried on by that person,

Regulations: 8201 (permanent establishment).

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-67R3: Taxable dividends from corporations resident in Canada.

(6) Non-deductibility — In computing a taxpayer's income under Part I from a business or property

(a) where the taxpayer is not a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend; and

(b) where the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer, no deduction shall be made in respect of more than 2/3 of that amount.

Related Provisions: 260(6.1) — Deductible amount; 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989. Subsec. (6) formerly read:

(6) In computing the income of a taxpayer under Part I from a business or property, no deduction shall be made in respect of an amount that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

(6.1) Deductible amount — Notwithstanding subsection (6), there may be deducted in computing a corporation's income under Part I from a business or property for a taxation year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Proposed Amendment — 260(6.1)(a)

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraph (b) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend, and

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(3), will amend para. 260(6.1)(a) to read as above, applicable to

(a) arrangements made after December 20, 2002;

(b) an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to subsection 260(5.1)" in the para. is to be read as "subsection 260(5)"; and

(c) an arrangement, other than an arrangement to which para. (b) above applies, made after 2001 and before December 21, 2002, except that, in its application before December 21, 2002, the para. is to be read as follows:

"(a) the amount that the corporation is obligated to pay to another person under an arrangment described in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) that, if paid, would be deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend,".

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(6.1) provides a deduction for dividend compensation payments made pursuant to certain dividend rental arrangements. The amount deductible is the lesser of the amount the corporation is obligated to pay as compensation under the arrangement and the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income as amounts which are not deductible because of subsection 112(2.3).

Paragraph 260(6.1)(a) is amended to clarify that the amount described in that paragraph is the total of all amounts that the corporation becomes obligated in the taxation year to pay to another person as compensation under certain dividend rental arrangements.

Also, paragraph 260(6.1)(a) of the English version of the Act is amended, as a consequence of the amendments to the definition "dividend rental arrangement" in subsection 248(1) of the Act, by replacing the reference to "paragraphs (c) and (d)" of that definition to a reference to "paragraph (b)" of that definition.

(b) the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement that were identified in its return of income under Part I for the year as an amount in respect of which no amount was deductible because of subsection 112(2.3) in computing the taxpayer's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada.

Related Provisions: 260(7)(b) — No dividend refund on amount deductible under 260(6.1); 260(10), (11) — Application to partnerships.

History: Subsec. 260(6.1) added by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made

(a) after April 1989, where the corporation has elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), except that, for the purposes of para. 260(6.1)(b), a dividend received after April 1989 and before July 1994 that was identified in the corporation's return of income under Part I of the Act for its first taxation year that ends after June 22, 1995 shall be deemed to have been identified in its return of income under that Part for its taxation year in which the dividend was received; and

(b) after June 1994, in any other case.

(7) Dividend refund — For the purposes of section 129,

(a) any amount paid by a corporation that is not a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)), and

(b) ⅓ of any amount paid by a corporation that is a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1)) that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Proposed Amendment — 260(7)

(7) Dividend refund — For the purposes of section 129,

(a) any amount paid by a corporation that is not a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection 260(6.1)), and

(b) 1/3 of any amount paid by a corporation that is a registered securities dealer (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection 260(6.1)) that is deemed by subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend is deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(8), will amend subsec. 260(7) to read as above, applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(7) provides that, where a corporation makes a payment which is deemed by the former subsection 260(5) to be a taxable dividend, the corporation will also be entitled to treat the amount as the payment of a dividend for the purposes of section 129 of the Act.

The postamble of the English version of subsection 260(7) is amended to replace the reference "subsection 260(5)" with "subsection 260(5.1)".

History: Subsec. 260(7) amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 75(2), applicable to payments made after June 1989, except that in its application to payments made after June 1989 and before July 1994 with respect to a corporation that has not elected under subsec. 74(3) (of 1995, c. 21 — see under 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement"), subsec. 260(7) shall be read without reference to the expression "(other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1))". Subsec. (7) formerly read:

(7) For the purposes of section 129, any amount paid by a corporation that is deemed by subsection (5) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend shall be deemed to have been paid by the corporation as a taxable dividend.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-243R4: Dividend refund to private corporations.

(8) Non-resident withholding tax — For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the security, be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security,

(ii) the amount paid or credited shall, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the security, be deemed for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the security, and

(iii) the security shall be deemed to be a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) if it is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1), and

(b) any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, where the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not under the arrangement pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the amount, if any, by which

(i) interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement

exceeds

(ii) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money shall be deemed to be an amount paid under the arrangement by the borrower to the lender as a fee for the use of the security, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, and, for the purposes of Part XIII and any agreement or convention between the Government of Canada and the government of another country that has the force of law in Canada, any amount deemed by this subsection (other than subparagraph (a)(i) or (ii)) to be a payment of interest shall be deemed not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Proposed Amendment — 260(8)–(8.2)

(8) Non-resident witholding tax — For the purpose of Part XIII, any amount paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender

(a) as compensation for any security distribution paid in respect of the borrowed security is, except as provided in paragraph (b) or (c), deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest,

(b) as compensation for any security distribution in respect of a borrowed security that is a qualified trust unit, is deemed, to the extent of the amount of the security distribution, to be an amount paid by the trust and having the same character and composition as the security distribution;

(c) if the borrowed security is not a qualified trust unit and throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement, the borrower has provided the lender under the arrangement with money in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the borrowed security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of all or substantially all income derived from, and opportunity for gain with respect of, the money or securities,

(i) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest or dividend paid in respect of the borrowed security, deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the borrowed security, and

(ii) is, to the extent of the amount of the interest, if any, paid in respect of the borrowed security, deemed

(A) for the purpose of subparagraph 212(1)(b)(vii) to have been payable by the issuer of the borrowed security, and

(B) to have been payable on a security that is a security described in subparagraph 212(1)(b)(ii) if the borrowed security is a security described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1); and

(d) as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the borrowed security is deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest.

Technical Notes: Subsection 260(8) applies special rules, for the purposes of Part XIII of the Act, to payments made under securities lending arrangements. The subsection has two main aspects: rules that ensure the appropriate treatment for Part XIII purposes of compensation payments; and a rule that in certain circumstances will treat a borrower as having paid to a lender a "borrow fee".

The subsection is rearranged into three separate subsections. Amended subsection 260(8) retains the previous rules for compensation payments relating to interest and dividends, confining them to amounts paid on a security that is not a qualified trust unit. Subsection 260(8) also provides for compensation payments made in respect of a borrowed qualified trust unit: these are treated as payments from a trust and as having the same character and composition as the trust payments for which they compensate.

(8.1) Deemed fee for borrowed security — For the purpose of paragraph (8)(d), if under a securities lending arrangement the borrower has at any time provided the lender with money, either as collateral or consideration for the security, and the borrower does not, under the arrangement, pay or credit a reasonable amount to the lender as, on account of, in lieu of payment of or in satisfaction of, a fee for the use of the security, the borrower is deemed to have, at the time that an identical security is or can reasonably be expected to be transferred or returned to the lender, paid to the lender under the arrangement an amount as a fee for the use of the security equal to the amount, if any, by which

(a) interest on the money computed at the prescribed rates in effect during the term of the arrangement,

(b) the amount, if any, by which any amount that the lender pays or credits to the borrower under the arrangement exceeds the amount of the money.

(8.2) Effect for tax treaties — In applying subsection (8) any amount, paid or credited under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender, that is deemed by paragraph (8)(a), (b) or (d) to be a payment of interest, is deemed for the purposes of any tax treaty not to be payable on or in respect of the security.

Technical Notes: New subsection 260(8.1) provides for a deemed borrow fee, on the same basis as the existing paragraph 260(8)(b). New subsection 260(8.2) similarly preserves the effect of the existing postamble to subsection 260(8) in relation to tax treaties.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(8), will replace subsec. 260(8) with subsecs. 260(8)–(8.2), applicable to arrangements made after 2001.

Related Provisions: 212(1)(b)(xii), (xiii), 212(2.1) — Exemptions from non-resident withholding tax; 212(19) — Special tax on securities dealers re non-resident withholding tax exemption; 260(8.1) — Deemed fee for 260(8)(d); 260(8.2) — Effect for tax treaty purposes.

History: Subpara. 260(8)(a)(iii) added by 1994, c. 21, s. 116, applicable to securities lending arrangements entered into after May 28, 1993.

Subsec. 260(8) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 199(2), applicable to transfers, loans and payments made after April 26, 1989, except that, in its application to transfers, loans and payments made before May 27, 1989, para. 260(8)(a) shall be read as follows:

(a) any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, on the security; and

Subsec. 260(8) formerly read:

(8) For the purposes of Part XIII,

(a) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid in respect of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest, except that where, throughout the term of the securities lending arrangement the borrower has provided to the lender under the arrangement cash in an amount of, or securities described in paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified security" in subsection (1) that have a fair market value of, not less than 95% of the fair market value of the security and the borrower is entitled to enjoy, directly or indirectly, the benefits of substantially all income derived from and opportunity for gain with respect to the cash or securities, the payment shall be deemed to be a payment by the borrower to the lender of interest or a dividend, as the case may be, payable on the security; and

(b) any payment made under a securities lending arrangement by or on behalf of a borrower of a security to the lender for the use of the security shall be deemed to be a payment made by the borrower to the lender of interest and, for the purposes of this paragraph, any profit earned by the lender that may reasonably be considered to have resulted from the securities lending arrangement, other than any payment made by or on behalf of the borrower to the lender as compensation for any interest or dividend paid on the security, shall be deemed to be a payment made under the securities lending arrangement by the borrower of the security to the lender for the use of the security.

(9) Restricted financial institution — For the purposes of subsection 187.3(1), where at any time a dividend is received by a restricted financial institution on a share that was last acquired before that time pursuant to an obligation of a borrower to return or transfer a share under a securities lending arrangement, an acquisition of the share under the arrangement shall be deemed at and after that time not to be an acquisition of the share.

Proposed Addition — 260(10)–(12)

(10) Partnerships — For the purpose of this section,

(a) a person includes a partnership; and

(b) a partnership is deemed to be a registered securities dealer if each member of the partnership is a registered securities dealer.

Technical Notes: A "securities lending arrangement" (SLA) is defined in subsection 260(1) of the Act as a particular transaction between two persons: the "lender" and the "borrower" of a security. A partnership — which for most purposes of the Act is not a person — can be a party to a transaction that would be an SLA if the partnership were a person. In such a case, it is appropriate in policy terms for the arrangement to be treated as an SLA. New subsections (10), (11) and (12) are added to section 260 to bring partnerships within the SLA rules.

New subsection 260(10) provides that, for the purposes of section 260, a person includes a partnership. This allows a partnership to be either the borrower or the lender in respect of an SLA. The subsection also treats a partnership as a registered securities dealer, if all of its members are themselves registered securities dealers.

Related Provisions: 260(11) — Corporate partners.

(11) Corporate members of partnerships — A corporation that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed,

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of its specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership;

(b) for the purpose of applying paragraph (6.1)(a) in respect of the taxation year, to become obligated to pay its specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of the amount the partnership becomes, in that fiscal period, obligated to pay to another person under the arrangement described in that paragraph; and

(c) for the purpose of applying section 129 in respect of the taxation year, to have paid

(i) if the partnership is not a registered securities dealer, the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation), and

(ii) if the partnership is a registered securities dealer, 1/3 of the corporation's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount paid by the partnership (other than an amount for which a deduction in computing income may be claimed under subsection (6.1) by the corporation).

Technical Notes: A transaction's status as an SLA is relevant to, among other things, the tax treatment of amounts paid and received in compensation for dividends or interest on the security that is transferred or lent. New subsections 260(11) and (12) are added to ensure the appropriate treatment of these amounts in a case where a corporation or an individual is a member of a partnership that has entered into an SLA.

Under new paragraph 260(11)(a), a corporation that is a member of a partnership is treated for the purpose of subsection 260(5) as having received its "specified proportion" (now defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act) of each compensation payment or amount in respect of proceeds of disposition that is described in subsection 260(5) and was received by the partnership. It is also treated as being the same person as the partnership, thus ensuring that the partnership's reasons for entering into the arrangement (which are relevant to the applicability of the subsection) are attributed to the corporation.

New paragraph 260(11)(b) treats the corporation as being obligated to pay its specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment described in paragraph 260(6.1)(a).

New paragraph 260(11)(c) treats the corporation, for the purpose of applying the dividend refund rules in section 129 of the Act, as having paid its specified proportion of each non-deductible dividend compensation payment made by the partnership.

(12) Individual members of partnerships — An individual that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership is deemed,

(a) for the purpose of applying subsection (5) in respect of the taxation year,

(i) to receive the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and

(ii) in respect of the receipt of the individual's specified proportion of that amount, to be the same person as the partnership; and

(b) for the purpose of clause 82(1)(a)(ii)(B), to have paid the individual's specified proportion, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount paid by the partnership in that fiscal period that is deemed by subsection (5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 260(12)(a) performs for individuals who are members of a partnership the same functions as new paragraph 260(11)(a) does for corporations that are partners.

New paragraph 260(12)(b) treats an individual partner as having paid, for the purpose of clause 82(1)(a)(ii)(B), the individual's specified proportion of each dividend compensation payment paid by the partnership that is deemed by new subsection 260(5.1) to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

Application: The February 27, 2004 draft legislation, subsec. 123(9), will add subsecs. 260(10) to (12), applicable to arrangements made after December 20, 2002; and to an arrangement made after November 2, 1998 and before December 21, 2002 if the parties to the arrangement have made the election described in the Application note to the amendment to 248(1)"dividend rental arrangement", except that, in its application to an arrangement made before 2002, the reference to subsection 260(5.1)" in para. 260(12)(b) is to be read as "subsection 260(5)"

Definitions [s. 260]: "amount", "business" — 248(1); "corporation" — 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "individual" — 248(1); "mutual fund trust" — 132(6)–(7),132.2(3)(n), 248(1); "non-resident", "prescribed" — 248(1); "qualified trust unit" — 260(1); "regulation" — 248(1); "related" — 251(2)–(6); "security distribution" — 260(1); "tax treaty", "taxable income", "taxpayer" — 248(1); "trust" — 104(1), 248(1), (3); "underlying payment" — 260(5).

Grandfathering of Various Amendments Announced on April 26, 1995: 1998, c. 19, s. 247 reads as follows:

247. (1) Exception to coming-into-force — Subsections 73(4), 74(5), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2) and subsections 89(1), (2) and (6), 94(1) and (2), 95(1), 116(3) to (5), 120(1) and 124(1) and (2) do not apply to the disposition of property by a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (2) referred to as the "transferor") that occurred before 1996

(b) in a transaction, or as part of a series of transactions, the arrangements for which, evidenced in writing, were substantially advanced before April 27, 1995, other than a transaction or series a main purpose of which can reasonably be considered to have been to enable an unrelated person to obtain the benefit of

(i) any deduction in computing income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or tax payable under the Act, or

(ii) any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts.

(2) Election — Notwithstanding subsection (1), subsection 18(13) of the Act, as enacted by subsection 79(2), and the other subsections of this Act referred to in subsection (1) apply to a disposition in respect of which the transferor has filed with the Minister of National Revenue before the end of the third month after the month in which this Act is assented to [i.e., before October 1998 — ed.] an election in writing to have those subsections apply.

(3) Interpretation — For the purpose of subsection (1),

(a) a person shall be considered not to be obliged to acquire property where the person can be excused from the obligation if there is a change to the Act or if there is an adverse assessment under the Act;

(b) an "unrelated person" means any person who was not, or a partnership any member of which was not, related (otherwise than because of paragraph 251(5)(b) of the Act) to the transferor at the time of the disposition; and

(c) a person is deemed to be related to a partnership of which that person is a majority interest partner.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 11, 2000:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated October 3, 2000 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] will be to provide loans to [xxx] investors [xxx]. We also understand that [xxx] will be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for LCT purpose [xxx].

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of shares or debt in [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of its date of incorporation, September 25, 2000. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 1, 2001.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, March 6, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter dated December 18, 1998 on behalf of [xxx] requesting that it be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). As you are aware, the need for additional information to develop a clearer understanding of [xxx] business necessitated several exchanges of information between your colleagues and [xxx] principal and my officials. Nonetheless, I apologize for the delay in concluding our decision in this case.

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and corporations for investment in SEC-approved U.S. mutual funds and other securities. We also understand that [xxx] competes with banks, trust companies, credit unions and other prescribed financial institutions for clients. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask [xxx] to advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

You have advised that some of [xxx] funding is received from third party corporations that would potentially lose entitlement to an LCT investment allowance if [xxx] were prescribed. The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with an additional delay where necessary to protect third party investors. Based on the information you have provided, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as of January 1, 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 9, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated November 13, 2000 requesting that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purpose of the Large Corporations Tax ("LCT") in Part I.3 of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

It is our understanding that the principal business of [xxx] is to provide loans to individuals and closely-held private entities to finance automobiles, real estate and general consumer and commercial needs. We understand that [xxx] income is primarily comprised of the spread between its interest revenue on these loans and the interest cost of its own financing. You advised that [xxx] competes with banks and other prescribed financial institutions such as automotive credit corporations and other retail and small business lenders. You have indicated that [xxx] does not carry on any leasing business.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution for the purposes of the LCT. We ask that [xxx] advise us, however, if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its status for LCT purposes can be re-examined.

The Department's policy is to recommend prescribing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. According to the documentation you provided [xxx] does not have any third party investors that would lose an investment allowance as a result of [xxx] being prescribed as a financial institution. Based on this, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed with effect from the beginning of its taxation year beginning January 1, 2002. This recommendation will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by [xxx] is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to January 1, 2002. For greater certainty, the existence of banker's acceptances drawn by [xxx] would not be considered to violate this condition since they are effectively considered for LCT purposes to be held by the accepting bank rather than the third party investors who buy them.

Since prescription must be formally effected through a regulation approved by Cabinet, I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 29, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is further to your letter of September 25, 2001, in which you advise of your client's change in name from [xxx]. As you note, our letter of December 10, 1998 confirmed our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act, and you now request that this recommendation reflect this name change.

We understand from your letter that [xxx] continues to conduct the same business activities as were carried on prior to this name change, and upon which our earlier decision was made to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed. We also understand from the Certificate of Name Change, enclosed with your letter, that this change was effective [xxx]. Given these understandings, we confirm that our recommendation to treat [xxx] as a financial institution will reflect this name change as of the date it took effect.

As you know, I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, January 14, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letters dated October 2, 2001 and October 31, 2002, in which you request that two companies — one of which is not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as "[xxx] Newco" — be prescribed under paragraph (g) of the definition of "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

As you may know, the proposals announced on December 20, 2002 to amend the Act provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule to the Act.

It is our understanding that the principal business of Newco will be to carry out the functions of a credit card issuer pursuant to an agreement with a sister corporation, [xxx] will continue to be liable to the credit card company and its members as the named issuer, and cardmember agreements will remain between [xxx] and the cardholders. Newco will, however, own the indebtedness under such credit card accounts, and borrow funds from related corporations to finance its loans to cardholders.

In respect of the other corporation [xxx] of [xxx] we understand that it currently operates as a "private label" credit card issuer and acquirer for Canadian retailers. It raises funds from related corporations.

We also understand that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] will, in carrying on their credit card businesses, be in direct competition with banks and other corporations that are financial institutions for Part I.3 purposes.

Based on these understandings, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco and [xxx] be listed in the schedule to the Act for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1). However, we ask that each of [xxx] and [xxx] Newco (once incorporated) provide us with a note explaining that it will advise us if the nature of the company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

I understand from your letter and conversations you have had with Ryan Hall of this Division that you have asked that [xxx] be listed with effect for taxation years ending after December 30, 2002, and that [xxx] Newco be listed effective as of its date of incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. You have advised that, upon its incorporation, there will be no arm's length holders of debt in Newco that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this and that [xxx] Newco has not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] Newco be listed as of its date of incorporation. With respect to [xxx] we are prepared to recommend that it be listed as a financial institution effective for taxation years beginning after 2002, given your assurance that it has not raised any public debt. Both recommendations will be made on the condition that no debt (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1) of the Act) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to December 31, 2003.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of [xxx] Newco if it is incorporated before December 31, 2003, following which time any request to list this company will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation date and the name of the [xxx] Newco be provided to us shortly after its incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 16, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of March 25, 2003, concerning the proposed treatment of [xxx] as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act. As you note in your letter, the proposed amendments to the Act released on December 20, 2002 provide that [xxx] change in status will be effective after December 30, 2000. You now ask that we recommend changing the proposed measures so that [xxx] change in status will not be effective until after December 31, 2002.

Our letter of June 30, 2000, which responded to your letter of June 30, 1999, indicated our intention to recommend that [xxx] be prescribed as a financial institution, effective for its taxation year ending December 31, 2000 and subsequent years. However, we made our recommendation conditional upon no debt (other than long term debt as defined in subsection 181(1)) having been issued by [xxx] and held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution as defined in that subsection) prior to June 30, 2001.

You explain that [xxx] has not issued debt in the public market, given its understanding that doing so before actually becoming a prescribed (now listed) financial institution would jeopardize its prescription request. As we understand it, it would seem as though [xxx] operated as if it would not be treated as a financial institution as of either December 31, 2000 or June 30, 2001. Rather, it would appear as though [xxx] and other members of its corporate group, have operated since December 31, 2000 as if [xxx] would not be treated as a financial institution until measures were adopted to that effect. As we understand it, certain investments made from within the group to [xxx] during this time would not qualify as investment allowance inclusions if the effective date of [xxx] change in status as currently proposed were to be adopted. As a result, you explain that the corporate group would incur greater tax liability under Part I.3 for the 2000, 2001, and 2002 taxation years than would be the case if [xxx] were not treated as a financial institution for these years.

Given that these extraordinary circumstances were in part created by the delay in finalizing the process by which to list [xxx] as a financial institution, we consider that it would be appropriate to recommend the change you have requested. To that end, we intend to recommend that the proposed amendment to the Act be changed so that [xxx] will be listed effective after 2002.

I cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Cabinet will agree with the recommendation that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Letter from Dept. of Finance, October 22, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of August 15, 2002, as well as [xxx] facsimile to Ryan Hall, of the Tax Legislation Division, dated November 6, 2002, concerning [xxx] (the corporation). As you know, we provided the corporation with two letters dated April 9, and May 15, 2001 indicating our intention to recommend that the corporation be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act effective January 1, 2002, and the proposed technical amendments to the Act released December 20, 2002 incorporate this recommendation. You now advise that the corporation has changed its name to [xxx], effective May 1, 2002, and request that the proposed amendments be updated to reflect this change.

Given our understanding that this name change does not materially affect the activities of the corporation as a financial institution, we are prepared to recommend that the proposed amendments be modified as requested.

I trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

[Similar letters dated Oct. 15, 2003 and Oct. 22, 2003 to two other corporations — ed.]

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 23, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated August 30, 2002, in which you request that [xxx] (the Company) be treated as a financial institution for the purposes of paragraph (g) of the definition "financial institution" in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be prescribed under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand that the Company carries on a nation-wide business of originating and acquiring residential mortgages, scrutinizing and selling mortgage loans in the capital market, investing in and servicing a portfolio of mortgage loans and mortgage-backed securities, and originating construction loans and lines of credit for medium and large homebuilders. You describe the income earned from these activities as falling within three categories: gains on the sale of mortgage-backed securities or pools of mortgage loans; portfolio income derived from the spread between the yields on its mortgage loans, lines of credit, and securities held on its balance sheet and the costs of liabilities used to fund these income sources; and fee income from originating mortgages and lines of credit, as well as for servicing the mortgage loans or securitizations.

You advise that the Company is in direct competition with banks and other corporations treated as financial institutions for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act, particularly those corporations carrying on residential mortgage businesses.

Based on the foregoing, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed in the schedule. However, we ask that the Company provide us with written assurances that it will advise the Department if the nature of the Company's business changes, so that its treatment as a financial institution for these purposes may be re-examined.

I understand from conversations your colleague, [xxx] has had with Ryan Hall of this Division that the Company requests that it be listed with effect for the 2003 and subsequent taxation years. The Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third party investors. [xxx] has advised that there are no current or anticipated arm's length holders of debt in the Company that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if it were listed. Based on this, and the date of your request, we are prepared to recommend that the Company be listed with effect as requested. However, this recommendation will be made provided no debt issued by the Company (other than long-term debt within the meaning of subsection 181(1)) is held by any unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution within the meaning of that subsection) prior to July 2004.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 27, 2004:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter of June 25, 2003, in which you request that two companies — both of which are not yet incorporated, and to which you refer as [xxx] and [xxx] — be listed as financial institutions under paragraph (g) of the "financial institution" definition in subsection 181(1) of the Income Tax Act.

As you know, the proposed amendments to the Act announced in December 2002 and reiterated in February 2004 provide for, among other things, a fundamental change in the manner in which corporations are identified under paragraph (g) as being financial institutions. Rather than listing these corporations in a regulation, this new approach is to list them in a schedule to the Act. It is proposed that this change be made effective after December 22, 1997. As a result, requests to be treated as financial institutions under this paragraph with effective dates after December 22, 1997 — as is the case with your request — will be treated as requests to be listed in the schedule.

We understand from your letter and discussions with Ryan Hall, of this Division, that this request is made in the context of a proposed tax structure, in which two corporations [xxx] would borrow funds (which would not qualify as "long-term debt" for the purposes of Part I.3 of the Act) from third-party lenders through a partnership ("Partnership A"). [xxx] which the above-noted legislative proposals add to the schedule to the Act effective after December 30, 2001, would also be a partner of Partnership A until at least July 2004. Partnership A would in turn incorporate another corporation ([xxx]), with which Partnership A would form another partnership ("Partnership B"). Partnership A would contribute the borrowed funds to Partnership B, which in turn would loan the funds to various related financial institutions resident in Canada ("the related financial institutions").

Although you advise that the structure is not intended to produce income tax benefits under Part I of the Act, adopting the proposed structure would increase the Part I.3 tax liability of the corporate group, which presently borrows third-party funds through a related financial institution. By virtue of being a financial institution, this related financial institution does not include in its taxable capital indebtedness that is not long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes. [xxx] on the other hand, would include such borrowings in their taxable capital, since they would not be financial institutions under any of the paragraphs in the "financial institution" definition, including under subparagraph (g)(ii) of the definition.

Although ostensibly outside the technical scope of the definition, you suggest that [xxx] fall within the policy intent of subparagraph (g)(ii), given that all of their assets are interests in a tiered partnership structure of which the underlying assets are indebtedness of financial institutions with which [xxx] are related. While you suggest in your letter that there may be a basis in law to argue that Partnerships A and B can be disregarded in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under the subparagraph, it would appear (judging from the position taken by the Canada Revenue Agency in its technical interpretation numbered 9712385, to which you refer) that CRA considers the better view to be that the assets of a partnership of which a corporation is a member are not considered in applying subparagraph (g)(ii) to the corporation. Listing [xxx] would therefore seem to be the only way in which, under the proposed structure, the corporations could attain financial institution status for Part I.3 purposes.

Looking only at the policy underlying Part I.3, we agree that it would be appropriate in the present case to disregard Partnerships A and B in determining whether [xxx] are financial institutions under subparagraph (g)(ii), and are prepared to recommend that the corporations be listed strictly on that basis. We therefore ask that each corporation, once incorporated, provide us with a note undertaking to advise the Department if its assets or those of Partnerships A and B change such that it may no longer be reasonably said that all or substantially all of its assets, whether held directly or through the partnerships, are shares or debt of a related financial institution, so that its status under paragraph (g) can be re-examined.

You request that both corporations be listed with effect from the date of their incorporation. As you know, the Department's policy is to recommend listing a corporation on a fully prospective basis with additional time delays where necessary to protect third-party investors. You have advised that, upon their incorporation, no arm's length party will hold debt in either of [xxx] that would potentially lose entitlement to a Part I.3 investment allowance if either of the corporations were listed. Based on this and the fact that they have not yet been incorporated, we are prepared to recommend that [xxx] be listed as of their date of incorporation. These recommendations will be made provided no debt (other than long-term debt, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) issued by either corporation is held by an unrelated corporation (other than a financial institution, as defined for Part I.3 purposes) prior to July 2004.

Further, this recommendation will only be made in respect of either corporation if it is incorporated before December 31, 2004, following which time any request for financial institution status will be assessed anew.

To facilitate this request, we ask that the incorporation dates and names of the corporations be provided to us shortly after their incorporation.

I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, I trust this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

(b) for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 of the amended Act and any regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of that Act, the undepreciated capital cost to the partnership of property of that class as of any time after 1971 shall be computed as though the amount, if any, by which the capital cost of that class to the partnership exceeds the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class had been allowed to the partnership in respect of property of that class under regulations made under paragraph 20(1)(a) of the amended Act in computing income for taxation years before that time;

(c) in computing the income for the 1972 and subsequent taxation years of each person who was a member of the partnership on June 18, 1971 and thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971, there may be deducted such amount as the person claims for the year, not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total of

(B) the percentage, equal to the person's percentage in respect of property of that class, of the undepreciated cost to the partnership of that class, exceeds the total of all amounts deducted under this paragraph in computing the person's income for preceding taxation years; and, for the purposes of section 3 of the amended Act, the amount so claimed shall be deemed to be a deduction permitted by subdivision e of Division B of Part I of that Act; and

(d) notwithstanding paragraph (c), a person who became a member of the partnership after June 18, 1971 and who was a member of the partnership thereafter without interruption until December 31, 1971 shall be deemed to be a person described in paragraph (c) and the amount that may be claimed thereunder as a deduction in computing the person's income for any taxation year shall not exceed 10% of the total of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (c)(i) and (ii).

(a) in the case of a payment or payments of a class described in subsection (1) made to the taxpayer on the death of an employee or former employee in respect of whom the payment or payments are made, the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3) or (4);

(b) in the case of one or more single payments of a class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom under subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,500 by the number of consecutive 12 month periods included in the period throughout which the taxpayer was a member of any plan or plans described in subparagraph (1)(a)(i), (iii) or (iv) (in this subsection referred to as a "retirement plan"),

(I) out of or under which a payment was made to the taxpayer in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year ending after April 26, 1965, and

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom pursuant to subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,000 by the number of years during which the taxpayer was an employee of the employer who made the payment

exceeds

(B) the total of

(I) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 by an employer referred to in clause (A) or a payment to the taxpayer after that date out of or under a retirement plan to which such an employer made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, was deemed not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act for a preceding taxation year by reason of an election made by the taxpayer under subsection (1), and

(II) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of a payment to the taxpayer after April 26, 1965 out of or under a retirement plan to which an employer referred to in clause (A) made a contribution on behalf of the taxpayer, may be deemed, by subsection (1), not to be income of the taxpayer for the purpose of that Part for the taxation year.

(ii) the amount by which the amount referred to in subparagraph (i) is increased by virtue of section 27 of the Federal-Provincial Fiscal Arrangements Act;

(f) the employee's notional rate of tax for a year is calculated by dividing the amount determined under paragraph (e) by the amount referred to in the description of A in paragraph (c) in respect of that employee and expressed as a decimal fraction rounded to the nearest hundredth, or where the third digit is equidistant from two consecutive one-thousandths, to the higher thereof;

(g) the amount to be deducted or withheld in respect of any payment made to that employee shall be determined by multiplying the payment by the appropriate decimal fraction determined pursuant to paragraph (f).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, November 19, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your fax letter of October 17, 2001 to Joseph Lam of this Division, regarding the income taxation of foreign bank branches, particularly under Income Tax Regulation 105. That provision requires tax to be withheld from amounts paid to a non-resident in respect of services.

In your letter, you explain that your client currently operates in Canada through a wholly owned subsidiary and renders services to its customers in Canada. Also, your client is in the process of establishing an "authorized foreign bank" (the "Branch") within the meaning of subsection 248(1) of the Income Tax Act. You are concerned that after the establishment of the Branch the application of Regulation 105 would require substantial revision of the existing service agreements of your clients, which is a prohibitively expensive exercise. You further explain that effective January 1, 2002 your client will make periodic instalment payments with respect to its Part I tax liabilities and will maintain a significant presence in Canada.

Therefore, you request confirmation (a) that Regulation 105(1) is not intended to apply to authorized foreign banks and (b) that our Department will introduce amendments to explicitly provide that no withholding is required.

In response to your request, we would like to explain that Regulation 105 in its present form applies to all payments for services paid to non-residents. However, we recognize that such a withholding requirement under Regulation 105 is excessive in the case of authorized foreign banks. Therefore, it is our general intention to propose to moderate the requirements. Although the details of any proposals remain to be determined, they should generally provide exemption to the resident payer from the withholding obligation. It is also our intention to recommend that the changes be effective after June 27, 1999 coinciding with the other aspects of the taxation rules of authorized foreign bank.

While our views on this issue are subject to further refinement and I can offer no assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we expect that measures along the lines I have described will be included in the next package of draft income tax technical amendments.

I trust that the above will satisfy your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Letter from Dept. of Finance, October 23, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your letter of October 10, 2001 to Joseph Lam of this Division, regarding the income taxation of foreign bank branches, particularly under Income Tax Regulation 105. That provision requires tax to be withheld from amounts paid to a non-resident in respect of services.

In your letter, you express your concerns that the withholding obligation in Regulation 105 is inequitable and results in financial hardship to your client. You explain that the fees being paid are earned in the Canadian banking business of your client, in respect of which your client makes regular tax instalments, and the additional withholding burden would adversely impact the cash flows of your client. As a result, you request legislative relief to address this type of situation and a comfort letter that our Department intends to recommend that this legislation be retroactive to the business commencement date of a foreign bank branch.

In response to your representation, we recognize that the current withholding requirement under Regulation 105 is probably excessive from a policy perspective. Therefore, it is our general intention to propose to moderate the requirements. Although the details of any proposals remain to be determined, they should generally provide exemption to the resident payer from the withholding obligation. It is also our intention to recommend that the changes be effective after June 27, 1999, which coincides with the other aspects of the taxation rules of authorized foreign banks.

While our views on this issue are subject to further refinement and I can offer no assurance that the Minister will accept our recommendations, we expect that measures along the lines I have described will be included in the next package of draft income tax technical amendments.

I trust that the above will satisfy your requirements.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 231(6)(b)

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 18, 2003: In order to avoid a double counting of tax credits in the formula used to determine if a property or an arrangement is a tax shelter, it is proposed that the definition of "prescribed benefits" in paragraph 231(6)(b) of the Income Tax Regulations be amended to exclude any federal tax credit already taken into account in determining whether tax credits and deductions exceed net cost. Provincial tax credits would continue to be considered prescribed benefits.

[The rest of this proposal was enacted; see ITA 237.1(1)"gifting arrangement" and "tax shelter" — ed.]

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

300. (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 32.1(3)(b) and 60(a) of the Act, if an annuity is paid under a contract, the amount deemed to be a return of capital is that proportion of each annuity payment that the consideration for, or purchase price of, the contract is of the total of the payments

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(1.1) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where the payment of

(ii) shall, in any other case, be calculated in accordance with subparagraph (i) with such modifications as the circumstances may require;

(b) except as provided in subsections (3) and (4), "adjusted purchase price" of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract at a particular time means the amount that would be determined at that time in respect of that interest under paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraph (viii) [k] thereof;

(c) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, the age of that person on any date as of which a calculation is being made shall be determined by subtracting the calendar year of his birth from the calendar year in which such date occurs; and

(d) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, and where, in the event of the death of that person before the annual payments aggregate a stated sum, the contract provides that the unpaid balance of the stated sum shall be paid, either in a lump sum or instalments, then, for the purpose of determining the expected term of the contract, the contract shall be deemed to provide for the continuance of the payments thereunder for a minimum term certain equal to the nearest integral number of years required to complete the payment of the stated sum;

301. Life annuity contracts — (1) For the purposes of this Part and section 148 of the Act, "life annuity contract" means any contract under which a person authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an annuities business agrees to make annuity payments to an individual (in this section referred to as "the annuitant") or jointly to two or more individuals (each of whom is referred to as "the annuitant" in this section), which payments are, by the terms of the contract,

(a) to be paid annually or at more frequent periodic intervals;

(b) to commence on a specified day; and

(c) to continue throughout the lifetime of the annuitant or one or more of the annuitants.

Proposed Amendment — Life annuity contracts

Letter from Dept. of Finance, September 12, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter dated June 12, 2002 concerning third-party life annuity contracts and the definition of adjusted cost basis (ACB) found in subsection 148(9) of the Income Tax Act (the Act).

In your letter you have recommended that the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act be amended to replace the term "life annuity contract" currently found therein with the term "annuity contract". You have indicated that the term "life annuity contract", as defined in subsection 301(1) of the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations), is overly restrictive because it excludes certain third-party life annuity contracts under which annuity payments are dependent on the life of an individual but the annuitants are either not individuals or are not the individual on whose life the annuity payments are dependent. You have pointed out that subsection 12.2(1) of the Act may inappropriately require an income inclusion in respect of interests in such third-party life annuity contracts because mortality gains and losses affect the determination of the accumulating fund in respect of the interest but not the ACB of the interest.

You have also requested that the amendments be effective for the 1981 and subsequent taxation years (the effective date for subsection 12.2(1)), in order to reflect the historical industry practice which, in your view, provides the appropriate tax result.

We agree with your conclusion that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations is overly restrictive and can result in inappropriate income inclusions under subsection 12.2(1) of the Act. We do, however, envision a different solution to this issue than that which you have suggested. In particular, we propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be amended to include life annuity contracts under which the annuitant is a partnership or a person as well as life annuity contracts under which the annuity payments are based on the life of an individual who is not the annuitant. We also propose to recommend to the Minister of Finance that the proposed amendments to the definition "life annuity contract" in subsection 301(1) of the Regulations be made applicable to taxation years that end after 1996. However, in calculating the adjusted cost basis to a policyholder of the policyholder's interest in a life insurance policy for taxation years that end after 1996, the proposed amendments will be made applicable, for the purposes of applying the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, to taxation years that end after 1980.

If the recommendation is accepted we will begin the process of submitting the amendments to the Income Tax Regulations for approval and promulgation.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(c) an annuity contract

(i) under which annuity payments have commenced in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year,

(ii) issued by a corporation described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) or clause 146(1)(j)(ii)(B) [146(1)"retirement savings plan"(b)(ii)] of the Act, a life insurance corporation, a registered charity or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is in this section referred to as an "issuer"),

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(ii)

(ii) issued by a life insurance corporation, a registered charity, a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act or subparagraph (b)(ii) of the definition "retirement savings plan" in subsection 146(1) of the Act or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is referred to in this section as the "issuer"),

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), s. 1, will amend subpara. 304(1)(c)(ii) to read as above, applicable after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Section 304 prescribes certain annuity contracts for exclusion from the rules in the Income Tax Act that require income from insurance policies to be reported on an accrual basis. Paragraph 304(1)(c) provides an exclusion for an annuity under which payments have commenced if a number of other conditions are also satisfied. Subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) requires that the annuity have been issued by a person specified in that provision. Acceptable issuers include corporations described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) of the Act — banks, trust companies and credit unions.

Subsection 39(5) of the Act is being amended to replace several of its paragraphs by a reference to "financial institutions" (as defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act). Consequently, subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) is amended to refer to corporations referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition of "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act, which are the same corporations as were referred to in paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d).

(iii) each holder of which

(A) is an individual, other than a trust that is neither a testamentary trust nor a trust described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act (in this paragraph referred to as a "specified trust"),

(B) is an annuitant under the contract, and

(C) throughout the taxation year, dealt at arm's length with the issuer,

(iv) the terms and conditions of which require that, from the time the contract meets the requirements of this paragraph,

(A) all payments made out of the contract be equal annuity payments made at regular intervals but not less frequently than annually, subject to the holder's right to vary the frequency and quantum of payments to be made out of the contract in any taxation year without altering the present value at the beginning of the year of the total payments to be made in that year out of the contract,

(B) the annuity payments thereunder continue for a fixed term or

(I) if the holder is an individual (other than a trust), for the life of the first holder or until the later of the death of the first holder and the death of any one of the spouse, common-law partner, former spouse, former common-law partner, brothers and sisters (in this subparagraph referred to as "the survivor") of the first holder, or

(II) if the holder is a specified trust, for the life of the spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 29, 2002:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated May 6, 2002, concerning section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations (the "Regulations") and its application to alter ego trusts.

Section 304 defines a "prescribed annuity contract" for a taxation year for the purposes of subsection 12.2(1) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). Alter ego trusts and joint spousal and common-law partner trusts are trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act and as you mentioned in your letter, these trusts would appear to qualify as a specified trust eligible to hold prescribed annuities under clause 304(1)(c)(iii)(A) of the Regulations.

However, it would appear that an alter ego trust would not be able to acquire an annuity contract that is a prescribed annuity contract because subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(1)(c)(iv)(C)(II) require, in the case of a specified trust, that the terms of the contract determine annuity payments by reference to the "spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust". Alter ego trusts do not comply with those subclauses because, in the case of alter ego trusts, the annuity payments would be determined by reference to the individual who is entitled to receive the income of the trust and not by reference to the spouse or common-law partner. As a result, you have requested that those subclauses be amended to allow alter ego trusts to hold prescribed annuity contracts.

From a policy perspective, it appears appropriate to permit an alter ego trust to be eligible to hold a prescribed annuity contract if all the other conditions of section 304 of the Regulations are met. This treatment would be in accordance with the treatment of the other trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that amendments be made to subclauses 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)(II) and 304(1)(c)(iv)(C)(II) of the Regulations to permit an alter ego trust to hold a prescribed annuity contract. Further, we intend to recommend that the amendments apply to the taxation years that begin after 2001.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(iv)(B)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 27, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated October 22, 2002, concerning section 304 of the Income Tax Regulations (the "Regulations") and its application to last survivor annuity contracts held by joint spousal or common-law partner trusts.

Section 304 defines a "prescribed annuity contract" for a taxation year for the purposes of subsection 12.2(1) and paragraph 148(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). Alter ego trusts and joint spousal or common-law partner trusts are trusts described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act and, as you mentioned in your letter and as confirmed by the Department in a comfort letter sent to your attention dated July 29, 2002, these trusts qualify as a specified trust under clause 304(1)(c)(iii)(A) of the Regulations.

However, a last survivor annuity contract, the annuity payments of which are determined by reference to the later of the death of an individual and the death of the individual's spouse or common-law partner who is entitled to receive the income of the trust, is not included in the definition of "prescribed annuity contract" in section 304 of the Regulations when held by a specified trust.

From a policy perspective, it appears appropriate for a last survivor annuity contract held by a specified trust to be prescribed as a prescribed annuity contract if all the other conditions of section 304 of the Regulations are met and the last survivor is the person that established the trust or the survivor as defined in that section. This treatment would be in accordance with the treatment under section 304 of the Regulation of last survivor annuity contracts held by individuals.

Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that amendments be made to section 304 of the Regulations to ensure that last survivor annuity contracts held by specified trusts as defined in section 304 of the Regulations be prescribed annuity contracts if all the other conditions of that section are met and the last survivor is the person that established the trust or the survivor as defined in that section.

You also mentioned in your letter that clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(B) of the Regulations does not provide for the situation where testamentary trusts (which are not specified trusts) hold annuity contracts that do not continue for a fixed term. From a policy perspective and in order to be consistent with clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(C) of the Regulations, we are prepared to recommend an amendment to the Regulations to prescribe this type of annuity contract under clause 304(1)(c)(iv)(B) where the payments continue for the life of any beneficiary entitled to receive the income from the trust.

Further, we intend to recommend that these proposed amendments apply to the 2000 and following taxation years.

Of course, I can offer no assurance that the Minister of Finance will agree with the recommendation that I have described. Nonetheless, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful.

Thank you for bringing this matter to our attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), an annuity contract shall not fail to be a prescribed annuity contract by reason that

(a) where the contract provides for a joint and last survivor annuity or is held jointly, the terms and conditions thereof provide that there will be a decrease in the amount of the annuity payments to be made under the contract from the time of death of one of the annuitants thereunder;

(b) the terms and conditions thereof provide that where the holder thereof dies at or before the time he attains the age of 91 years, the contract will terminate and an amount will be paid out of the contract not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total premiums paid under the contract exceeds the total annuity payments made under the contract;

(c) where the annuity payments are to be made over a term that is guaranteed or fixed, the terms and conditions thereof provide that as a consequence of the death of the holder thereof during the guaranteed or fixed term any payments that, but for the death of the holder, would be made during the term may be commuted into a single payment; or

(d) the terms and conditions thereof, as they read on December 1, 1982 and at all subsequent times, provide that the holder participates in the investment earnings of the issuer and that the amount of such participation is to be paid within 60 days after the end of the year in respect of which it is determined.

305. Unallocated income accrued before 1982 — (1) For the purposes of section 12.2 and paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Act, the amount at any time of "unallocated income accrued in respect of the interest before 1982, as determined in prescribed manner", in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than an interest last acquired after December 1, 1982) or in a life insurance policy referred to in subsection (3), means the amount, if any, by which

(a) the accumulating fund at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(b) his adjusted cost basis (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act) at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest; and

(c) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (a) exceeds the amount determined under paragraph (b) that

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of an annuity payment received before that time in respect of the interest

is of

(ii) the taxpayer's interest, immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract, in the total of the annuity payments

(A) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain, or

(B) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where such portion cannot be so determined because the continuation of the annuity payments under the contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(3) For the purposes of this section, an interest in an annuity contract to which subsection 12.2(9) of the Act applies shall be deemed to be a continuation of the interest in the life insurance policy in respect of which it was issued.

306. Exempt policies — (1) For the purposes of this Part and subsection 12.2(11) of the Act, "exempt policy" at any time means a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) in respect of which the following conditions are met at that time:

(a) if that time is a policy anniversary of the policy, the accumulating fund of the policy at that time (determined without regard to any policy loan) does not exceed the total of the accumulating funds at that time of the exemption test policies issued at or before that time in respect of the policy;

(b) assuming that the terms and conditions of the policy do not change from those in effect on the last policy anniversary of the policy at or before that time and, where necessary, making reasonable assumptions about all other factors (including, in the case of a participating life insurance policy within the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12) of the Act, the assumption that the amounts of dividends paid will be as shown in the dividend scale), it is reasonable to expect that the condition in paragraph (a) will be met on each policy anniversary of the policy on which the policy could remain in force after that time and before the date determined under subparagraph (3)(d)(ii) with respect to the exemption test policies issued in respect of the policy;

(c) the condition in paragraph (a) was met on all policy anniversaries of the policy before that time; and

(d) the condition in paragraph (b) was met at all times on and after the first policy anniversary of the policy and before that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a life insurance policy that is an exempt policy on its first policy anniversary shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the time of its issue until that anniversary.

(3) For the purposes of this section and section 307, a separate exemption test policy shall be deemed to have been issued to a policyholder in respect of a life insurance policy

(a) on the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(b) on each policy anniversary of the life insurance policy where the amount of the benefit on death thereunder exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death thereunder on the later of the date of its issue and the date of its preceding anniversary, if any,

and, for the purpose of determining whether the accumulating fund of the life insurance policy on any particular policy anniversary meets the condition in paragraph (1)(a), each such exemption test policy shall be deemed

(c) to have a benefit on death that is uniform throughout the term of the exemption test policy and equal to

(i) where the exemption test policy is the first such policy issued in respect of the life insurance policy, the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy less the total of all amounts each of which is the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of another exemption test policy issued on or before that policy anniversary in respect of the life insurance policy, and

(ii) in any other case, the amount by which the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the date the exemption test policy was issued exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the later of the date of issue of the life insurance policy and the date of its preceding policy anniversary, if any;

(d) to pay the amount of its benefit on death on the earlier of

(i) the date of death of the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy, and

(ii) the later of

(A) ten years after the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(B) the date that the person whose life is insured would, if he survived, attain the age of 85 years; and

(e) to be a life insurance policy in Canada issued by a life insurer that carried on its life insurance business in Canada.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (1) to (3),

(a) where at any particular time the amount of the benefit on death of a life insurance policy is reduced, an amount equal to such reduction (such amount is in this paragraph referred to as "the reduction") shall be applied at that time to reduce the amount of the benefit on death of exemption test policies issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy (other than the exemption test policy issued in respect thereof pursuant to paragraph (3)(a)), in the order in which the dates of their issuance are proximate to the particular time, by an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the portion, if any, of the reduction not applied to reduce the benefit on death of one or more other such exemption test policies, and

(ii) the amount, immediately before that time, of the benefit on death of the relevant exemption test policy;

(b) where on the tenth or on any subsequent policy anniversary of a life insurance policy, the accumulating fund thereof (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy) exceeds 250 per cent of the accumulating fund thereof on its third preceding policy anniversary (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy), each exemption test policy deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy shall be deemed to have been issued on the later of the date of that third preceding policy anniversary and the date on which it was deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued; and

(c) where at one or more times after December 1, 1982

(i) a prescribed premium has been paid by a taxpayer in respect of an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) last acquired on or before that date, or

(ii) an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) issued on or before that date has been acquired by a taxpayer from the person who held the interest continuously since that date, the policy shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the date of its issue until the earliest of those times that occurred after December 1, 1982; and

(d) a life insurance policy that ceases to be an exempt policy (other than by reason of its conversion into an annuity contract) on a policy anniversary shall be deemed to be an exempt policy on that anniversary

(i) if, had that anniversary occurred 60 days after the date on which it did in fact occur, the policy would have been an exempt policy on that later date, or

(ii) if the person whose life is insured under the policy dies on that anniversary or within 60 days thereafter.

(a) with respect to a life insurance policy issued after March 26, 1992, other than a policy for which written application was made on or before March 26, 1992; and

(b) with respect to a life insurance policy amended at any time after March 26, 1992 to increase the amount of the benefit on death.

S. 306 added by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 5, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

307. Accumulating funds — (1) For the purposes of this Part and section 12.2, paragraph 56(1)(d.1) and section 148 of the Act, "accumulating fund" at any particular time means,

(a) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than a contract issued by a life insurer), the amount that is the greater of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the cash surrender value of his interest at that time exceeds the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time made under the contract in respect of the interest, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the present value at that time of future payments to be made out of the contract in respect of his interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(B) the present value at that time of future premiums to be paid under the contract in respect of his interest, and

(C) the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time, made under the contract in respect of his interest;

(b) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy (other than an exemption test policy or an annuity contract to which paragraph (1)(a) applies), the product obtained when,

(i) where the policy is not a deposit administration fund policy and the particular time is immediately after the death of any person on whose life the life insurance policy is issued or effected, the aggregate of the maximum amounts that could be determined by the life insurer immediately before the death in respect of the policy under paragraph 1401(1)(c) and subparagraph 1401(1)(d)(i) if the mortality rates used were adjusted to reflect the assumption that the death would occur at the time and in the manner that it did occur, and

(ii) in any other case, the maximum amount that could be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under paragraph 1401(1)(a), computed as though there were only one deposit administration fund policy, or under paragraph 1401(1)(c), as the case may be, in respect of the policy is multiplied by

(iii) the taxpayer's proportionate interest in the policy, assuming for the purposes of this paragraph that the life insurer carried on its life insurance business in Canada, its taxation year ended at the particular time and the policy was a life insurance policy in Canada; and

(c) in respect of an exemption test policy,

(i) where the policy was issued at least 20 years before the particular time, the amount that would be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) in respect of the policy if the insurer's taxation year ended at that particular time, and

(ii) in any other case, the product obtained when the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the policy on its twentieth policy anniversary is multiplied by the quotient obtained when the number of years since the policy was issued is divided by 20.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), when computing the accumulating fund of an interest described in

(a) paragraph (1)(a), the amounts determined under clauses (1)(a)(ii)(A) and (B) shall be computed using,

(i) where an interest rate for a period used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract was less than any rate so used for a subsequent period, the single rate that would, if it applied for each period, have produced the same terms, and

(ii) in any other case, the rates used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract;

(b) paragraph (1)(b), where an interest rate used for a period by a life insurer in computing the relevant amounts in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) is determined under paragraph 1403(1)(c), (d) or (e), as the case may be, and that rate is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the policy shall be used; and

(c) paragraph (1)(c)

(i) the rates of interest and mortality used and the age of the person whose life is insured shall be the same as those used in computing the amounts described in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued except that

(A) where the life insurance policy is one to which paragraph 1403(1)(e) applies and the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(i) in respect of that policy is greater than the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(ii) in respect thereof, the rates of interest and mortality used may be those used in computing the cash surrender values of that policy, and

(B) where an interest rate for a period otherwise determined under this subparagraph in respect of that interest is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the life insurance policy shall be used, and

(ii) notwithstanding subparagraph (i),

(A) where the rates referred to in subparagraph (i) do not exist, the minimum guaranteed rates of interest used under the life insurance policy to determine cash surrender values and the rates of mortality under the Commissioners 1958 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table, as published in Volume X of the Transactions of the Society of Actuaries, relevant to the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy shall be used, or

(B) where, in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued, the period over which the amount determined under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) does not extend to the date determined under subparagraph 306(3)(d)(ii), the weighted arithmetic mean of the interest rates used to determine such amount shall be used for the period that is after that period and before that date.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2)(c),

(a) in the case of a life insurance policy issued after April 30, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 4 per cent per annum; and

(b) in the case of a life insurance policy issued before May 1, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 3 per cent per annum.

(4) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c),

(a) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to "10" and "tenth" respectively; and

(b) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 66 years but not the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to

(i) the number obtained when the number of years by which the age of the person whose life is insured exceeds 65 years is subtracted from 20, and

(ii) the adjectival form of the number obtained by performing the computation described in subparagraph (i), respectively.

(5) In this section, any amount determined by reference to section 1401 shall be determined

(a) without regard to section 1402;

(b) as if each reference therein to the term "policy loan" were read as if that term had the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(e) [148(9)"policy loan"] of the Act; and

(c) as if clauses 1401(1)(c)(i)(B) and 1401(1)(c)(ii)(C) were read without reference to the expression "or the interest thereon that has accrued to the insurer at the end of the year".

308. Net cost of pure insurance and mortality gains and losses — (1) For the purposes of subparagraph 20(1)(e.2)(ii) and paragraph (a) of the description of L in the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, the net cost of pure insurance for a year in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy is the product obtained when the probability, computed on the basis of the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries or on the basis described in subsection (1.1), that a person who has the same relevant characteristics as the person whose life is insured will die in the year is multiplied by the amount by which

(a) the benefit on death in respect of the taxpayer's interest at the end of the year

exceeds

(b) the accumulating fund (determined without regard to any policy loan outstanding) in respect of the taxpayer's interest in the policy at the end of the year or the cash surrender value of such interest at the end of the year, depending on the method regularly followed by the life insurer in computing net cost of pure insurance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies; IT-309R2: Premiums on life insurance used as collateral.

(1.1) Where premiums for a particular class of life insurance policy offered by a life insurer do not depend directly on smoking or sex classification, the probability referred to in subsection (1) may be determined using rates of mortality otherwise determined provided that for each age for such class of life insurance policy, the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using such rates of mortality, is equal to the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries.

(2) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(v.1) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"G] of the Act, a "mortality gain" immediately before the end of any calendar year after 1982 in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life annuity contract means such reasonable amount in respect of his interest therein at that time that the life insurer determines to be the increase to the accumulating fund in respect of the interest that occurred during that year as a consequence of the survival to the end of the year of one or more of the annuitants thereunder.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(xi) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"(c)] of the Act, a "mortality loss" immediately before a particular time after 1982 in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract disposed of immediately after that particular time as a consequence of the death of an annuitant thereunder means such reasonable amount that the life insurer determines to be the decrease, as a consequence of the death, in the accumulating fund in respect of the interest assuming that, in determining such decrease, the accumulating fund immediately after the death is determined in the manner described in subparagraph 307(1)(b)(i).

(4) In determining an amount for a year in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract under subsection (2) or (3), the expected value of the mortality gains in respect of the interest for the year shall be equal to the expected value of the mortality losses in respect of the interest for the year and the mortality rates for the year used in computing those expected values shall be those that would be relevant to the interest and that are specified under such of paragraphs 1403(1)(c), (d) and (e) as are applicable.

309. Prescribed premiums and prescribed increases — (1) For the purposes of subsections 12.2(9) and 89(2) of the Act, section 306 and this section, a premium at any time under a life insurance policy is a "prescribed premium" if the total amount of one or more premiums paid at that time under the policy exceeds the amount of premium that, under the policy, was scheduled to be paid at that time and that was fixed and determined on or before December 1, 1982, adjusted for such of the following transactions and events that have occurred after that date in respect of the policy:

(a) a change in underwriting class;

(b) a change in premium due to a change in frequency of premium payments within a year that does not alter the present value, at the beginning of the year, of the total premiums to be paid under the policy in the year;

(c) an addition or deletion of accidental death or guaranteed purchase option benefits or disability benefits that provide for annuity payments or waiver of premiums;

(d) a premium adjustment as a result of interest, mortality or expense considerations, or of a change in the benefit on death under the policy relating to an increase in the Consumer Price Index (as published by Statistics Canada under the authority of the Statistics Act) where such adjustment

(i) is made by the life insurer on a class basis pursuant to the policy's terms as they read on December 1, 1982, and

(ii) is not made as a result of the exercise of a conversion privilege under the policy;

(e) a change arising from the provision of an additional benefit on death under a participating life insurance policy (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 138(12)(k) [138(12)"participating life insurance policy"] of the Act) as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of

(i) policy dividends or other distributions of the life insurer's income from its participating life insurance business as determined under section 2402, or

(ii) interest earned on policy dividends that are held on deposit by the life insurer;

(f) redating lapsed policies within the reinstatement period referred to in subparagraph 148(9)(c)(vi) [148(9)"disposition"(g)] of the Act or redating for policy loan indebtedness;

(g) a change in premium due to a correction of erroneous information contained in the application for the policy;

(h) payment of a premium after its due date, or payment of a premium no more than 30 days before its due date, as established on or before December 1, 1982; and

(i) the payment of an amount described in subparagraph 148(9)(e.1)(i) [148(9)"premium"(a)] of the Act.

(2) For the purposes of subsections 12.2(9) and 89(2) of the Act, a "prescribed increase" in a benefit on death under a life insurance policy has occurred at any time where the amount of the benefit on death under the policy at that time exceeds the amount of the benefit on death at that time under the policy that was fixed and determined on or before December 1, 1982, adjusted for such of the following transactions and events that have occurred after that date in respect of the policy:

(a) an increase resulting from a change described in paragraph (1)(e);

(b) a change as a result of interest, mortality or expense considerations, or an increase in the Consumer Price Index (as published by Statistics Canada under the authority of the Statistics Act) where such change is made by the life insurer on a class basis pursuant to the policy's terms as they read on December 1, 1982;

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Tax Abatement

A corporation that has taxable income earned in a province is eligible for a 10 percent federal tax abatement under section 124 of the Act, and Part IV of the Regulations prescribes the meaning of "taxable income earned in a province".

Former subsection 404(1) prescribes the taxable income earned in a province for chartered banks. This amendment changes the reference from "chartered bank" to "bank" to reflect the fact that for the purpose of the Act a "bank" now includes an authorized foreign bank or a bank within the meaning assigned by the Bank Act.

(a) that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate of the salaries and wages paid in the year by the bank to employees of its permanent establishment in the province is of the aggregate of all salaries and wages paid in the year by the bank, and

(b) twice that proportion of its taxable income for the year that the aggregate amount of loans and deposits of its permanent establishment in the province for the year is of the aggregate amount of all loans and deposits of the bank for the year.

Related Provisions: Reg. 413(3) — Application to authorized foreign bank.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount of loans for a taxation year is 1/12 of the aggregate of the amounts outstanding, on the loans made by the bank, at the close of business on the last day of each month in the year.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), the amount of deposits for a taxation year is 1/12 of the aggregate of the amounts on deposit with the bank at the close of business on the last day of each month in the year.

(4) For the purposes of subsections (2) and (3), loans and deposits do not include bonds, stocks, debentures, items in transit and deposits in favour of Her Majesty in right of Canada.

PART VIII — NON-RESIDENT TAXES

History: Part VIII was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

800. Registered non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act do not apply to amounts paid or credited to a registered non-resident insurer.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 800

800. Authorized foreign banks and non-resident insurers — Subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act do not apply to amounts paid or credited to an authorized foreign bank or to a registered non-resident insurer.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 800 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, December 20, 2002: Section 800 provides that amounts paid or credited to a registered non-resident insurer are not subject to the withholding obligations set out in subsections 215(1), (2) and (3) of the Act. The section is to be amended to apply as well to amounts paid or credited to an authorized foreign bank, and to update its structure.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Sections 800 to 803 currently exempt a resident payer from the withholding responsibility imposed under Part XIII of the Act on payments made to a registered non- resident insurer. Also, these sections outline the compliance rules applicable to a registered non-resident insurer. These sections are amended to apply to an authorized foreign bank as well.

Alternatives

These Regulations are necessary for the application of the taxation regime of foreign bank branches. Therefore, no alternatives were considered.

Benefits and Costs

These amending Regulations are essential for the application of the taxation regime of the foreign bank branches, and there should be no additional costs in the administration of these Regulations.

Consultation

These amendments were developed through extensive consultations with representatives of the banking sector, both Canadian and foreign, and the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency.

In addition, all stakeholders were given an opportunity to comment on the tax rules for authorized foreign banks when those rules were released in a draft form on August 8, 2000 [and December 20, 2002 — ed.].

801. Filing of returns by non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, where a taxpayer is a registered non-resident insurer in a taxation year, the taxpayer shall file a return in respect thereof in prescribed form with the Minister within the six month period immediately following the end of the year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 801

801. Filing of returns by non-resident insurers — A taxpayer that is an authorized foreign bank or a registered non-resident insurer at any time in a taxation year shall file a return in respect the year in prescribed form with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 801 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999, except that the return required to be filed under section 801 by an authorized foreign bank is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue in a timely manner if it is so filed on or before the later of

(a) the day on or before which it would, but for this subsec., be required to be filed; and

(b) the day that is 6 months after the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Technical Notes, December 20, 2002: Section 801 of the Regulations requires a non-resident insurer to file a return in respect of tax payable by it under Part XIII of the Act. The section is to be amended to apply the same requirement to an authorized foreign bank.

This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999, except that the return required to be filed by an authorized foreign bank is deemed to have been filed with the Minister of National Revenue in a timely manner if it is filed on or before the later of

- the day on or before which it would otherwise be required to be filed (that is, the bank's filing-due date for the taxation year in question); and
- the day that is 6 months after the day on which this Regulation is registered.

History: S. 801 substituted by P.C. 1990-2002, s. 1, September 20, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 10, 1990, applicable in respect of taxation years beginning after June 17, 1987 and ending after 1987.

802. Amounts taxable — For the purposes of paragraph 214(13)(c) of the Act, the amounts taxable under Part XIII of the Act in a relevant taxation year of a taxpayer are amounts paid or credited to the taxpayer in the relevant taxation year other than amounts included pursuant to Part I of the Act in computing the taxpayer's income from a business carried on by it in Canada.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 802

802. Amounts taxable — The amounts that are taxable under Part XIII of the Act in a taxation year of a taxpayer that is an authorized foreign bank or a registered non-resident insurer are amounts paid or credited to the taxpayer in the year other than amounts included under Part I of the Act in computing the taxpayer's income from a business carried on by it in Canada.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 802 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, December 20, 2002: Section 802 of the Regulations ensures that Parts I and XIII of the Act do not overlap in respect of a registered non-resident insurer's income from carrying on business in Canada. In general terms, the section provides that, to the extent such income is dealt with by Part I, it is not subject to taxation under Part XIII. In its current form, section 802 is not clearly confined to registered non-resident insurers. As a result, its relationship to section 805, which deals with the same subject in respect of other taxpayers, is also unclear.

Section 802 is to be amended to clarify its application, and to provide that it applies as well to authorized foreign banks. This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

803. Payment of tax by non-resident insurers — For the purposes of subsection 215(4) of the Act, a taxpayer shall pay to the Receiver General, on or before the last day on which the return in respect of a relevant taxation year is required to be filed pursuant to section 801, the tax payable by the taxpayer under Part XIII of the Act on amounts referred to in section 802 in respect of the relevant taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 803

803. Payment of tax by non-resident insurers — Authorized foreign banks and registered non-resident insurers shall pay to the Receiver General, on or before their filing-due dates for a taxation year, the tax payable by them under Part XIII of the Act.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 5, (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend s. 803 to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, December 20, 2002: Section 803 of the Regulations provides that a registered non-resident insurer must pay its Part XIII tax owing in respect of a taxation year on or before the day on which its return under Regulation 801 in respect of the year is due. The section is to be amended to clarify its scope and meaning, and to provide that it is to apply as well to authorized foreign banks. This amendment is to apply to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 800 above.

Definitions [Reg. 803]: "authorized foreign bank", "amount" — ITA 248(1); "registered non-resident insurer" — Reg. 804; "taxation year" — ITA 249; "taxpayer" — ITA 248(1).

804. Interpretation — In this Part, "registered non-resident insurer" means a non-resident corporation approved to carry on business in Canada under the Insurance Companies Act.

The heading preceding s. 800, and ss. 800 to 804, were substituted by P.C. 1979-1485, May 17, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 13, 1979, effective for 1978 et seq.

Definitions [Reg. 804]: "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "corporation" — ITA 248(1), Interpretation Act 35(1); "non-resident" — ITA 248(1).

805. Other non-resident persons — (1) Every non-resident person who carries on business in Canada shall be taxable under Part XIII of the Act on all amounts otherwise taxable under that Part except those amounts that

(a) may reasonably be attributed to the business carried on by him through a permanent establishment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 400(2) or that would be assigned by that subsection if he were a corporation) in Canada; or

(b) are required by subparagraph 115(1)(a)(iii.3) of the Act to be included in computing his taxable income earned in the year in Canada.

(2) Where the Minister is satisfied that under subsection (1) an amount is not taxable under Part XIII of the Act, he may permit payment to be made to the non-resident person without any deduction being made under section 215 of the Act.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not apply in respect of amounts upon which tax under Part XIII of the Act is payable in a relevant taxation year by a taxpayer required by section 801 to file the return described in that section in respect of that year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 805 (repealing 805(2), (3))

805. Other non-resident persons — Subject to section 802, every non-resident person who carries on business in Canada is taxable under Part XIII of the Act on all amounts otherwise taxable under that Part except those amounts that

(a) may reasonably be attributed to the business carried on by the person through a permanent establishment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 400(2) or that would be assigned by that subsection if the person were a corporation) in Canada; or

(b) are required by subparagraph 115(1)(a)(iii.3) of the Act to be included in computing the person's taxable income earned in Canada for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), s. 6, will amend subsec. 805(1) to read as above and repeal subsecs. (2) and (3), applicable to taxation years that end after June 27, 1999.

Technical Notes, December 20, 2002: Section 805 of the Regulations provides rules for determining whether an amount is taxable under Part XIII of the Act, in a case where the non-resident recipient of the amount carries on a business in Canada. In general terms, the section provides that an amount paid to a non-resident is taxable under Part XIII of the Act if that amount cannot reasonably be attributed to a business carried on by the non-resident through a permanent establishment in Canada.

Section 805 is to be amended to update its structure and language, and to clarify its relationship to section 802 of the Regulations — in effect, that section 805 is not applicable to authorized foreign banks and registered non-resident insurers.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(1) opening words

808. (1) For the purposes of paragraph 219(1)(j) of the Act, the allowance of a corporation (other than an authorized foreign bank) for a taxation year in respect of its investment in property in Canada is prescribed to be the amount, if any, by which

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(1), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend the opening words of subsec. 808(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 1995, except that in applying the amendment to taxation years ending before June 28, 1999, it is to be read without reference to "(other than an authorized foreign bank)".

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: See under Reg. 808(8) below.

(a) the corporation's qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year,

(b) the aggregate of

(i) all allowances computed under this section as it read in its application to each of the taxation years of the corporation that ended before 1972 to the extent that for those taxation years such allowances reduced the amount on which the corporation was taxable under subsection 110B(1) of the Act as it read in its application to those taxation years, and

(ii) the capital investment of the corporation in property in Canada at the end of the corporation's 1960 taxation year, determined under this section as it read in its application to the 1961 taxation year.

Related Provisions: Reg. Reg. 808(1.1) — Where corporation becomes resident in Canada.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-137R3: Additional tax on certain corporations carrying on business in Canada.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(1.1)

(1.1) [Where corporation becomes resident] — Notwithstanding subsection (1), if a corporation becomes resident in Canada at a particular time, the corporation's allowance in respect of its investment in property in Canada for its last taxation year that ended before the particular time is prescribed to be nil.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will add 808(1.1), applicable to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 808(1) of the Regulations specifies the amount of a corporation's allowance in respect of investment in property in Canada for the purposes of the "branch tax" imposed under Part XIV of the Act.

New subsection 808(1.1) provides that where a corporation becomes resident in Canada, the corporation's investment allowance for the taxation year that is deemed to end immediately before immigration is nil. Since the corporation will be unable to claim an investment allowance, it will be liable to pay branch tax on any unremitted profits of a Canadian branch arising in the year or deferred in respect of previous years. Effectively, for an immigrating corporation, unremitted profits of a Canadian branch are treated similarly to the undistributed surplus of a Ca-

New subsection 808(1.1) applies to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

(2) ["Qualified investment in ..."] — For the purposes of subsection (1), where, at the end of a taxation year, a corporation is not a member of a partnership that was carrying on business in Canada at any time in the year, the corporation's "qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year" is the amount, if any, by which the aggregate of

(a) the cost amount to the corporation, at the end of the year, of land in Canada owned by it at that time for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada, other than land that is

(i) described in the corporation's inventory,

(ii) depreciable property,

(iii) a Canadian resource property, or

(iv) land the cost of which is or was deductible in computing the corporation's income,

(b) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation, immediately after the end of the year, of each depreciable property in Canada owned by it for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business carried on by it in Canada,

(c) an amount equal to 4/3 of the cumulative eligible capital of the corporation immediately after the end of the year in respect of each business carried on by it in Canada,

(d) where the corporation is not a principal-business corporation, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66(15)(h) [66(15)"principal-business corporation"] of the Act, an amount equal to the aggregate of the corporation's

(i) Canadian exploration and development expenses, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66(15)(b) [66(15)"Canadian exploration and development expenses"] of the Act, incurred by the corporation before the end of the year except to the extent that such expenses were deducted by the corporation in computing its income for the year or for a previous taxation year, and

(ii) cumulative Canadian exploration expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.1(6)(b) [66.1(6)"cumulative Canadian exploration expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.1(3) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.1) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian development expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.2(5)(b) [66.2(5)"cumulative Canadian development expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.2(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.2) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense, within the meaning assigned by paragraph 66.4(5)(b) [66.4(5)"cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense"] of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.4(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 808(2)(d)–(d.2)

(d) where the corporation is not a principal-business corporation, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66(15) of the Act, an amount equal to the total of the corporation's

(i) Canadian exploration and development expenses incurred by the corporation before the end of the year, except to the extent that those expenses were deducted in computing the corporation's income for the year or for a previous taxation year, and

(ii) cumulative Canadian exploration expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.1(6) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.1(3) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.1) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian development expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.2(5) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.2(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

(d.2) an amount equal to the corporation's cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense, within the meaning assigned by subsection 66.4(5) of the Act, at the end of the year minus any deduction under subsection 66.4(2) of the Act in computing the corporation's income for the year,

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(2), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will amend paras. 808(2)(d) to (d.2) to read as above, in force on the day on which this Regulation is registered.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Branch Tax

Part XIV of the Act imposes a tax on non-resident corporations carrying on a business in Canada through a branch. The purpose of this tax is to put those non-resident corporations in a similar position for Canadian tax purposes as non-residents who carry on business in Canada through a Canadian subsidiary.

Branch tax is levied at a flat rate of 25 per cent on a non-resident corporation's taxable income from Canadian sources, with certain adjustments, including an allowance for its investment in property in Canada. A corporation's allowance for investment in property in Canada is computed under section 808 of the Regulations.

Paragraphs 808(2)(h) and (p), subparagraphs 808(2)(l)(i), (n)(ii) and (iii), and (o)(ii) and (iii) are amended to reflect earlier amendments to Part XIV of the Act.

Paragraphs 808(2)(d) to (d.2), subparagraphs 808(2)(l)(ii) and 808(5)(j)(ii) generally refer to rules applicable to resource property in the computation of the "qualified investment in property in Canada". These paragraphs are revised as the miscellaneous program amendments of the Department of Finance.

(e) an amount equal to the aggregate of the cost amount to the corporation at the end of the year of each debt owing to it, or any other right of the corporation to receive an amount, that was outstanding as a result of the disposition by it of property in respect of which an amount would be included, by virtue of paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (h), in its qualified investment in property in Canada at the end of the year if the property had not been disposed of by it before the end of that year,

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: A non-resident corporation's allowance for investment in property in Canada is computed on the basis of its "qualified investment in property in Canada". "Qualified investment in property in Canada" includes a corporation's "allowable liquid assets" and its share of the "allowable liquid assets" of a partnership of which the corporation is a member. (7) [Partnerships] — Subsections (4) to (6) shall be read and construed as if each of the assumptions in paragraphs 96(1)(a) to (g) of the Act were made.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(8)

(8) [Allowance of authorized foreign bank] — For the purpose of paragraph 219(1)(j) of the Act, the allowance of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year in respect of its investment in property in Canada is prescribed to be the amount, if any, by which

(a) the average of all amounts, each of which is the amount for a calculation period (within the meaning assigned by subsection 20.2(1) of the Act) of the bank for the year that is the greater of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

$$0.05 \times A$$

where

A is the amount of the element A in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the period, and

exceeds

(B) the amount equal to the total of

(I) the amount determined by the formula

where

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount that would be determined under paragraph (2)(j), (k), (n) or (o) if that provision applied to the bank for the year, except to the extent that the amount reflects a liability of the bank that has been included in the element L in the formulae in subsection 20.2(3) of the Act for the bank's last calculation period for the year.

Application: The February 13, 2003 draft regulations (foreign bank branches), subsec. 7(11), (pre-published in the Canada Gazette, Part I, February 15, 2003), will add subsec. 808(8), applicable after June 27, 1999.

Regulatory Impact Analysis Statement: Subsection 808(1) computes the allowance for investment in property for all non-resident corporations. This subsection is amended to specifically exclude authorized foreign bank from these computational rules, and new subsection 808(8) is added to compute the allowance for investment in property in Canada for an authorized foreign bank.

(b) para. 1100(21)(e) applies after 1994 in respect of property acquired after February 21, 1994 and before 1995 by a partnership pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the partnership after February 21, 1994 and before 1995, where

(vii) the producer of the production receives before 1995 a commitment for funding or other government assistance (or an advance ruling or active status letter in respect of eligibility for such funding or other government assistance) for the production from a federal or provincial government agency the mandate of which is related to the provision of assistance to film productions in Canada, or

Technical Notes: Subsection 1100(21) requires that the depreciable cost of a taxpayer's interest in a certified feature film or certified production be reduced by certain amounts, including certain revenue guarantees provided in respect of the investment.

Subsection 1100(21) is amended to require that the depreciable cost of such an interest be reduced by the portion of any debt obligation of the investor outstanding at the end of a particular year that is convertible into an interest in the film or tape or the taxpayer.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 22, 1994: The federal government is committed to the continued viability of the Canadian film industry. Currently, assistance is provided to the industry through direct expenditure programs as well as income tax incentives for certified Canadian films. The government is concerned, however, that film financing mechanisms have been developed to provide tax benefits to investors in excess of those contemplated when the incentives were introduced and in a manner inconsistent with the limited partnership at-risk rules. Generally, these financings depend on an overallocation of benefits to investors through the use of convertible debt.

In particular, some film limited partnerships have raised debt that is convertible into interests in the partnership. After the tax benefits and cash distributions have been allocated to the original limited partners, the lender converts its loan into a partnership interest. In effect, proceeds from convertible loans are used to acquire films or video tapes at a capital cost which is, when allocated to the original limited partners in the form of capital cost allowance (CCA), in excess of the amount that would otherwise be allocated to such limited partners if the lender were considered to be a partner from the time the loan was made. The combination of this excess allocation of CCA to the original limited partners and the distribution of revenue to those partners ensures that the original limited partners have little or no investment risk.

Accordingly, this budget proposes to amend the Income Tax Regulations to reduce the capital cost of a film or video tape acquired after February 22, 1994 by the amount of any loan that is convertible into an interest in the film or a partnership that holds the film or video tape until such time as the convertible loan is exchanged for a partnership interest or repaid. Transitional relief will be provided for property acquired pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before February 22, 1994 or pursuant to a prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum filed before February 22, 1994 and where required by law, accepted for filing by a public authority in Canada pursuant to and in accordance with securities legislation of Canada or of any province.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(21)

History: Subsec. 1101(2a) substituted by P.C. 1994-139, subsecs. 3(1) and (2), January 27, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, February 9, 1994, applicable to property acquired after July 13, 1990.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-267R2: CCA — vessels.

Advance Tax Rulings: ATR-52: Accelerated rate of CCA for vessels.

(2b) Offshore drilling vessels — A separate class is hereby prescribed for all vessels described in Class 7 in Schedule II, including the furniture, fittings, radiocommunication equipment and other equipment attached thereto, acquired by a taxpayer

(a) after May 25, 1976 and designed principally for the purpose of

(i) determining the existence, location, extent or quality of accumulations of petroleum or natural gas (other than mineral resources); or

(ii) drilling oil or gas wells; or

(b) after May 22, 1979 and designed principally for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of mineral resources.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1100(1)(va) — Additional allowance; Reg. 1101(2c) — No application if structured financing facility in place.

History: Subsec. 1101(2b) substituted by P.C. 1979-1487, s. 52, May 17, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 13, 1979.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-267R2: CCA — Vessels; IT-317R: Radio and television equipment (archived).

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1101(2c)

(2c) Vessels and a structured financing facility — Subsections (2a) and (2b) do not apply to a vessel, nor to the furniture, fittings, radio communications equipment and other equipment attached to the vessel, if a structured financing facility relating to any such property has been agreed to by the Minister of Industry under the Department of Industry Act.

Application: The December 20, 2002 draft regulations (Appendix C, CCA — vessels), s. 1, will add subsec. 1101(2c), deemed to have come into force on November 7, 2001.

Technical Notes: In general, capital cost allowance Class 7 in Schedule II to the Regulations applies to vessels and attachments thereto (15% rate, declining balance method). However, an additional allowance is available under Regulations 1100(1)(v) and (va) in respect of certain vessels and their attachments. In particular, this is the case where a vessel and its attachments are included in a separate class because of subsection 1101(2a) or (2b) of the Regulations. As well, Class 41 (25% rate, plus an additional allowance) applies to vessels and attachments thereto if paragraph (b) of Class 41 applies.

Proposed new subsection 1101(2c) of the Regulations provides that the separate classes in subsections 1101(2a) and (2b) for vessels and attachments do not apply in cases where the Minister of Industry has agreed to a structured financing facility. This change is consequential to the creation of the Structured Financing Facility Program, which is administered by Industry Canada. In cases where a vessel or its attachments are financed with a benefit under the Structured Financing Facility Program, the maximum capital cost allowance rate applicable to the vessel and its attachments is 15% under Class 7.

Subpara. 1103(2d)(b)(ii) amended by P.C. 1991-465, s. 3, March 14, 1991, Canada Gazette, Part II, March 27, 1991, applicable after April 26, 1989.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1103(2i)

(2i) Election to include properties in Class 35 — In respect of any property otherwise included in Class 7 in Schedule II because of paragraph (h) of that Class and to which paragraph 1100(1)(z.1a) and subsection 1101(5d), or paragraph 1100(1)(z.1c) and subsection 1101(5d.2), would apply if Class 35 of that Schedule applied to the property, the taxpayer may (by letter attached to the taxpayer's return of income filed with the Minister in accordance with section 150 of the Act for the taxation year in which the property is acquired) elect to include the property in Class 35 rather than in Class 7.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1103(2i) is consequential to new paragraph (h) of Class 7 (15% CCA rate) and provides an election under which a taxpayer may include certain railway assets in Class 35 (7% CCA rate) rather than in Class 7. This election may be made only in respect of railway cars and railway suspension devices described in paragraph (h) of Class 7 that are acquired after February 27, 2000. Further, such property only qualifies to be placed in Class 35 under this election if the property would have been eligible for an additional 6% CCA allowance under paragraph 1100(1)(z.1a) and subsection 1101(5d), or paragraph 1100(1)(z.1c) and subsection 1101(5d.2), if Class 35 had applied to the property. While property to which subsection 1103(2i) applies is eligible for a combined CCA rate of 13% (7% + 6%) rather than the 15% CCA rate available to Class 7 property, such property is "exempt property" for the purposes of the specified leasing property rules in subsection 1100(1.13) of the Regulations.

(3) Election rules — To be effective in respect of a taxation year, an election under this section must be made not later than the last day on which the taxpayer may file a return of his income for the taxation year in accordance with section 150 of the Act.

(4) [Timing of election] — An election under paragraph 1102(8)(d) or (9)(d) or this section shall be effective from the first day of the taxation year in respect of which the election is made and shall continue to be effective for all subsequent taxation years.

History: Subsec. 1103(4) amended by P.C. 1997-1033, s. 3, July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable after February 21, 1994.

(5) [How election made] — An election under subsection (1) or (2) shall be made by registered letter addressed to the District Office at which the taxpayer customarily files the returns required by section 150 of the Act.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1104(13)"blast furnace gas"

"blast furnace gas" means the gas produced in a blast furnace of a steel mill by the chemical reaction of carbon (in the form of coke, coal or natural gas), oxygen and iron ore.

Application: The February 5, 2002 draft regulations (capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(1), will add the definition "blast furnace gas" to subsec. 1104(13), applicable in respect of property acquired after 2000.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1104(13) of the Income Tax Regulations defines a number of terms used in that subsection and paragraphs (c) to (g) of capital cost allowance (CCA) Class 43.1 in Schedule II to the Regulations.

Subsection 1104(13) is amended in two respects. First, it is amended to add the definition "blast furnace gas", which is defined to be the gas produced in a blast furnace of a steel mill by the chemical reaction of carbon (in the form of coke, coal or natural gas), oxygen and iron ore. Second, the definition "fossil fuel" is amended to include "blast furnace gas". These changes apply for the purpose of determining whether certain property is included in Class 43.1 because it is part of a system that generates electrical energy with a heat rate attributable to "fossil fuel" of not more than 6,000 BTU per kilowatt-hour of electrical energy generated by the system.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 31, 2001: See under Reg. 1104(13)"fossil fuel".

"digester gas" means a mixture of gases that are produced from the decomposition of organic waste in a digester and that are extracted from an eligible sewage treatment facility for that organic waste.

"distribution equipment" means equipment (other than transmission equipment) used to distribute electrical energy generated by electrical generating equipment.

"eligible landfill site" means a landfill site that is situated in Canada, or a former landfill site that is situated in Canada, and, if a permit or license in respect of the site is or was required under any law of Canada or of a province, for which the permit or license has been issued.

"eligible sewage treatment facility" means a sewage treatment facility that is situated in Canada and for which a permit or license is issued under any law of Canada or of a province.

"eligible waste management facility" means a waste management facility that is situated in Canada and for which a permit or license is issued under any law of Canada or of a province.

"enhanced combined cycle system" means an electrical generating system in which thermal waste from one or more natural gas compressor systems is recovered and used to contribute at least 20 per cent of the energy input of a combined cycle process in order to enhance the generation of electricity, but does not include the natural gas compressor systems.

"fossil fuel" means a fuel that is petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons, coal, coal gas, coke, lignite or peat.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1104(13)"fossil fuel"

"fossil fuel" means a fuel that is petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons, blast furnace gas, coal, coal gas, coke, lignite or peat.

Application: The February 5, 2002 draft regulations (capital cost allowance), subsec. 1(2), will amend the definition "fossil fuel" in subsec.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 1104(13)"blast furnace gas".

Federal budget, supplementary information, December 10, 2001: See under Sch. II:Cl. 43.1(d)(iii), (iii.1).

Letter from Dept. of Finance, May 31, 2001:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing further to your letter of November 15, 2000 regarding your request that "blast furnace gas" be included in the definition of fossil fuel for the purpose of Class 43.1 of the Income Tax Regulations.

We are sympathetic to your request. After consulting specialists from Natural Resources Canada, we are of the view that "blast furnace gas" is similar to coke oven gas and therefore should be added to the definition of fossil fuel in Regulation 1104(13). In this regard, a new definition would also be added to Regulation 1104(13) defining "blast furnace gas" to be, in general, the gas produced in a blast furnace of a steel mill, by the chemical reaction of carbon (in the form of coke, coal or natural gas), the oxygen in air, and iron ore.

We are prepared therefore to recommend to the Minister of Finance that blast furnace gas be referred to in the definition of fossil fuel and defined similar to that described above for the purpose of Class 43.1. We would also recommend that these changes be effective for properties acquired after December 31, 2000. If the recommendation is acted upon, we anticipate that these changes would be included in a future package of amendments to the Income Tax Regulations.

Yours sincerely,
Len Farber

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1104(13)"fossil fuel"

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 30, 2003:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your letter of March 21, 2003 and further to your telephone conversation with officials of the Tax Legislation Division regarding the use of Blast Oxygen Furnace Gas (BOFG) in co-generation equipment. In particular, you request that Class 43.1 of the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations) be amended to include BOFG in the list of eligible fuels referred to in clause (c)(i)(A) of that class.

The portion of Class 43.1 that applies to co-generation equipment provides a list of eligible fuels such as fossil fuel and waste fuels: For the purpose of class 43.1, the heat rate attributable to fossil fuel cannot exceed 6,000 British Thermal Unit (BTU) per kilowatt-hour of electrical energy generated by the system.

In this regard, it was proposed in 2001 that the definition of fossil fuel be extended to include blast furnace gas (BFG). After consulting Natural Resources Canada (NRCan), it has been determined that BOFG is similar to BFG from a scientific perspective. Given this, and the 2001 proposal, it would be appropriate to treat BFG and BOFG similarly for income tax purposes.

Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that BOFG be added to the definition of fossil fuel in Regulation 1104(13) for the purposes of Class 43.1 of the Regulations, for property acquired after 2002. In the context of these recommendations, your proposed definition of BOFG will be considered in consultation with officials of NRCan. If the recommendations are acted upon, I would anticipate that they would be included in a future package of amendments to the Income Tax Regulations.

If you have any questions relating to the proposed recommendation, please contact Kerry Harnish (992-4385) of this office.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

"landfill gas" means a mixture of gases that are produced from the decomposition of organic waste and that are extracted from an eligible landfill site.

"municipal waste" means the combustible portion of waste material (other than waste material that is considered to be toxic or hazardous waste pursuant to any law of Canada or of a province) that is generated in Canada and that is accepted at an eligible landfill site or an eligible waste management facility and that, when burned to generate energy, emits only those fluids or other emissions that are in compliance with the law of Canada or of a province.

"solution gas" means a fossil fuel that is gas that would otherwise be flared and has been extracted from a solution of gas and produced oil.

History: "Solution gas" added by P.C. 2000-1331, s. 2, August 23, 2000, Canada Gazette, Part II, September 13, 2000, applicable after February 16, 1999.

"thermal waste" means heat energy extracted from a distinct point of rejection in an industrial process.

"transmission equipment" means equipment used to transmit more than 75 per cent of the annual electrical energy generated by electrical generating equipment, but does not include a building.

"wood waste" includes scrap wood, sawdust, wood chips, bark, limbs, saw-ends and hog fuel, but does not include residuals (known as "black liquor") from wood pulp operations and any waste that no longer has the physical or chemical properties of wood.

History: Subsec. 1104(13) added by P.C. 1997-1033, subsec. 4(2), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable after February 21, 1994.

(14) [Class 43.1(c) compliance] — Where property of a taxpayer is not operating in the manner required by paragraph (c) of Class 43.1 in Schedule II solely because of a deficiency, failing or shutdown — that is beyond the control of the taxpayer — of the system of which it is part and that previously operated in the manner required by that paragraph, that property is deemed, for the purpose of that paragraph, to be operating in the manner required under that paragraph during the period of the deficiency, failing or shutdown, if the taxpayer makes all reasonable efforts to rectify the circumstances within a reasonable time.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1104(15) — Interpretation of "system".

History: Subsec. 1104(14) added by P.C. 1997-1033, subsec. 4(2), July 25, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 20, 1997, applicable after February 21, 1994.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1104(15)

(15) [Interpretation of "system" for subsec. (14)] — For the purpose of subsection (14), a taxpayer's system referred to in that subsection that has at any particular time operated in the manner required by paragraph (c) of Class 43.1 in Schedule II includes at any time after the particular time a property of another person or partnership if

(a) the property, if it were owned by the taxpayer, would reasonably be considered to be part of the taxpayer's system;

(b) the property utilizes steam obtained from the taxpayer's system primarily in an industrial process (other than the generation of electrical energy);

(c) the operation of the property is necessary for the taxpayer's system to operate in the manner required by paragraph (c) of Class 43.1; and

(d) at the time that the taxpayer's system first became operational, the deficiency, failing or shutdown in the operation of the property could not reasonably have been anticipated by the taxpayer to occur within five years after that time.

Application: The March 16, 2001 draft regulations (CCA), s. 4, will add subsec. 1104(15), applicable to property acquired after February 21, 1994

Technical Notes: Generally, subsection 1104(14) provides that certain property (which is part of a system that was operated at a time within the parameters set out in paragraph (c) of Class 43.1 (30% CCA rate)) will continue to be considered to so operate during a period of a deficiency, failing or shutdown of the system that is beyond the control of the taxpayer. In such circumstances, the taxpayer is required to make all reasonable efforts to rectify the difficulty causing the deficiency, failing or shutdown within a reasonable period of time.

Concern has been expressed that the reference in subsection 1104(14) to a taxpayer's "system" does not include property of another taxpayer that provides a steam host, which is necessary for the taxpayer's system to operate in the manner required by Class 43.1. Thus, in cases where a taxpayer's system is not operating in the manner required under Class 43.1 because of a deficiency, failing or shutdown of the steam host's operation, subsection 1104(14) does not apply even if the taxpayer makes all reasonable efforts to have the deficiency rectified within a reasonable time.

New subsection 1104(15) provides that the reference in subsection 1104(14) to a taxpayer's system that was previously operated in the manner required by paragraph (c) of Class 43.1 includes the related property of another person or partnership if

- the property, if it were owned by the taxpayer, would reasonably be considered to be part of the taxpayer's system,
- the property utilizes steam obtained from the taxpayer's system primarily in an industrial process (other than the generation of electrical energy),
- the operation of the property is necessary for the taxpayer's system to operate in the manner required by paragraph (c) of Class 43.1, and
- at the time that the taxpayer's system first became operational, the deficiency, failing or shutdown in the operation of the property could not reasonably have been anticipated by the taxpayer to occur within five years after that time.

Technical Notes, June 20, 1996: Proposed Regulation 1106(1) provides the definition of "excluded production", which is a film or video production that is not considered to be an eligible production for the purposes of the Canadian film or video production tax credit regime. Generally, proposed clause (a)(ii)(A) of that definition provides that a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation's film or video production will be an excluded production if the corporation (or a related prescribed taxable Canadian corporation) is not the exclusive worldwide copyright owner of the production for 5 years. This amendment would lengthen the required ownership period to 25 years. However, an exception from the exclusive worldwide copyright rule in respect of a production is made for copyright in the production held by a co-producer of the production that is a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation or by a prescribed person (see the commentary to proposed Regulation 1106(7)).

This amendment applies to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years except that the reference to the "25-year period" in that clause shall be read as a "5-year period" in the case of a film or video production for which a Canadian film or video production certificate is obtained before 1997. The change to a 25-year ownership requirement has been made upon recommendation of the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Department of Finance news release Backgrounder, November 14, 2003: . . . it remains a requirement under the Income Tax Regulations ["excluded production"(a)(ii)(A) — ed.] that the production corporation have ownership of copyright. This latter provision is currently under review by the Department of Canadian Heritage. [See under ITA 125.4(2) for the full text of the Backgrounder — ed.]

(B) the work is published in Canada.

(6) Documentary production — Notwithstanding subsection (4), a documentary production that is not an excluded production is deemed to be a Canadian film or video production if all creative positions in respect of the production are occupied by individuals who are Canadians.

(7) Prescribed person — For the purpose of section 125.4 of the Act, "prescribed person" means

(a) a corporation that holds a television broadcasting licence issued by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission,

(b) a person to whom paragraph 149(1)(l) of the Act applies where the person has a fund which is used to finance Canadian film or video productions,

(c) a Canadian government film agency, or

(d) in respect of a film or video production, a non-resident person who does not carry on a business in Canada where the person's interest in the production is acquired to comply with the certificate requirements of a treaty co-production twinning arrangement.

Technical Notes, June 20, 1996: Draft Regulation 1106(7), which defines "prescribed person" for the purposes of the proposed Canadian film or video production tax credit ("CFVPTC"), is relevant for two purposes. First, a prescribed person is not considered to be an "investor" under subsection 125.4(1). A qualifying corporation will, therefore, not be precluded by subsection 125.4(4) from claiming a CFVPTC in respect of a film or video production solely because a "prescribed person" has an interest in the production.

Second, the definition "prescribed person" is relevant for the purpose of determining whether a production is an "excluded production" under proposed Regulation 1106(1). Subsection 1106(7) of the Regulations applies to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years.

Related Provisions: ITA 253 — Extended meaning of "carry on business in Canada".

(8) Prescribed amount — For the purpose of the definition "assistance" in subsection 125.4(1) of the Act, "prescribed amount" means an amount paid or payable to a taxpayer under the License Fee Program of the Canada Television and Cable Production Fund or the Canada Television Fund/Fonds canadien de télévision.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will add subsec. 1106(8), applicable to amounts received after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Section 1106 of the Income Tax Regulations provides rules related to the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit.

New subsection 1106(8) prescribes amounts paid or payable under the License Fee Program of the Canada Television and Cable Production Fund for the purpose of the definition "assistance" in subsection 125.4(1) of the Income Tax Act. As a result, such payments will not be considered assistance for the purposes of the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit provided under section 125.4 of the Act.

New subsection 1106(8) applies to amounts received after February 23, 1998.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, July 14, 1998:

Dear [xxx]

Thank you for your letter dated June 25, 1998 requesting further transitional relief for payments received from the Canada Television and Cable Production fund (CCTCPF) from the 1998 Budget proposal regarding indirect assistance.

I have been informed that the CTCPF has been unable to reorganize itself in such a way as to ensure that its funding is not considered indirect assistance for income tax purposes. I also understand that the positions taken by both the representatives of the CTCPF and Revenue Canada are reasonable in the circumstances.

Therefore, in light of this government's intention that the 1998 Budget proposal not apply to treat funding of CTCPF as assistance for income tax purposes, I have instructed my officials to draft the legislation implementing this Budget measure in a manner which will ensure that payments made to film producers from the CTCPF as licence fee top-ups are excluded from categorization as assistance for the purposes of the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit.

Based on the foregoing, it would appear that no further transitional relief will be necessary to achieve the CTCPF's goal. Should you require additional information, please contact Mr. Len Farber at (613) 992-3024.

Sincerely,
The Honourable Paul Martin, P.C., M.P.
Minister of Finance

(a)(ii)(A) of the definition "excluded production" in subsec. 1106(1) and add subsec. 1106(7), applicable to 1995 et seq., except that the reference to the "25-year period" in cl. (a)(ii)(A) shall be read as a "5-year period" in the case of a film or video production for which a Canadian film or video production certificate is obtained before 1997. Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1106(7)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, April 29, 1998:

Dear [xxx]

I am writing in response to your facsimile letter of March 31, 1998, in which you suggested that any registered charity that has a fund to finance Canadian film or video productions be included in the list of investors prescribed by draft paragraph 1106(7)(b) of the Income Tax Regulations.

It is my understanding, however, that your submission relates to the Independent Production Fund ("the Fund") in particular. You have indicated that the Fund is a charity which makes equity investments in film and television productions which amount to no more than 5-10% of any given production budget. Your concern is that the presence of such an investment could disqualify a film from qualifying for a Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit ("CFVPTC") by reason of subsection 125.4(4) of the Income Tax Act.

Leaving aside the issue of whether the "charity" is engaging in an ineligible activity, your particular example poses little difficulty from a CFVPTC policy perspective. However, your proposed solution is not constrained to similar fact situations. In particular, it is constrained neither to nominal interests, nor ownership interests, nor funding that could be traced to persons that might otherwise be considered to be prescribed investors in their own right. From a tax policy perspective, the intent of the CFVPTC legislation, as it stands, is to allow the CFVPTC to a producer only where no other person is able to claim a deduction in respect of the production. This is because the deduction itself is considered to already provide a tax benefit in respect of the production. It is not intended that a tax credit be given in addition to this benefit.

As you may know, however, we have discussed with the industry the possibility of excluding from the definition "investor" a person where, in respect of the investment, the person is subject to the matchable expenditure rules in section 18.1 of the Income Tax Act, on condition that the "investment" be considered assistance to the producer or otherwise excluded from the producer's eligible cost. If I understand your issue correctly, however, the fund could not claim that the investment was a matchable expenditure because it, in fact, takes an actual percentage ownership in the film (rather than a right to production).

You have also noted that an exemption has been provided in respect of non-profit funds that have been established to fund Canadian film or video productions. As you know, the only such fund in existence receives amounts only from the Government of Canada and persons who would otherwise be prescribed persons. Further, while registered charities are similar to non-profit organizations such as the Canadian Television and Cable Production Fund, charities have one materially distinct characteristic: they can offer tax credits or deductions to their donors. In the absence of any constraint on eligible donors, therefore, it would be difficult to recommit a blanket exemption for funds operated by any charity.

In view of the above, we could recommend a modified version of your proposal under which eligible charities would be constrained to those charities that

- are constated to provide funding for film or video productions, all or substantially all of which funding is provided by way of a direct ownership interest in the production, and
- have not received donations after 1996, other than from persons who are otherwise prescribed persons.

In this regard, you should be aware that we have already proposed to recommend that the list of prescribed persons be expanded to include corporations that hold a specialty or pay-television broadcasting licence issued by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission ("CRTC"), or that hold a broadcast undertaking licence and provide production funding as a result of "significant benefits" commitment given to the CRTC.

Please advise us if these proposals would resolve your concerns. Thank you for bringing your concerns to my attention.

Sincerely,

Len Farber

1207. Frontier exploration allowances — (1) A taxpayer may deduct in computing his income for a taxation year such amount as he may claim not exceeding the lesser of

(i) expenses incurred after March, 1977 and before April, 1980 and before the particular time in respect of the well (other than expenses that may reasonably be regarded as having been incurred as consideration for services rendered to the taxpayer after March, 1980) if those expenses would be included in the Canadian exploration expense of the taxpayer within the meaning of paragraph 66.1(6)(a) [66.1(6)"Canadian exploration expense"] of the Act (if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraphs (iii) and (iii.1) [paras. (f) and (g)] thereof and without reference to the words "within six months after the end of the year, the drilling of the well is completed and" in subparagraph (ii) [para. (c)] thereof, and if the reference in subparagraphs (iv) and (v) [paras. (h) and (i)] thereof to "any of subparagraphs (i) to (iii.1) [paras. (a) to (g)]" were read as a reference to "subparagraph (i) or (ii) [para. (a) or (c)]") other than

(A) a cost of borrowing capital, including any cost incurred prior to the commencement of carrying on a business, that was a Canadian exploration expense of the taxpayer,

(B) an expense renounced by the taxpayer under subsection 66(10.1) of the Act,

(C) an amount that, by virtue of subparagraph 66.1(6)(a)(iv) [66.1(6)"Canadian exploration expense"(h)] of the Act, was a Canadian exploration expense, if such amount was an expense referred to in clause (A) or (B) that was incurred by a partnership referred to in that subparagraph, or

(D) an amount that, by virtue of subparagraph 66.1(6)(a)(v) [66.1(6)"Canadian exploration expense"(i)] of the Act, was a Canadian exploration expense, if such amount was an expense referred to in clause (A) or (B) that the taxpayer incurred pursuant to an agreement referred to in that subparagraph,

exceeds

(ii) the taxpayer's threshold amount in respect of the well, minus the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the taxpayer for the well if the reference therein to "after March, 1977 and before April, 1980" were read as "after June, 1976 and before April, 1977", and

(a.1) where the taxpayer is a successor corporation, any amount required by paragraph (7)(a) to be added before the particular time in computing the taxpayer's frontier exploration base,

(b) all amounts deducted by the taxpayer under subsection (1) in computing his income for taxation years ending before the particular time,

(c) 66⅔ per cent of the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is an amount that became receivable by the taxpayer after March 28, 1979 and before the earlier of December 12, 1979 and the particular time, and in respect of which the consideration given by the taxpayer therefor was a property (other than a share, or a property that would have been a Canadian resource property if it had been acquired by the taxpayer at the time the consideration was given) or services the cost of which may reasonably be regarded as having been primarily an expenditure in respect of an oil or gas well for which an amount was added in computing the taxpayer's frontier exploration base by virtue of paragraph (a) or in computing the frontier exploration base of a predecessor by virtue of paragraph (a) as it applied to the predecessor where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor, as the case may be; and

(d) where the taxpayer is a predecessor, any amount required by paragraph (7)(b) to be deducted before the particular time in computing the taxpayer's frontier exploration base.

Canadian renewable and conservation expense — (1) Subject to subsection (2), for the purpose of subsection 66.1(6) of the Act, "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" means an expense incurred by a taxpayer, and payable to a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer is dealing at arm's length, in respect of the development of a project for which it is reasonable to expect that at least 50% of the capital cost of the depreciable property to be used in the project would be the capital cost of any property that is described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II or that would be such property but for this subsection, and includes such an expense incurred by the taxpayer

(a) for the purpose of making a service connection to the project for the transmission of electricity to a purchaser of the electricity, to the extent that the expense so incurred was not incurred to acquire property of the taxpayer;

(b) for the construction of a temporary access road to the project site;

(c) for a right of access to the project site before the earliest time at which a property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II is used in the project for the purpose of earning income;

(d) for clearing land to the extent necessary to complete the project;

(e) for process engineering for the project, including

(i) collection and analysis of site data,

Application: The July 26, 2002 draft regulations, subsec. 1(1), will amend para. 1219(1)(g) to read as above, applicable to expenditures incurred after July 26, 2002.

If a taxpayer so elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the publication of these regulations in the Canada Gazette, Part II, the amendment also applies to expenditures incurred by the taxpayer after December 5, 1996 and on or before July 26, 2002.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 1219(3)(a)–(f).

Department of Finance news release, July 26, 2002: See under Reg. 1219(3)(a)–(f).

(2) [Exclusions] — A Canadian renewable and conservation expense does not include any expense that

(a) is described in paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) or (e.1) of the Act; or

(b) is incurred by a taxpayer directly or indirectly and is

(i) for the acquisition of, or the use of or the right to use, land, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (c) or (d),

(ii) for grading or levelling land or for landscaping, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b),

(iii) payable to a non-resident person or a partnership other than a Canadian partnership (other than an expense described in paragraph (1)(g)),

(v) an expenditure that, but for this section, would be an eligible capital expenditure, except as provided by any of paragraphs (1)(a) to (e),

(vi) included in the cost of inventory of the taxpayer,

(vii) an expenditure on or in respect of scientific research and experimental development,

(viii) a Canadian development expense or a Canadian oil and gas property expense,

(x) incurred in respect of the administration or management of a business of the taxpayer, or

(xi) a cost attributable to the period of the construction, renovation or alteration of depreciable property, other than property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II, that relates to

(A) the construction, renovation or alteration of the property, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (f), or (g), or

(B) the ownership of land during the period, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (c) or (d).

(3) For the purpose of paragraph (1)(g), "test wind turbine" means a fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system that would, but for this section, be property included in Class 43.1 of Schedule II because of subparagraph (d)(v) thereof, and in respect of which the Minister, in consultation with the Minister of Natural Resources, determines that

(a) the device will be the first such device installed at the taxpayer's site for a proposed wind energy conversion system; and

(b) the primary purpose of the device is to test the level of electrical energy production at the site.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1219(3)(a)–(f)

(a) the device is installed as part of a wind farm project of the taxpayer at which the electrical energy produced from wind by the device, and by all other test wind turbines that are part of the project, does not exceed

(i) one third of the project's planned nameplate capacity if

(A) in the opinion of the Minister of Natural Resources, the project's planned nameplate capacity is limited from an engineering or scientific perspective, and

(B) the project's planned nameplate capacity does not exceed six megawatts, or

(ii) 20% of the project's planned nameplate capacity, in any other case;

(b) the project does not share with any other project a point of interconnection to an electrical energy transmission or distribution system;

(c) if the project does not have a point of interconnection to an electrical energy transmission or distribution system, the project has a point of interconnection to an electrical system

(i) of the taxpayer

(A) which system is more than 10 kilometres from any transmission system and from any distribution system, and

(B) from which system at least 90% of the electrical energy produced by the project is used in a business carried on by the taxpayer, or

(ii) of another person or partnership that deals at arm's length with the taxpayer

(A) which system is more than 10 kilometres from any transmission system and from any distribution system, and

(B) from which system at least 90% of the electrical energy produced by the project is used in a business carried on by the other person or partnership;

(d) the primary purpose for installing the device is to test the level of electrical energy produced by the device from wind at the place of installation;

(e) no other test wind turbine is installed within 1,500 meters of the device; and

(f) no other wind energy conversion system is installed within 1,500 meters of the device until the level of electrical energy produced from wind by the device has been tested for at least 120 calendar days.

Application: The July 26, 2002 draft regulations, subsec. 1(2), will substitute paras. 1219(3)(a) to (f) for paras. 1219(3)(a) and (b), applicable to expenditures incurred after July 26, 2002.

If a taxpayer so elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the publication of these regulations in the Canada Gazette, Part II, the amendment also applies to expenditures incurred by the taxpayer after December 5, 1996 and on or before July 26, 2002 and, for the purpose of applying these regulations to those expenditures, para. 1219(3)(a) shall be read as follows:

(a) the device installed as part of a wind farm project of the taxpayer at which the electrical energy produced from wind by the device, and by all other test wind turbines that are part of the project, does not exceed 35% of the project's planned nameplate capacity;

Technical Notes: Section 1219 defines "Canadian renewable and conservation expenses ("CRCE")" for the purposes of subsection 66.1(6) of the Income Tax Act. A CRCE is included in calculating a taxpayer's Canadian Exploration Expense and is eligible to be renounced under a flow-through share agreement.

In general terms, subsection 1219(1) provides that a "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" is an expense incurred (for certain listed purposes) by a taxpayer in respect of a project for which it is reasonable to expect at least 50% of the capital cost of the depreciable property to be used in a project would be the capital cost of any property that is described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II (or that would be such property but for subsection 1219(1)).

The listed expenses in respect of a project include expenses incurred by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's test wind turbine for the project (see paragraph 1219(1)(g)). As well, subsection 1219(3) of the Regulations provides that, for the purpose of paragraph 1219(1)(g), a wind energy conversion system is a test wind turbine only if

- the device would otherwise be included in Class 43.1(d)(v) of Schedule II to the Regulations, and
- it is determined by the Minister of National Revenue, in consultation with the Minister of Natural Resources,
  - — to be the first such device installed at the taxpayer's site for a proposed wind energy conversion system, and
  - — to be a device that has as its primary purpose the testing of the level of electrical energy production at the site.

Reference should also be made to the Department of Natural Resources' Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses, as subsection 66.1(6) of the Income Tax Act provides that that guide applies conclusively when determining — with respect to engineering and scientific matters — whether an expense is CRCE.

Concern has been expressed to the government by representatives of the wind energy industry that the current Regulations preclude more than one fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system from being a "test wind turbine" in respect of a taxpayer's wind farm project. As well, requests have been received that the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses be updated.

As a result of consultations between the Departments of Finance and Natural Resources, the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency and representatives of the wind energy industry, the government is:

- amending Regulation 1219;
- revising the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses; and

- clarifying the process by which a taxpayer may obtain, in advance, an opinion in respect of whether a device will be a "test wind turbine".

Subsection 1219(3) is to be amended in six respects.

First, paragraph 1219(3)(a) is to be amended to remove the requirement that a fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system be the "first" such device installed at a taxpayer's site. Instead, new paragraph 1219(3)(a) will provide that the device be installed as part of the taxpayer's wind farm project and satisfy one of two separate conditions. In particular, the electrical energy produced from wind by the device, and all other test wind turbines that are part of the taxpayer's project, cannot exceed

- one third of the project's planned nameplate capacity, if
  - in the opinion of the Minister of Natural Resources, the project's planned nameplate production capacity is limited from an engineering or scientific perspective, and
  - the project's planned nameplate capacity does not exceed 6 megawatts, or
- 20% of the project's planned nameplate capacity, in any other case.

Second, new paragraph 1219(3)(b) will provide that the project cannot share with any other project a point of interconnection to an electrical energy transmission or distribution system. Currently, the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses indicates that the fixed location device (rather than the wind farm project as a whole) has to have a separate point of interconnection.

Third, if a taxpayer's project does not have a point of interconnection to an electrical transmission or distribution system, new paragraph 1219(3)(c) will provide that the project be required to have a point of interconnection to an electrical system

- of the taxpayer
  - which system is more than 10 kilometres from any transmission system and from any distribution system, and

  - which system is more than 10 kilometres from any transmission system and from any distribution system, and
  - from which system at least 90% of the electrical energy produced by the project is used in a business carried on by the other person or partnership.

Fourth, former paragraph 1219(3)(b) will be replaced by new paragraph 1219(3)(d), to provide that the primary purpose of installing the device must be to test the level of electrical energy produced by the device from wind at the place of installation. Paragraph 1219(3)(b) currently provides that the primary purpose of the device has to be to test the level of electrical energy production at the site.

Fifth, new paragraph 1219(3)(e) will require that there be no other test wind turbine within 1,500 metres of the device.

Sixth, new paragraph 1219(3)(f) will require that there be no other energy conversion system of any sort installed within 1,500 metres of the device until the level of electrical energy produced from wind by the device has been tested for at least 120 calendar days.

Reference should also be made to the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses for further details on engineering and scientific criteria that apply with respect to determining whether a fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system is a "test wind turbine". The Department of Natural Resources is currently in the process of issuing a new Guide.

Taxpayers who would like to determine in advance whether any proposed installation of a fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system would be a "test wind turbine" should direct their enquiries to:

The Canada Customs and Revenue Agency, Income Tax Rulings Directorate, Place de Ville, Tower A, 320 Queen Street, Ottawa Ontario K1A 0L5
General Enquiries (613) 957-8953

As is provided in Regulation 1219(3), the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency will make such a determination in consultation with officials of the Department of Natural Resources.

These amendments to Regulation 1219 are to apply to expenditures incurred after July 26, 2002. However, these amendments will also apply to a taxpayer's expenditures incurred after December 5, 1996 if the taxpayer elects in writing filed with the Minister of National Revenue within 90 days after the publication of these regulations in the Canada Gazette, Part II.

Department of Finance news release, July 26, 2002: Federal Government enhances renewable energy tax incentives

John Manley, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, announced today two proposed changes to the income tax rules to enhance the tax incentives for investments in renewable energy and energy conservation projects.

Specifically, these changes would:

- treat as Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses (CRCE) the cost of acquiring and installing more than one test wind turbine as part of a taxpayer's wind farm; and
- allow corporations to renounce CRCE to flow-through share investors in a year, where the CRCE will be incurred in the subsequent year.

The first change, to be effected by regulations, would be generally applicable to expenditures incurred after today, and to previously incurred expenditures on an elective basis.

The second change, which would apply to both wind electricity projects and qualifying renewable energy and energy conservation projects, would provide greater flexibility in the timing of investments financed using flow-through shares. The treatment of flow-through share investments in such projects would parallel that of investments in non-renewable energy projects. This change is proposed to apply to CRCE incurred after 2002 in respect of flow-through share agreements entered into after today. The Minister indicated he intends to introduce legislation implementing this proposed change in Parliament at the earliest opportunity.

"I am confident that Canadians will support our efforts to encourage the production of more renewable energy in Canada," said Minister Manley. He added that today's announcement provides greater certainty for those taxpayers engaged in the production of wind power and ensures that renewable energy projects can raise financing in the same manner as non-renewable energy projects.

The changes will complement existing programs such as the Wind Power Production Incentive announced in December 2001 and the green power procurement commitment.

Backgrounder

Test Wind Turbines

The 1996 budget introduced a new category of expenses called Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses (CRCE). These expenses are fully deductible by the taxpayer or may be transferred to investors purchasing flow-through shares. The purpose of the CRCE rules is to make the tax treatment of renewable energy exploration expenses more consistent with that of non-renewable energy exploration expenses.

The 1997 budget proposed to amend the CRCE definition to include the costs of acquiring and installing "test wind turbines." The current Income Tax Regulations restrict eligibility for this expense treatment to the "first device at a taxpayer's site." The wind energy industry has recommended that this restriction be changed to allow for more than one test wind turbine as part of a taxpayer's wind farm project.

In August 2001 the Government announced that new criteria for test wind turbines would be developed following consultations with industry. Draft regulations released today reflect these consultations and address industry concerns. Specifically, they provide that more than one test wind turbine may qualify in respect of a taxpayer's wind farm project, if certain conditions are met. These changes are generally applicable to expenditures incurred after July 26, 2002, and to previously incurred expenditures on an elective basis.

Natural Resources Canada will update the criteria for test wind turbines in the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses.

"Look-Back" Rule for Flow-Through Share Investments

The look-back rule is currently available only for flow-through share investments in the oil and gas and mining sectors. It allows corporations one full year to incur expenses that have been renounced to flow-through share investors in a previous year. This rule was intended to facilitate a more efficient and orderly spending of exploration budgets. The look-back rule has three components:

i) expenses incurred by the issuing corporation by the end of February may be renounced at the end of the previous year without a charge being levied;

ii) the issuing corporation is required to pay a charge based on a prescribed interest rate on any amounts renounced at the end of the previous year that are expended between March 1 and December 31 of the following year; and

iii) if the full amount is not expended by December 31 of the following year, the corporation is subject to a penalty of 10% on the unexpended balance and investors are subject to reassessment to eliminate the deduction of CRCE.

The renewable energy industry has not had access to any look-back provision related to their flow-through share financings. Representatives from the industry, including the wind energy sector, have requested that the look-back rule be extended to apply to CRCE to parallel the treatment provided to investments in the non-renewable energy sector. This change will provide greater flexibility in the timing of energy conservation and renewable energy investments financed using flow-through shares. Accordingly, it is proposed that the look-back rule be extended to CRCE incurred after 2002 in respect of flow-through share agreements entered into after July 26, 2002.

(ii) the maximum amount that may be claimed by the insurer in respect of the annuity under paragraph (c).

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), where a rate of mortality or other probability used by an insurer in determining the premium for a policy is not reasonable in the circumstances, the Minister on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada may make such revision to the rate as is reasonable in the circumstances and the revised rate shall be deemed to have been used by the insurer in determining the premium.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), where the present value of the premiums for a policy as at the date of issue of the policy is less than the aggregate of an increased rate of interest shall be determined by multiplying the rate of interest used in determining the premiums by a constant factor so that when the increased rate of interest is used,

(c) the present value of the premiums at the date of issue of the policy shall equal

(d) the aggregate of the present values of the benefits, outlays and expenses referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b), and the increased rate of interest shall be deemed to have been used by the insurer in determining the premiums for the policy.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1403(4) — Computation of present value.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), a "present value" referred to in that subsection shall be computed by using the rates of mortality and other probabilities used by the insurer in determining its premiums, after making any revision required by subsection (2).

(5) For the purposes of subsection (1), where a record of the rate of interest or mortality used by an insurer in determining the premiums for a policy is not available,

(a) the insurer may, if the policy was issued before 1978, make a reasonable estimate of the rate; and

(b) the Minister, on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada, may

(i) if the policy was issued before 1978 and the insurer has not made the estimate referred to in paragraph (a), or make a reasonable estimate of the rate.

(ii) if the policy was issued after 1977,

(6) Notwithstanding paragraph 1401(1)(c), a life insurer in computing its income for a taxation year may, in respect of any class of life insurance policies issued before its 1988 taxation year, other than policies referred to in paragraph 1401(1)(a) or (b), use a method of approximation to convert the reserve in respect of such policies reported by the insurer in its annual report to the relevant authority for the year to an amount that is a reasonable estimate of the amount that would otherwise be determined for such policies under paragraph 1401(1)(c), provided that that method of approximation is acceptable to the Minister on the advice of the relevant authority.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (1) and notwithstanding any other provision of this section, where

(a) an individual annuity contract was issued prior to 1969 by a life insurer, or

(b) a benefit was purchased prior to 1969 under a group annuity contract issued by a life insurer, and the contract

(c) is a policy in respect of which the provisions of paragraph 1401(1)(c) as it read in its application to the insurer's 1977 taxation year applied, the rates of interest and mortality used by the insurer in computing its reserve for the policy under that paragraph for its 1977 taxation year shall be used by the insurer in respect of that policy.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (1), where

(a) in a taxation year of an insurer, there has been a disposition to the insurer by another person with whom the insurer was dealing at arm's length in respect of which subsection 138(11.92) of the Act applied,

(b) as a result of the disposition, the insurer assumed obligations under life insurance policies (in this subsection referred to as the "transferred policies") in respect of which an amount may be claimed by the insurer as a reserve under paragraph 1401(1)(c) for the taxation year,

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the aggregate of all amounts received or receivable by the insurer from the other person in respect of the transferred policies referred to in paragraph (b)

exceeds

(ii) the aggregate of all amounts paid or payable by the insurer to the other person in respect of commissions in respect of the amounts referred to in subparagraph (i)

exceeds the total of the maximum amounts that may be claimed by the insurer as a reserve under paragraph 1401(1)(c) (determined without reference to this subsection) in respect of the transferred policies for the taxation year, and

(d) the amount determined under paragraph (c) (in this subsection referred to as "reserve deficiency") can reasonably be attributed to the fact that the rates of interest or mortality used by the issuer of the transferred policies in determining the cash surrender values or premiums under such policies are no longer reasonable in the circumstances, the Minister, on the request of the insurer and with the advice of the relevant authority, may make such revision to the rates of interest or mortality to eliminate all or any part of that reserve deficiency, and those revised rates shall be deemed to have been used by the issuer of the transferred policies in determining the cash surrender value or premiums under the policies.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1403(8)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, December 1, 1999:

Dear [xxx]

This is in reply to your letter of November 8, 1999 requesting that amendments be made to the draft income tax legislation released on December 23, 1998 regarding trusts and to the Income Tax Regulations regarding the determination of tax reserves for life insurance policies. . . .

Regulations on Reserves

You are of the view that subsection 1403(8) of the Income Tax Regulations should be amended to allow an insurer that has acquired an insurance business, or a line of an insurance business, from another insurer to revise the lapse rates used by the other insurer for reserve purposes if those rates are no longer reasonable to eliminate all or part of what is referred to in subsection 1403(8) as a reserve deficiency (the "Reserve Deficiency"). From a policy perspective, we agree. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 1403(8) be amended to allow for revisions to lapse rates to eliminate all or part of a Reserve Deficiency if the deficiency is attributable to the fact that the lapse rates used by the issuer of the transferred policies are no longer reasonable in the circumstances.

Your second concern in regard to subsection 1403(8) of the Income Tax Regulations is that it provides the Minister of National Revenue with too much discretion in determining whether, and to what extent, rates can be changed to eliminate all or part of a Reserve Deficiency. We agree that subsection 1403(8) may be too broad in this regard. Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 1403(8) be amended to better ensure that the Ministerial discretion be limited to the approval of adjusted rates provided the adjustments are reasonable.

We would also recommend that the amendments to subsection 1403(8) of the Income Tax Regulations be effective for dispositions occurring after November 1999. If the recommendation is acted upon, it is anticipated that the amendments would be included in a future technical bill.

I appreciate you taking the time to bring your concerns to my attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein
Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(a) the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year, where that amount is greater than nil, and

(b) nil, in any other case.

(2) For the purpose of paragraph 138(4)(b) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer for a taxation year, in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, is

where

A is the amount (except to the extent the amount is determined in respect of a claim, premium, dividend or refund in respect of which an amount is included in determining the value of B, C or D), in respect of the insurer's life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, equal to the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of those policies, and

(b) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of those policies;

B is the amount, in respect of the insurer's life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies under which there may be claims incurred before the end of the year that have not been reported to the insurer before the end of the year, equal to 95% of the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims, and

(b) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims;

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the unearned portion at the end of the year of the premium paid by the policyholder for the policy where the policy is a group term life insurance policy that
